

Kovac & Tobin

They may be new to Georgetown but divorce lawyers Terrence Tobin and Carolyn Kovac certainly aren't new to the law world.

The husband and wife team recently opened a practice together in downtown Georgetown. Carolyn has been practising law for 19 years and Terrence, who is also a criminal lawyer, has been practising for 17.

"People are scared when they come to see us," Terrence says. "Children, especially, are a huge emotional issue. People like my expertise and Carolyn's."

The key to the couple's professional partnership is their complementary work styles.

"Where one is weak, the other is strong. We rely on each other's strengths," he says. "We make the perfect lawyer when you put us together."

Carolyn is a perfectionist, which is good for cases involving property issues that involve a lot of time and research. Terrence likes to move more quickly, which is important in domestic abuse cases.

The duo is among the few lawyers who accept legal aid certificates.

"It's a huge pay cut, but I think it's something a lawyer should do," he says. "A lawyer has a duty to assist in society. I don't think it's appropriate to turn your back on someone because they can't afford a lawyer."

Carpet Palace

For more than 15 years, the Carpet Palace has been a fixture at the corner of Guelph Street and Adamson Street in Norval. Owned and operated by George Kanichis and Steve Klintsaris, the store is proud to offer a wide variety of flooring options from carpet and area rugs to laminate and hardwood.

In all their years in business, Steve and George have watched the town and their clients grow. Kids who came into their store with their parents years ago are now grown up and coming into the store with their own kids.

The brothers-in-law, who both live in Halton Hills with their families, say good customer service is the cornerstone of their business.

"If a customer comes in and doesn't know what they want, we can lead them in the right direction," George says. "We try to satisfy our customers as best we can."

Steve and George are looking forward to another 15 years of helping the people of Halton Hills with all their flooring needs in their nice new digs, scheduled to open in the near future.

"We believe in keeping business local," George says.

Peel Landscape Depot

It was a busy winter for Peel Garden Centre and Landscape Depot. While the snow-covered ground put a halt to outdoor projects, the landscape supply business installed a 5,000 square-foot indoor stone showroom complete with fireplaces, patio set ups, stone displays and even a fountain.

"We're told it's the largest indoor showroom in all of eastern Canada," says Lorelei Gilchrist, the business's vice-president. "Customers can come in and see each product set up and get ideas for their own projects."

Whether your landscaping plans include doing the work yourself or hiring a contractor to take care of it for you, Peel Garden Centre and Landscape Depot can help.

The business is open to the public and carries a variety of gravels, sand, aggregates, mulches and soils that are available for bulk delivery. It also sells firewood and decorative stone, as well as natural stone and paving stone from companies like Oaks and Newtonbrook, and recently introduced a line of masonry products.

"Our motto is everything you need to complete your construction project under one roof," Lorelei says. "If you come in with a project, you should be able to get everything you need here. If we don't have it, we can get it for you."

Georgetown's Favourite Tire Shop

Halton Hills Rad and Tire is proud to have been named Georgetown's favorite tire shop in this year's Readers' Choice Awards. The boys invite you to stop by and experience Halton Hills Rad and Tire's excellent customer service for yourself.

"We've found that if you treat people right, they'll always come back," Steve says. "We have good service and good prices."

"John and I are a couple of homegrown guys," Steve says. "We've grown up in this community and really enjoy giving back to it."

For 28 years, Halton Hills Rad and Tire has been helping the people of Halton Hills with all their automotive repair needs, from brakes to front ends to tune ups.

"People think that if your name is rad and tire, you only do radiators and tires," Steve says. "We do complete automotive repairs."

The Georgetown-based business is owned and operated by local brothers Steve and John Williams, who run the business with the help of Linda, Allison and Steve's son, Brad, an apprentice mechanic.
