Hospital hosts free menopause seminar

The public is invited to attend a free seminar, All You Wanted to Know about Menopause, on Thursday, April 22, 7 p.m. in Georgetown. Hospital.

This event has been organized by Halton Healthcare Services. The event was made possible through an unrestricted educational grant from Amgen.

Dr. Slem Feroze, Obstetrician and Gynaecologist, on active staff at Halton Healthcare Services will talk about what menopause is, how it affects women, how to proactively achieve an acceptable quality of life and what are the updated approaches and medications.

It will address issues for those near and post menopausal as well as a number of controversial issues surrounding this topic. The presentation will be followed by a question and answer period by Dr. Feroze, a naturopath and an expert in drug and substance abuse.

The seminar will be held in the Georgetown Hospital Activity Room. There will be reduced parking fees for those attending the seminar. Displays will be available from 6:30 p.m.

Call 905-878-2383 ext. 4379 or e-mail healthpromotion@halton-healthcare.on.ca to register and for information.
