DAY DREAMS.

I've been among the clover
West humming in a row;
The butterflies in scarlet coats
Danced all to shine above;
The air was a song was singing
That filled the dreaming 8 were
As I my heart itself was dreaming
To the song of happy hours.

I saw the hills above me
The brown hills of West
The Army Farm that nestled
Where the stream grows broad and clear
The lights and shades went on and
Across the fields of rye.
As the hopes and hues that tremble
When Love himself is nigh.

I call to mind the faces
So oft, yes so dear
That flattered round my heart, and
When you yourself drew near
A cushion on the sea bows
A lily on the stream
I scarcely really and yet
The image of a dream.

Time has not changed the faces
Of that remembered hour
Where half of hope has blossomed
To true and perfect flower
And because great the way, love
Our happy footsteps tread
Is sunny as the past, love
And sunny to the end

Burdock's Pills.—Wear of Life.—Derangement of the liver is one of the most common causes of dangerous diseases, and the most prolific source of those melancholy feelings which are worse than death itself. The most shattered constitutions may derive benefit from Holloway's Pills, which will regulate disordered action, brace the nerves, increase the energy of the intellectual faculties, and revive the failing memory. By attentively studying the instructions for taking these Pills and rapidly putting them in practice, the most despairing invalids feel confident of a perfect recovery.

CYCLONE IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Graphic Description of the Terrible Destruction in Rochester, Minn. Harrowing Scenes.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The citizens of Rochester have passed as evil a quarter of an hour as ever fell to the experience of man, and to this succeeded a night of horror, such as twelve men used to the horrors of a stricken field wince and shudder. Not until after 6 o'clock were the residents the least alarmed, which is the stranger when it is remembered that a month ago cyclonic fury vented itself but a few miles from here. By 7:30 the southwest quarter had assumed that sickly greenish tint which serves as a drop curtain for such dire work. In a few moments the green changed to copper, then to bronze, with whitish edges and lateral lines of flying scud athwart it in every direction. Next was noted that dreadful inverted cone, with height seemingly immeasurable and motionless appalling. With the speed of a cannon ball it came down the valley of meandering Silver Creek, and when within half a mile of the doomed city its roar could be heard. Collars were rushed to by almost every one, but a few of the harbor ones stayed at points of vantage near the edges and witnessed

THE ATTACK OF THE RESISTLESS MONSTER.

Full 300 feet in the air it rose, and in its whirling mass were trees and stones, animals and debris of every conceivable description. The dome of the Court House melted from view, though touched merely by the horn of the wind. Trees snapped like cat o' nine tails, or, stranger still, were twisted as cork screws in the hands of a Titan and lifted bodily into the air with tons of earth clinging to their roots. Animals were dashed against stone walls and their backs and bones crushed to powder. The roar of the fierce surge was like nothing ever heard before. The atmosphere was surcharged with electricity, and pellets of rain and hail were driven vertically as if shot from a rifle. Fifteen minutes of this terror and then a silence. By 8 o'clock the stars were shining as peacefully as if cyclones were unknown; but the silence was soon broken by the groans of the dead, dying and sorely wounded. The northern part of the city, fortunately not the larger or thickly settled portion, had been changed from a habitable place to a maze of mangled matter, a desert with signs of woe and terror scattered everywhere. Not a house stood where 300 had been at 7 o'clock. All night long by the lifful light of lanterns at first and later aided by the moon, they toiled.

SCENES OF HORROR

mangled, cut, torn and bruised, some breathing, some breathless, were taken out. By sunrise those of the dead or wounded had been borne to private houses. The dead were taken away by friends or undertakers. Physicians and nurses were soon to the fore, and everything possible done to alleviate suffering. The wounded were in a horrible plight, and a walk through the hall where they lie, even now, makes one faint. The cuts and bruises are generally about the upper part of the body, and children faces are seen with wounds on them so ghastly that even the physician shed tears as he uses sponge and needle. Into the cuts dirt and even powdered stone were forced in many instances. Collars seemed of little or no protection, since, while none of the houses above them blew away, those to the west were crushed bodily into their depths. Think of two mothers, as late as noon to-day,

SEEKING FRANTICALLY FOR LOST CHILDREN,

seeing three who corresponded in size with those they sought, but all so marred with dirt and blood and wounds that even maternal eyes could not tell whether to say "mine" or not. The scenes around the demolished houses were heartrending; men, women and children crying bitterly, and almost bereft of reason. An absolute doubt exists in many cases as to where the site of their home was; even a dreadful uncertainty and a haunting dread, and through it all the breeze sighing gently, the moon smiling calmly and the men working heavily. Queer freaks there were, of course. Here stands a wall, and on it hangs an unbroken looking-glass, while a heavy stove, crushed into fragments, lies on the floor near by. There, swaying to and fro in the breeze is the family rocking chair while a few feet from it a horse lies

MANGLED AND DEAD.

A feather bed yonder twisted like a rope and touching its edge a student's lamp, with even the chimney intact. Down near the river stands the large Cole mill, with a cyclonic bite taken from its western end. To the south of it is a train of eight loaded cars turned and twisted as if of straw, while in the race at the northern side are two more cars blown bodily from the track and into the water. The owner of the mill was lifted fifty feet vertically and hurled against a bank and killed. Not a bone in his body was left unbroken. Rochester, as every one knows, was a beautiful city, and as much on account of its trees as anything. A score of years will not restore its pristine loveliness in this direction. Some of the streets in the best part of the city are impassable, and tearing up or down them one sees nothing but a tangled mass of trunks and foliage jammed across the roadway.

