HAD FAIR SUM OF MONEY BUT BEGGED FOR A MEAL

Asking Hanover people for a cash contribution must be a rather profitable business for transients—at least an experience of a Hanover man last week would indicate that such was the case. A transient went to A. R. Zummach's service station on Tuesday evening with literally a pocketful of silver and asked if they would exchange five dollars of it for a five-dollar bill. He was accommodated. On Wednesday morning the same man appeared at Mr. Zummach's home about a block away, and asked if they wouldn't give a chap a meal. He didn't know, of course, that the family knew he had at least five dollars with him, so possibly the next time he will go to a further section of the town where people are not likely to know that he carries a fair snm of pocket-money with him. -- Hanover Post.
