LIFE IN A SAMOA ISLE.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON TELLS OF HIS NEW HOME.

The Brilliant Romancer Describes Life in the South Pacific—He Talks of His Novels and His Methods—His Island Home and How Surrounded.

Robert Louis Stevenson emerges so rarely from his island home in the South Seas that whenever he does come out everything that he does and says is attended to with eager curiosity.

He has been making a long visit to Sydney, where he talked freely about the Samoan life. The islanders, he says, are not savages, but an exceedingly simple and primitive people. "My house is entirely isolated in the forest. Here I am, in a patriarchial sense, an employer of labor and the head of a family. When Mrs. Stevenson and I went to Samoa we lived in a very small and comfortable house. We often dined on hard biscuits. The distance from Apia is considerable in a place where there are no roads miles over a track which has been described as a trout stream without the trout. Our house is now a two-storied building, with large verandas, a sitting-room 50 feet long and a sort of hall. All round there is a colony of native houses, where the "boys" live. We have vicious horses, some cows, and a watchdog with softening of the brain. We have any number of cats, which have gone wild in the bush.

"To have a white man would be simply to sow dissension. The white man is always grumbling, and he thinks a deuce of a lot of himself. He teaches the boys tricks they would never dream of, and yet he is always quarrelling with them. Since we got rid of the last white man we have had a much more comfortable experience.

"Mrs. Stevenson manages the garden; Mrs. Strong has all the house boys in her charge, and acts as my amanuensis; and Osbourne runs the plantation. I sit in a corner in reserve for emergencies, and when any difference arises I step forth clothed in all the terrors of justice. In the eyes of the boys I am wrapped round with an air of mystery, and clouds, and thunder. The boys sit around me on the floor while I hear the case and administer justice, and within them all there is a feeling of sympathy for the defendant which is purely Celtic, such as could be found nowhere else outside Ireland."

Mr. Stevenson spoke about his methods of work. "I was thirty-three," he said, "before I could make a living with my pen. Of course, I might have made my living at journalism. But thank God! I did not fall into that trap. Journalism is the school of cheap finish.

"I am a laborious writer," he continued. "I begin work every day at 6 o'clock. I have a theory that no one should write more than three hours a day, but I often work all day long. I find, however, that after three hours my work falls below the mark. I write my chapters over time after time and sometimes of a whole day's work not a sentence will stand.

"In the first place I draw out a skeleton of a story, but that is likely to be changed. I have been three weeks before now over a single chapter. Anthony Trollope used to write a certain fixed amount every day, whether he was in the vein or not, but this was very disrespectful to his art and to his reader. The wonder is that he so often got hold of such good stuff!

"When I am making a point I try to do it in the least possible space. I do not think a reader should be expected to plod through pages of print to find out what I mean. The great difficulty I have is in compressing my matter.

"I can always tell when an author does not write over and over again. The most rapid and fluent writer cannot arrange the mass of material that goes to make up a book without having it out of order here and there. Order is the basis, the charm and the end of literature. Literature is an art that takes place in time. Therefore, the main point is to be certain that you have everything in proper order. That you can never get in the first shot. That is my experience."

In writing historical novels, he said, there is great difficulty about the dialogue. But in the trials, which are his favorite reading, one gets the right touch of dialect, and he has an intimate conviction that in his delight in Old Bailey Sessions papers he had a great predecessor in Charles Dickens. Sir Walter Scott, of course, used them as well.

In every tribe in Samoa there is a bard, and every week the bard of this family celebrates the events of the day at an entertainment which is given in honor of the Stevensons.

The novelist and his relatives sit on mats, while their praises are sung in barbarie fashion, to the accompaniment of rude music and a dance, which is dear to the heart of a Samoan. Or they attend feasts, and, after the custom of the country, carry away with them what they cannot eat.

For some time the only instrument the Stevensons had wherewith to entertain the natives in return was a vile accordeon, but now they possess a hand organ, the fame of which has already spread over the islands in the South Seas. A religious service is also provided for the boys on Sundays.

Mr. Stevenson and his family expect to reside in Samoa as long as they live.

Why Car Wheels Wear Out.

A car wheel wears out because the metal of which it is composed comes away in thin scales. A microscopic examination shows that the continual jarring has a tendency to destroy the coherence of the particles and thus gradually disintegrates the whole. Car wheels long in use become so brittle that a stout blow with a heavy hammer will sometimes cause them to fly into fragments as though they were made of glass.

A Celestial Celebration.

