Poor Quality Of the Blood

A Frequent Cause of Consumption and Other Constitutional Diseases—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a Blood Builder.

To say that a person is predisposed to consumption by heredity is only another way of saying that he has inherited thin, watery blood. Anaemia, bloodlessness, or deficiency in the quality of the blood, is a prime cause of consumption, catarrh and other constitutional diseases.

The heart, the lungs, the liver, the kidneys and bowels cannot perform their functions when supplied with blood which is deficient in nutritive qualities, and sooner or later the weakest organs succumb to the attacks of disease.

The indications of thin, watery blood are paleness of the lips, gums and eyelids, shortness of breath, languid, depressed feelings, and general weakness of the body. The anaemic person is easily tired and lacks energy and ambition. These symptoms are usually accompanied by nervousness and sleeplessness.

It is positively useless to doctor the symptoms and injurious to use opiates or stimulants. Any temporary relief obtained by a quickening of the heart's action is dearly paid for by the reaction afterwards. Cure can be brought about gradually and certainly by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which contains in condensed pill form all the elements required for the strengthening and vitalizing of the blood.

Whether inherited or brought about by overwork, disease or bad habits, thin blood can be enriched and restored to its natural consistency by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment is not a miracle worker, but supplies to the blood the very elements of nature which go to form new, red corpuscles in the blood.

A. T. P. Lalame, railway agent at Clarenceville, Que., writes: "For twelve years I have been run down with much nervous debility. I suffered much, and consulted doctors, and used medicines in vain. Some months ago I heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, used two boxes, and my health improved so rapidly that I ordered twelve more.

"I can say, frankly, that this treatment has no equal in the medical world. While using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I could feel my system being built up until now I am strong and healthy. I cannot recommend it too highly for weak, nervous people."

At this season of the year nearly everybody suffers the evil effects of artificial winter life. It is not a purgative that is needed. That would make the body still weaker. The blood is thin and needs enriching by just such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which is a blood-builder of inestimable value. Fifty cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

At Fecamp, in Normandy, France, some new distillery buildings were blessed by the Roman Catholic archbishop of Rouen. The distillery buildings are a part of the Benedictine liquor factory and very extensive; the cost of their erection was 5,000,000 francs ($1,000,000.)

Lord Robert's grandfather, Rev. John Roberts, was a beneficed clergyman in the Irish Established church. Lord Roberts' maternal grandfather was a minor canon of St. Patrick's cathedral. During the five years of its existence in Canada the young people's forward movement has advanced by rapid strides. In 1895 the first district was organized the following year there were six, and this year the Epworth league of sixty-two districts have undertaken to support missionaries; their aggregate givings for that purpose amounting to $18,245.57.

"WHAT CAN A RICH MAN DO?"

Question Asked by a Millionaire Clergyman and Answered.

"What can a rich man do?"

'Tis the bitter cry of the millionaire on the eve of the twentieth century. Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, jr., himself a millionaire, thus unburdened himself to a Yale professor before mounting for the first time the steps of his pulpit.

What can a rich man do? Many rich men have tried to answer the question. An American paper has secured nine little sermons on this text from nine millionaires, two of them women.

Alone among American millionaires the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes finds his millions a millstone about his neck.

"I almost wish that I was a poor man," he exclaimed on the occasion mentioned. "The money that I have inherited is an encumberance to me. People will never forget that I am wealthy and that in spite of all I can do my advent to the priesthood has been sensational.

"And what can a rich man do?"

The opinions secured are as follows:

John D. Rockefeller.—God gave me my money, and I give it to the university. I believe in the work. It is the best investment I ever made in my life.

I am profoundly thankful that I have had anything to do with it.

Russell Sage.—Any man who has a level head, who treats his fellow-men in a civil and courteous manner and spends his money for laudable purposes, cannot have too much money. As for me, I am constantly turning over my wealth in a way that will help others. If a man does not do that he will not be a good citizen.

Andrew Carnegie.—Surplus wealth should be considered by those into whose hands it falls during their lives for the good of the community. The day is at hand when he who dies possessed of enormous sums will die disgraced. The aim of the millionaire should be to die poor.

Helen Gould.—It is the duty of women who have wealth to help others, and especially other women, and to make life for them worth the living.

So much happiness may be scattered continually, that the more one tries to help others the more one loves to do it.

William C. Whitney—One important duty of the man of means is to take an active interest in politics. Rich men are waking up to a realization of their duty in this regard. It is of the country's welfare, present and future. Not half the rich men of America have yet awakened to the service they owe their country.

