EYRE'S ACQUITTAL.

BY HELEN B. MATHERS.

Mr. Eyre locked and barred the hall door upon the searchers, then returned to his wife's bedroom, and, closing the window, drew the curtains before it.

Here the murderer had stood—What, Diggs? From here he must have seen her asleep in the chair that stood midway between bed and window, beside it the diamonds whose wicked shine in a dullard's eyes might have lit the way to an unprincipled, covetous woman beyond . . . but the gardener Diggs!

Dropping the curtain, Mr. Eyre advanced as though he were acting a part—how easy to aim one blow at yon sleeping shape—to seize the diamonds and escape by the open window—to hide them and return, dragged by the miserable power of the victim over its destroyer—to encounter, Hester Clarke hurrying from the sight upon which she had privily looked—to seize, and fasten the guilt upon her, she keeping silence throughout her trial, knowing that a word would save her! Diggs, the murderer . . mechanically he turned to a cabinet that stood near him, and opened a certain drawer—then brought the light, and stood looking down fixedly on a dim outline traced upon the wood within.

Here the knife had lain that was afterward found in Hester Clarke's possession; but who had placed it there, and did the same hand remove it? He lifted his own, and, as one who makes an experiment, stretched it toward the cabinet; his will making imperious question of his mind, as though he would wrest from it some secret that had been acquired against his knowledge, and must be forced to yield up to his command.

But force of will would not unbar that hidden chamber of his soul, locked even against himself, whose keys he had lost, and his friend found.

"God forgive you." Frank had written, when he had left Mr. Eyre's sick bed to set out on his journey. "I know the truth."

The truth . . . unless brain, ear, and eye mocked Mr. Eyre to-night, he knew that the clew held in Frank's dead hand, out yonder, was worthless; that the mystery of Madcap's death was forever solved, and himself the sport of an illusion that had made the opportunity of a clown.

Hester innocent—for the gardener's overheard words cleared her of guilt—and he, that poor worm, that clod, guilty. A fierce sense of the meanness of the instrument that had compassed so great crime alone moved Mr. Eyre's soul as, in that silent chamber, he realized his own bitter, black mistake.

Come with me now to the storming of the trenches before Sevastopol—see a sunny-haired young fellow leading his men on . . . see him struck by a cannon-ball and reel from his saddle, while his followers trample him beneath their feet as they rush onward to victory . . . see how, amid a storm of shot and shell, a man rushes forward, and, lifting that yet warm body up, bears it away to a place of safety, where he tears aside the scarlet coat, only to find that the heart beneath is still—the heart that holds the lost clew to Madcap's death!

"Silent, with closed lips, unconscious of bravery," so young that his mother in heaven could not have forgotten his likeness, yet, the soldier lay—beaten in the fight, but with a gleam of victory shining athwart his wide open blue eyes and shattered features that, to one who loved him, might have seemed more nobly beautiful than the glance that had been his in life. Yet as enemy rather than friend, Mr. Eyre lifted that lifeless body, and gently laid it down. He and the man before him had been comrades, sworn to one cause, and it had been no part of Mr. Eyre's scheme that either should die before it was won. No pity for that gallant fate stirred him—no memory of how he had loved his friend, and stolen his Madcap from him softened his heart; only a bleak and a bitter rage filled his soul that, after three long years of pursuit, in which he had wasted the whole forces of his brain and body, he had at last come up with the pursued to find him—dead.

"He should have been shot through the heart as a deserter, not buried as a hero," Mr. Eyre thought, as he folded his cloak across Frank, and left him alone in the rude hut, while he himself went to search for those proofs of Lord Lovel's identity that he must take with him to Lovel when he bore the body home for burial.

He carried his life in his hand that night, but, as if he had been Belial's self, no harm touched him, and day was breaking when he found Frank's Colonel—dying—but able to recognize Mr. Eyre as an old friend, and to answer his questions about Frank.

Lord Lovel had joined quite recently, and seemed to court death. He had confided to him, a few days previously, a packet of papers that he desired might be sent to Mr. Eyre if he fell. These papers were on the dying man's body at that moment, and as Mr. Eyre drew them from above his heart, a fierce throb of hope animated him; for here, perhaps, Frank, though dead, spoke to him the truth.

As he tore them open, the dying man suddenly cried out, "Has any one seen Methuen? Take care there's no mistake . . . their own mothers couldn't tell" . . . then died, with the unfinished sentence on his lips.

A withered bunch of flowers . . . a faded ribbon . . . a pale photograph of a girl's face made out of sunshine . . . half-a-dozen letters written in childish letters, and signed, "your little sweetheart, Madcap" . . . one or two notes, of which the ink was fresher, and the tone sedater, with the name of "Eyre" added to that of "Madcap" . . . these and no more.

Not a word to his friend—not a syllable to call back the awful burden he had laid upon him . . . and as, later, Mr. Eyre stood looking down upon that shrouded clay, he could have spurned it with his foot in loathing.

When the rude coffin had been made ready, Mr. Eyre and his dead man set out for home, his mind a sullen blank, that last stage of the impotent rebellion against God that had for three years consumed him.

In Frank's name, he telegraphed to Lovel news of his own death, certain that Josephine would immediately communicate the news to Hester, so that he would probably find the two women together on his arrival. No matter what hidden clew Frank had held, in his soul Mr. Eyre knew Hester Clarke to be guilty; and it was with the implacable determination to convict her yet, that he had approached his house that night, expecting to find her within it.

And on his very threshold he had been met by this sordid reading of the tragedy; a mere clew to which had made him a wanderer on the face of the earth for three long years, a clew that had made him put even Hester aside as one to be dealt with later, and now if Diggs or Josephine were guilty—if—but what waste of time to speculate, when by that hour of the following day the man would be in the hands of justice, and probably his confession made.