Hi, there!
Ah, there!
John is on a spree.
Merry?
Very.
Tanglefoot beats tea
Hold him?
Scold him?
Hardly. 'Tis the day
Mollcans get gay;
So if John joins in
His crackers to the din,
Drinks beer,
Makes cheer,
Lets his pigtail stream;
Dances,
Prances,
Hears the eagle scream;
Is jailed,
Then bailed,

He will only go through the annual experience of an innumerable caravan of white men who think the First of July was instituted specially for the benefit of bartenders and the distraction of a peace loving public.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

WENT A-FISHING.

The Tale of Two Active Imps on Fishing Bent.

Two active imps went out one summer's day
On fishing bent,
To catch a whale or shark, I heard them say,
Was their intent.

Three lively water sprites who lived below
Perceived the hook
And shrieked with merriment: "Ha, ha! Ho, ho!
Why, only look!

"Those scrubby imps who fly about the earth
Have brought this toy
To catch—to catch—fit cause indeed for mirth—
A water boy!

"If we could play them—if we only could—
Some cunning trick!"
"Well, if we could, be very sure we would!"
"I have it! Quick!

"Fetch up that boot that at the bottom lies—
You know the one—
We'll hook it on—they'll take it for a prize."
'Twas quickly done.

Our fishermen were sure as sure could be
They'd caught a whale.
They even fancied they could almost see
His mighty tail.

And as they tugged and lugged and tugged again
Our gallant elves
All but—so very great they found the strain—
Fell in themselves.

"It's coming now! Hold on, give one tug more!"
Then, with a squish,
Our anglers landed there upon the shore
Their monster fish.

Their faces of amazement, wrath and woe
The water sprites bobbed up from down below
And roared with glee.

"Go home, you foolish imps, go home!" they cried.
"It serves you right!
You'd never catch, if all the year you tried,
A water sprite!"

The Battle of the Waves.

Of all the Swiss lakes the lake of Lucerne has the most irregular shape, its many bays running north or south, east or west. Owing to these windings it is often exposed to violent storms, but while in one bay the waters may be lashed into perfect fury in an adjoining bay not a ripple will disturb the surface. Thus when a strong south wind blows down the bay of Uri the very same wind, turned from its course by the mountains, comes from the west from the bay of Buochs. There is a point just opposite Brunnen where the two sets of waves meet, and then a terrific contest ensues for mastery. At such a moment the spray is driven into the air in vast sheets to a height of 50 feet or more. While the battle rages there may be seen under the shelter of the promontory at Treib several of the lake steamers and a whole fleet of fishing and small boats waiting for the tempest to pass. So violent is the motion that even on large steamers cases of "sea" sickness are not unusual. The experiences gained in facing such dangers have made the boatmen of the lake famous from the earliest times.

THE PRESENT HOT WEATHER!

Its Effects On Babies That Are Teething.

The most critical and dangerous period in baby's life is "teething time." During the intense heat of summer, the process of dentition is often fatal to little ones who are improperly fed. Dysentery and diarrhœa carry off thousands of fair flowers, who, by care and judicious treatment, might have lived. Hundreds of mothers have testified to the fact that Lactated Food was the means of carrying their little ones safely through the dangers of "teething time." When babies are properly nourished they will cut their teeth more rapidly and easily. Lactated Food is the only nourishment in the world that gives strength and heartiness to the puny and languishing child. It is important to know that with a Lactated Food diet from day to day, the bowels and organs of digestion are always in a normal condition, and trouble is passed with safety. Every mother in Canada who has not given Lactated Food a trial is urged to do so. A full sized package will be sent free to any mother who sends her address to the Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal, P.Q.

Colebrook Communications.

COLEBROOK, July 11.—There was a great crowd attended the camp meeting last Sabbath. The afternoon and evening meetings were largely attended; fully eight hundred people at the evening meeting. The Rev. Mr. Winter preached an eloquent sermon from St. Mark VIII.-36. The meetings will be continued through this week in the evening at eight o'clock, and will probably be carried over next Sabbath.

In the excitement at the close of the afternoon meeting Fred. Wilson's horse became frightened and ran away. Fortunately he was near the main road and did no damage, except to his own rig, which was so broken up that it had to be sent to the shop for repairs. Visitors: Mrs. Stanley Bonn and child, from Watertown, at her father's; Mrs. Courtland Wartman, at F. S. Wartman's. The sick are all improving. John Bush is able to be out again. Great preparations are being made to accommodate the crowd on the 12th of July.

A PHYSICIAN'S STORY.

DR. LEWIS BLUNDIN'S STATEMENT UNDER OATH.

Afflicted With Paralysis For Twenty-Five Years—Pronounced Incurable by the Foremost Physicians in America—A Case of World Wide Interest.

From the Philadelphia Times.