D. O. Mills—There seems to be a general impression that I devote much time and money to so-called charitable relief. I don't. All my efforts are directed to teach the poor the value of saving. I believe in helping those who help themselves. Then the recipient of a favor, however small, maintains his self respect.

Henry Clews—Every man of wealth has endless demands made upon him, and by far the larger of them may be satisfied without the public ever hearing of it. Another thing a rich man can do is to bequeath his fortune to charity. The world knows little of the charities of the rich.

Col. John Jacob Astor—As to charity, I believe in prevention rather than cure. That is, begin with children. Do all that is possible for them. There is more to be accomplished there than in working for incurables, for instance. The best way to benefit the poor is to increase nature's production of the necessaries of life.

Mrs. Hetty Green—Help some one, I say, that is the way to win souls. Now, I try to help some one every day. Mind, I don't give money, but I try to give people employment and help them respect themselves. If you are a bad man any amount of money is too much for you, and if you are a good man you can't have too much.

She Didn't Know Him.

A candidate for the mayoralty, who is not a liberal, was soliciting votes on University avenue yesterday. There are a great many lady voters in that district, and he was asking one of them to vote for him.

"I don't know anything about you," she replied.

"Well, you won't vote against me at any rate, will you?" he pleaded.

"I don't know anything about you," she re-affirmed, and the alderman left, feeling that his name was Dennis there.

REVOLT OF SOMALI TRIBES.

One of Abyssinian Chiefs Obliged to Interfere.

Marseilles, Oct. 26.—The French steamship Salazie has arrived here from China. At Aden the officers were informed that Ras Makonnen, one of king Menelek's principal chiefs, had been obliged to interfere between the Somali tribes who have recently rebelled. Hereafter the railways will be watched and defended by regulars from the army of Negus Menelek.

A Valuable Exhibit.

Read and note the value of our exports to Great Britain in the last three years of conservative rule and the first three years of liberal rule in Canada. The list includes butter, cheese, eggs, bacon, beef, hams, mutton, pork, apples, oats, peas, wheat, flour and potatoes. For these the figures were:

1894	$29,000,000
1895	28,000,000
1896	28,000,000
1898	51,000,000
1899	48,000,000
1900	58,000,000

For the three years prior to the present government taking office the total value of these exports to Britain amounted to $85,000,000, and for the last three years under the preferential tariff $161,000,000. In the last four years our export trade in farm products has increased sixty-four per cent., while the United States export trade increased only forty-seven per cent.

The farmers and dealers can see from the above what immense benefits have accrued from the carrying out of the preferential tariff, and they know, also, that the credit of this is due to the Laurier government.

The surprising diversity of selections is one of the chief charms of the Strauss concerts, and the dash and spirit with which every work is delivered are peculiarly characteristic of Strauss himself. City hall, Tuesday, Oct. 30th. Plan at Uglow's.

Holleford Heraldings.

Holleford, Oct. 26.—Farmers are smiling to see the fine weather, which gives them a chance of getting out potatoes and getting fall ploughing done. C. H. Martin and A. Collins are improving the roads. George Elderbeck's team ran away while coming from the factory, upsetting the waggon and smashing some of the cans. Our new store is doing good business. Mrs. J. Walker and Mrs. H. Deline are on the sick list. Lizzie Elderbeck, daughter of George Elderbeck, is improving after a long sickness. J. Carslake has gone to Opinicon to work in the mines during the winter.

An Interesting Picture.

B. Silver, Princess street, has just received a copy of the St. Petersburg Hameliz (Advocate), printed in Hebrew. It contains a fine cut of the members of the colony of "Israel's Hope," established by baron de Hirsch. They are students of an agricultural college situated in Palestine, and the picture shows them laden with grapes, and with grape vines clustering about them. This college was awarded a gold medal at the Paris exposition.

"Souvenir" the Best by Test

"Test and try before you buy" is a homely, old, commercial invitation, but it's good to give and to get in the purchasing of a new range. The "Souvenir" invites comparison and criticism with any kitchen range made anywhere—and if you're contemplating buying, and will give the time to compare it on points of price, style, durability, appointments, completeness, economy and general good service, the "Souvenir" can afford to abide by your judgment. Now put it to the test. The best in the world is its place in Stovedom—and it's "at the top" on its merits. It is handsomely mounted and most modern in the minutest detail of construction. The