BEWARE

Of the continued use of mercury and potash for the treatment of blood and skin diseases, they never cure, and nearly always injure or totally ruin the general health.

A WELL-KNOWN DRUGGIST,

I have seen a great many cases cured with Shaker Blood Syrup—some who have tried all sorts of treatment. In fact, I have never known it to fail when taken properly. I sell a large quantity of it, and for all diseases that are dependent on blood poison or skin humor. It cures pimples and blotches on the skin, and makes the complexion fair and rosy. As for blood taint, there is no sinh word as fail. It cures cases that have long withstood other sorts of treatment, and without any of the terrible results that generally follow mercurial and other so-called cures.

JOHN STANWOOD,
Druggist, East Boston, Mass.

THE SHAKER BLOOD SYRUP

Cures completely Syphilis, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Cancer, Catarrh, Ulcers and Skin and Blood diseases of every description.

Sold everywhere. $1 per bottle or 6 for $5.

Advertising Cheats!!!

"It has become so common to write the beginning of an article in an elegant, interesting manner,

"Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such,

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

"To induce people

"To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else."

"THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

"Religious and secular, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines.

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness

"And ability

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation."

DID SHE DIE?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years,"

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A DAUGHTER'S MISERY.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

"From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and nervous debility,

"Under the care of the best physicians,

"Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief,

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

FATHER IS GETTING WELL.

"My daughters say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters."—A LADY of Utica, N.Y.

Nerviline, What is it?

Polson's NERVILINE is a combination of the most potent pain relieving substances known to medical science. The constant progress made in this department of science points upward and onward. Nerviline is the latest development in this movement, and embodies the latest discoveries. For neuralgia, cramps, pain in the head—external, internal and local—Nerviline has no equal. Expend 10c. in the purchase of a sample bottle of Nerviline and be convinced of its marvellous power over pain. Sold at Polson's. Large bottles 25c. at all druggists.

ABOUT US ALL.

Constipation makes half the people sick. You are dizzy, have bad breath and taste, can't eat, can't sleep well, head aches, nervous, irritable. Can't work it off, can't rest it off. Well, your Liver must be invigorated. Your food must digest properly. Now save a doctor's bill with a bottle of Zo-re-sa. You will be surprised with a few doses. Zoresa is a positive cure for these troubles, because it acts upon the Stomach and Liver and through the Liver the system and Bowels must be regulated. Ask for a sample of H. Skinner.

Holloway's Pills.

Invalids distracted by indigestion and discouraged in their search for its remedy should make trial of this never-failing medicine. A lady, long a martyr to dyspeptic tortures, writes that Holloway's Pills made her feel as if a burden had been taken off her. Her spirits, formerly low, have greatly improved; her capricious appetite has given place to healthy hunger; her dull, sick headache has departed, and gradually so marvellous a change has been effected, that she is altogether a new creature, and again fit for her duties. These Pills may be administered with safety to the most delicate. They never act harshly, nor do they ever induce weakness; they rightly direct deranged and control excessive action.

Important.

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its forms and collecting no pay until permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has placed the remedy on sale by all druggists in the United States, Canada and England, in this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost. Ask your druggist for a free book or send six cents for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure Manufacturing Co., Ogdensburg, N.Y

To increase the weight of the body, invigorate the system, revitalize the exhausted and depressed, is the true object of medical science. The digestive organs must be in a healthy condition if we wish to secure this desirable result, and no remedy yet discovered has proved so effectual in accomplishing this as FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMP. It contains the Phosphorous to build up the nervous system and all the fat producing properties of Flax-seed to enrich the blood and supply the animal economy with the elements for reconstruction. For sale at Wade's and the Pharmacy, W. J. Wilson.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold. A few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your Lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by W. J. Wilson.

A Cure for Cuts, Sores, Etc.

The finest healing compound under the sun is McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. There is no sore but will succumb to its wonderful healing properties. It is an invaluable dressing for scalds, festers, etc. Price twenty-five cents. Chown's drug store, Princess street.

Good the Year Round.

At all seasons, when the system is foul and the digestive powers feeble, or the liver or kidney inactive. Burdock Blood Bitters is required.

The question, whether young women shall pursue the same line of studies as their brothers, seems to find its chief objection in their different physical constitution. Arguments on this subject are finely handled on both sides; but the perfect adaptation of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the cure of ailments attending the feminine organism needs no argument; its works are its proof.

In fresh cases of Catarrh relief will be speedly and cures quickly follow the use of Dr. Starr's Catarrh Conqueror. In long standing chronic cases a cure can always be relied on by perseverance in its use a few weeks. Sold by W. J. Wilson, Druggist; price 50c.

To resist Malaria, Ague, Fevers, Headache, Colds, Kidney Disease, Pain in the Side or Back, Constipation or Costiveness, keep Zo-re-sa handy, and take dose twice a week. Its acts upon the Liver and Stomach like magic.

There are lots of people going around grumbling, and half sick at the Stomach all the time; who might be well and happy, if they only used Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters occasionally. It is a splendid Blood Purifier. All Druggists, 50 cents.

The Best Tooth Powder is Flint's Saponaceous Tooth Powder. The Peerless Dentifrice, for cleansing and whitening the teeth. It has no equal. Sold by W. J. Wilson Druggist. Large size 25c.

The Quickest Thing on Record.

—Is Fluid Lightning for Neuralgia, Headache, Toothache, etc. It does not blister the skin; requires but one application to banish all pain magically without using any greasy liniment or cartying your head in a poultice for weeks. Try a twenty-five cent bottle from A. P. Chown, druggist.