Many survivors of the late war left the ranks unwounded, but with broken constitutions; an instance in point is Dr. Lewis D. Blundin, a resident of Hulmeville, Bucks Co., Pa. In relating his experiences and what he had suffered in consequence of the hardships he had encountered, Dr. Blundin said:

"I was born at Bridgewater, Penn., in 1841, and went through the war as private, sergeant and hospital steward in company C, 28th Pennsylvania volunteers. My service was active, and while in Georgia I had an attack of typhoid fever, which left me weak and a ready victim for future disease. My kidneys were then affected and this finally developed into spinal trouble, which lasted through my army service. In 1866 I was mustered out with an honorable discharge and entered the Jefferson medical college as a student. In due time I graduated and removed to Manayunk. One day, after I had graduated, I was lying on a sofa at my home in Manayunk, when I felt a cold sensation in my lower limbs as though the blood had suddenly left them. When I tried to move them I was horrified at the discovery that I was paralyzed from my hips to my toes. The paralysis was complete and a pin, or a pinch of the flesh caused me no pain. I could not move a muscle. I called in Dr. William Todd, of Philadelphia. He made a careful and exhaustive examination of my case, sounding and testing, and finally announced that my trouble was caused by inflammation of the spinal cord, and that I would likely have another stroke of paralysis. I consulted Dr. I. W. Gross and Dr. Pancoast, of Jefferson college, Philadelphia, with the same result. I called in Dr. Moorehouse, of Philadelphia, who said that no amount of medicine would ever prove of the slightest benefit to me.

"One day last September I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I sent for one box. I had always been troubled with a sort of vertigo after my first stroke of paralysis, to such an extent that when I got out of my bed my head would swim, and I had difficulty in saving myself from falling. My appetite was bad, digestive organs ruined, and no assimilation of food. In addition to my many other ailments, rheumatism held a prominent place. By the time I had finished the first box of Pink Pills I was comparatively free from these minor ills. My appetite returned, the digestive organs got down to their daily grind and the rheumatism disappeared. I was much encouraged and immediately sent for half a dozen boxes of the Pink Pills. Relief followed upon relief with astonishing rapidity. First, one ailment would disappear, then another, until the pills got to work upon the foundation stones of my trouble—paralysis. I felt a sense of exhilaration and the general effect was beneficial, becoming more so each day. Noting this fact, I increased the dose from one to two pills after each meal for a few days. Before I had taken the six boxes of pills, I was sitting in my chair one afternoon, when I felt a curious sensation in my left foot. Upon investigation, I found it had flexed, or, in other words, become movable, and I could move it. From that time on my improvement was steady and it was not long before I was walking around on crutches with little or no discomfort. It was three years before taking the Pink Pills that I had been able to use the crutches at any time. My health is daily improving and I feel sure that Pink Pills have done me more good than all the doctors and all the medicine in the country and as they are not costly I can easily afford the treatment."

Dr. Blundin tells of another remarkable cure effected by the use of Pink Pills. One of his comrades in the army was Lewis J. Allan, of Battle Creek, Mich., who has been a sufferer from rheumatism nearly all his life. Mr. Allan is a grandson of Ethan Allan of revolutionary fame. "I know," said Dr. Blundin, "that Mr. Allan could not lift his hands to his head, or even his hands to his mouth, because of chronic rheumatism. He read in a Detroit paper of a wonderful cure made by Pink Pills and bought some. His cure was sudden and complete. Knowing that I was a sufferer from rheumatism, along with my other ills, he wrote me about his recovery and advised me to try them. I was then using them. He said he had perfect control of his arms and hands and could use them freely without experiencing any pain. He added that as a cure for rheumatism the pills were the most complete in the world. My case alone proves that, for I am confident that my greatly benefited condition is due solely to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

Sworn to before me this 15th day of May, 1893.

GEORGE HARRISON, Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect blood builder and nerve restorer, curing such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling therefrom, the after effects of la grippe, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of any nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine company, Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N.Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50. Bear in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form is trying to defraud you and should be avoided. The public are also cautioned against all other so-called blood builders and nerve tonics, put up in similar form intended to deceive. They are all imitations, whose makers hope to reap a pecuniary advantage from the wonderful reputation achieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Ask your dealer for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and refuse all imitations and substitutes.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine company, from either addresses, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

True Philanthropy.

To the Editor of the WHIG.

Please inform your readers that I will mail free to all sufferers the means, by which I was restored to health and manly vigor after years of suffering from nervous weakness. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thanks to heaven, I am now well, vigorous and strong. I have nothing to sell and no scheme to extort money from anyone whomsoever, but being desirous to make this certain cure known to all, I will send free and confidential to anyone full particulars of just how I was cured. Address with stamps, EDWARD MARTIN, (teacher,) P.O. box 143, Detroit, Mich.
