GOOD NEWS

(New Liskeard Speaker)

The Provincial Treasurer has announced that this year the Province will have a surplus of $150,000 after the payment of all undertakings, and this gratifying announcement is followed by another very important statement, viz; that the Province will enter upon a program of construction work which will cost $33,000,000, and which it is expected will give employment to the 61,200 still out of work. These announcements, together with the statement made in this issue concerning the Hydro finding a good paying customer in the Northern Canada Power Company for the surplus Abitibi Canyon electric power, makes a great boost for the Henry Government. Perhaps the Government may appeal to the electors earlier than is expected; but whether the election be soon or late, we are delighted with this surplus announcement, and glad to be able to say that in these days of a world wide depression, Ontario is a splendid part of the world in which to reside.

FORCED INTO ACTION

(Burks Falls Arrow)

The recent elections, both provincial and federal bye-elections, in which the Liberal Party has been very strongly endorsed, has caused the government at Ottawa and Toronto to sit up and take notice and after three years of watchful waiting they are springing into action. There has been almost a complete right about face in the attitude of both governments towards relief works. Last year it was almost impossible to get government sanction for assistance in any municipal propositions but this year, now that it is almost too late in this north country to do any outside work to advantage, municipalities are being pestered to start public works to keep their men employed. We suppose it all a part of the political game. Depending upon the short-lived memory of the public the government is hoping that its apathy of the past years will be forgotten and that its energies of the present winter will be regarded as its loving care for the people of the country. Whether the Liberals swing into power or not in the next elections the present swing toward Liberalism has been effective in getting more action from the powers that be.

IS ORILLIA MAGISTRATE RIGHT?

(Durham Chronicle)

A story is going the rounds of the press that an Orillia magistrate dismissed a charge of reckless driving against a citizen of that town because the complainant, a police constable, had also served the summons. The Orillia cadi ruled that the summons was illegal and is reported further to have stated that throughout Ontario where only one policeman is employed, these summonses are also illegal.

If this is the case, then it is time the law in this respect was changed. Nearly all police court cases have the police as complainants, even though the actual complaint has been laid by a citizen. But is this the law?

The Chronicle put the question to one of Grey county's leading lawyers and received no definite answer. The legal man would not say the Orillia ruling was not right; neither would he say it was wrong. The best he would say was that it was merely a technical point, and, in his opinion, a slim one.

If the above ruling is correct, then we may say it is good-bye to law enforcement in the smaller sections of Ontario. No small municipality can afford to have more than one constable, and it is altogether likely that rather than employ an extra man they will leave the enforcement of the law to the provincial force' whose duties even now are sufficiently heavy to keep them actively engaged in something more important than enforcing small town bylaws.

What we in the smaller centres want is a simple law, a law that can be enforced, and one that is not full of technicalities for the lawyers to fight over, and for which the public must pay.

CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

(Peterboro Examiner)

Proposals to increase the automobile speed limit in Ontario do not fit in very snugly with the announcement that a survey is being made for the purpose of establishing first-aid stations along highway No. 2 between Toronto and Montreal for the purpose of rendering assistance to injured motorists.

This step is equivalent to an admission that serious automobile accidents are increasing to such an extent that it has been found necessary to provide emergency treatment for the victims.

There are many motorists who declare that the present speed limit is too slow, but the fact remains that high speed is the cause of a great many accidents, and that most mishaps caused by fast driving are of a very serious character.

This has been found to be the case in Great Britain where no speed limit is insisted upon, and where fatal motor accidents have been increasing until there is a daily average of twenty deaths from this cause.

The result is that the British authorities have come to the conclusion that excessive speed is the main cause of these fatalities, and a despatch the other day stated that the British Government is considering imposing an arbitrary speed limit.

TAKING MORE PROMINENT PART IN EXPORT TO GREAT BRITAIN

Since September, Canada has commenced to take a place among the more important suppliers of eggs to the British markets. Some 128,000 dozen of eggs were exported during that month. Prices to Canadian producers have recently improved steadily. Fresh receipts of eggs are somewhat scarce and continued firmness in price is probable. Those producers who wisely hatched or purchased early chicks, are in a position to at least make some profit as a result of adopting firm business methods. Canadian eggs continue to be exported in fair volume. The Toronto and Montreal markets continue very firm.

LORD GREY AND HIS BIRDS

This English statesman, whose name will always be associated with the international affairs that led up to the Great War, was widely known as one of the world's best lovers of birds. His ancestral home at Fallodon was a model wild bird sanctuary and the paradise of North Country naturalists. Waterfowl were his special study and to see the way the flocks of wild ducks would gather at his feet, fly up to his hand and even light upon him, it is said was most interesting and amusing. Indeed, all sorts of birds peopled the sanctuary he had furnished them; among them the willow warblers were so abundant in summer that he called them the "Everlasting Birds" because their songs seemed never to cease. His personal charm, recognized so quickly by all who met him, would appear to have been felt by the birds as well.—Our Dumb Animals.

Two Carrick farmers report that their potato crops this year were so light that they took up fewer potatoes than they planted last spring.
