A MODERN HIGHWAY

Motorists in Italy are said to be extremely good drivers. Though driving at a rapid rate, they do not indulge in the vice of cutting-in. There is a hint here perhaps, for the American continent, since Italy has some really modern roads, built to permit motor cars to make fast time, and this undoubtedly has something to do with the fact that cutting-in is rare. What need, for instance, to cut-in along the "autostrada" running between Florence and Viareggio, a wonderful road fifty miles long generally covered in an hour? This autostrada is up to date, and absolutely safe for all speeds. All the old roads are crossed by bridges and there are numerous small bridges for pedestrians. The autostrada can be entered by cars at villages and various other points where there are toll stations. It costs about $1.25 for the fifty miles, but the traffic, in spite of that, is very heavy.

There are at present 1,900 people on relief in Owen Sound, comprising 493 families, a few more than last year. The average cost of food per day per person is 12.13 cents.

This is one of the largest steers ever shipped from this district.

The World Day of Prayer was held last Friday in St. John's church, with Mrs. (Rev.) Wolstencroft in the chair The program was carried through as outlined and as the committee had arranged. The attendance was smaller than usual, owing no doubt, largely, to the cold weather. The collection which has been sent to the Interboard Treasurer, Miss Bessie MacMurchy, Toronto, amounted to $2.00. The committee, to arrange the next year's meeting, is as follows: Mrs. W. I. Henry, Mrs. Wolstencroft and Mrs. Chris. Thompson.

Low temperatures are still prevailing in this district, the thermometer hitting 30 below Tuesday morning, moderating by afternoon to 8 degrees above. High winds have drifted the roads full again and from Sunday to date there has not been any traffic on the provincial highways. The county road to Ceylon is still open and motor traffic is still operating between Flesherton and Kimberley. Friday night a road snow plow opened the road from Shelburne to Flesherton and on Saturday morning the north section from Owen Sound to Flesherton opened for traffic, which came to a halt Monday.

Minister of Highways told an audience in Hamilton that the time had not arrived to abolish the speed limit on Ontario highways. But the Minister must know that even if it is not officially abolished it is unofficially demolished.

Roads Still Blocked Visitors Failed to Visit

On invitation the Markdale Y.P.S. were to visit the young people of St. John's United church last evening. No doubt the extremely cold weather was responsible for their adsence. The visiting society was to have given the program, but our young people were not "left in the lurch" as the regular social meeting was held, contests and games were enjoyed, followed by lunch.

"Could we take the kittens to the Zoo, Mummie?"

"Oh, why, darling?"

"Then we could ask the storks to change them for a baby."

The Markdale Hydro Commission has been busy thawing out frozen water pipes by means of electricity. By means of a large transformer mounted on a motor truck, lines are run to the main power lines and are connected up with the pipes in the residences. The current is thus sent into these frozen pipes in a short circuit and heats them between the two attached lines, resulting in completely thawing them, under ground as well, and thus saving the expensive procedure of digging them up.

Wm. Campbell of Dundalk, prominent insurance agent, passed away on Friday with an attack of pneumonia.

Angus McDonald of Saugeen township, Bruce county, had his foot severed in town when the trunk of a tree he was cutting lodged in another tree, bounded back and lit on his foot while he was attempting to escape. He was taken to the Walkerton hospital.

GOOD AIR ESSENTIAL

Millions of cells go to make up the human body. Each cell must have oxygen or it will die. Each cell must get rid of the waste carbon dioxide which it produces or it will perish. The simplest forms of life consist of one cell; they secure the oxygen they require direct from the water in which they live. The human body requires a special arrangement for oxygen to reach all its cells. Air is taken into the lungs; the oxygen of the air is carried from the lungs, by the red corpuscles of the body, to every nook and corner of the body, delivering oxygen to all cells, and picking up and carrying back to the lungs their waste product, carbon dioxide.

It is not so many years since it was believed that the ill effects of poor ventilation were due to lack of oxygen or to an excess of carbon dioxide in the air breathed into the lungs. We know now that this belief was not correct, for even in a poorly ventilated room, under ordinary conditions of living, there is always plenty of oxygen for the needs of the body and never enough carbon dioxide to do any harm. The ill effects of poor ventilation are due, not to chemical changes in the air, but rather to its physical condition. What is harmful is the over-heated, still air that is loaded with moisture, because such air makes it difficult for the body to get rid of its heat, and the condition interferes with the heat regulation of the body.

To express this idea in a positive way, it means that if you are to keep your home ventilated, you must not allow it to become too warm, and that the air must be kept in gentle motion by means of an inlet (window) built on one side of the room, and an outlet opposite (door or window).

Most homes and work places are kept too warm. In England people accustom themselves to living in rooms of about 62 degrees Fahrenheit. We believe that 68 degrees Fahrenheit should be a maximum, but many people complain if the temperature of their living-rooms is not nearly 80 degrees.

One practical problem in the ventilation of the home is that it is difficult, if not impossible to have the temperature comfortable for both sexes at the same time, unless men and women come somewhat closer in their ideas as to what clothing to wear indoors. Obviously, a man with his usual clothing will be unduly warm in a room which is comfortable for a woman in her usual attire.

Fresh air is desirable because it promotes health and a sense of well-being. Lack of fresh air predisposes to infections of the respiratory tract, common colds and pneumonia, which are common in winter when we live in over-heated, stuffy rooms. Maintain the temperature slightly below seventy degrees Fahrenheit and keep the air in very gentle motion; in this way, you will enjoy the benefits of good air.

Game Postponed

Due to the bad roads the second game between Flesherton and Shelburne, on the latter's ice, has not yet been played. Three postponements have been made, the last one Monday evening, when it was found the road was blocked after travelling about a mile from town, the drifts being too heavy to push through. It is unfortunate that the game has had to be postponed so many times, but the fault does not lie with the Flesherton club. However, the game will likely be played this week.