It is very instructive to witness the astonishing effects of nature's medicine, viz.: medical electricity. When science goes hand-in-hand with the physician most wonderful results manifested. Rheumatisms of many years standing beg for mercy and throw away their crutches; neuralgia, the curse of many a happy home, flies like smoke before the wind; nervousness, of every kind, debility of the worst description, the hypo-heared mopster that fills many of our graves, is immediately relieved and permanently cured by the help of the scientific discovery. Norman's Electric Belts, Bands, and Insoles. Mr. Norman has perfected his belts, till now they are peers of the whole list of known remedial agents. W. J. Wilson, "The Pharmacy," 183 Princess Street is agent in Kingston; he will be pleased to show testimonials from several in the city and vicinity to those who wish further proof of their efficacy.

Don't buy

Worthless remedies. Don't waste your money, but look into the merits of Polson's Nervoline as the best, quickest, cheapest, and surest remedy for all kinds of pain. It only costs 10 cents. Even if no good, you cannot be a great loser, as a 10 cent trial bottle will convince you at once that you never have used anything so good. Nervoline cures vomiting, cholera, dysentery, cramps, neuralgia, headaches, and the best of embrocating oils is obtained from nervoline. Don't wait, but go to King's drug store and get a 10 or 25 cent bottle of Nervoline—Polson's Nervoline.

FARMING STATISTICS.

A Further Report from the Ontario Bureau of Statistics—The Prospects of the Season.

The area under wheat this year is 1,676,343 acres; the estimated produce 26,759,439 bushels, and the average yield per acre 15.6 bushels, but later returns will probably reduce this estimate. Last year the area under wheat was 1,773,337 acres; the produce, 40,924,201 bushels, and the average yield per acre 23 bushels. The total area of fall wheat sown, as returned by township assessors for this year, was 1,170,289 acres, of which 88,734 are reported as having been ploughed up or re sown. The breadth of spring wheat sown is nearly the same as last year.

The returns made by farmers on the 15th of June showed that they had in reserve at that date 5,453,485 bushels of old wheat, or fully six months supply for the whole Province. The quantity held by millers and stored in warehouses has not been ascertained, but it is not large.

The area of barley is less than last year by 91,000 acres, and the estimated produce by 3,670,000 bushels. In the western counties of the Province it was injured by the excessive rainfall of June and the first half of July, and the bulk of it is not a good sample. In the counties of York, Durham, Northumberland and Prince Edward a large acreage has been reaped and housed in excellent condition.

The acreage under oats is larger this year than last year, and the crop is reported to be an excellent one in all parts of the Province. Like other cereals, it is about two weeks later than usual in ripening. The estimated product is 3,626,000 bushels more than last year and the average yield is nearly 40 bushels per acre.

Rye is only moderately good. Two winter variety fared better than the Fall wheat, but the Spring rye was injured by rains and the stand was light.

Peas has been a good crop in the northern and north eastern counties, but in the West Midland and Lake Erie counties it was scalded or drowned out by the rains. The area is somewhat less than last year, but the estimated produce is 773,000 bush. more.

Corn was planted late, and the wet weather of June and July led great injury to it. In some sections of the Lake Erie counties, where this crop is chiefly grown, it was drowned out by the heavy rains, and excepting on high lands its condition at the beginning of the month was generally very poor. The area of growing crop has doubtless been considerably reduced by the unfavourable weather. The bean crop is in a more hopeful condition, as also is buckwheat. The total area under corn, beans and buckwheat is shown by the tables to be 313,013 acres, against 276,297 acres last year.

The crop of hay and clover is doubtless the largest ever grown in the country, and the bulk of it has been well cured and safely housed. The area was 2,338,521 acres, and the estimated produce 4,127,419 tons, against 1,825,800 acres and 2,030,626 tons last year. It will be remembered that last year the clover was almost completely ruined by winter exposure and spring frosts, which fully accounts for the smaller area and the lighter yield as compared with this year. The second crop of clover was making fine growth at the beginning of the month, but more recent information gives ground to the fear that in many localities the seed will be destroyed by the midge. This new pest is rapidly extending to all parts of the Province.

Roots made slow progress in the early part of the season in consequence of the excess of rainfall, but the reports show that in the last half of July they made rapid and healthy growth. The chief difficulty experienced has been to keep the weeds in check. The area under potatoes is 167,831 acres, against 161,700 last year, and under carrots, mangolds and turnips 127,198 acres, against 104,369 last year.

The fruit crop is to a large extent a failure in all parts of the Province. With the exception of plums and small fruit, there will hardly be sufficient for home consumption. The trees are, however, in a healthy state generally, and have made a fine growth of young wood. Black Knot is rapidly killing the cherry trees, and in some districts the plum trees also. The total area under orchard and garden this year, as collected by township assessors, is 203,846 acres. Last year's return, which was in part estimated, was 213,846 acres.

The area of cleared or improved land in the Province this year is 10,587,688 acres, of which 7,743,627 acres are under field crops and orchard and garden. Last year the area of cleared land was 10,172,712 acres, of which 7,326,819 acres were under crops and orchard and garden. It thus appears that, without taking account of flax and tobacco, 27 per cent. of the improved land is in pasture or fallow this year, against 28 per cent. last year.

A return of the dairy butter produce of last year shows that the quantity made was 33,442,123 lbs.; but a large number of farmers were unable to fill the schedule under this head, and it is probable that the quantity given does not represent more than 70 per cent. of the actual production—possibly not so much.

There are in the Province this year 39 creameries, or 13 more than last year. The produce of 17 of these, from the opening of the season to the 31st of July, was 230,938 lbs., of which 217,855 lbs., sold for $48,146. The number of cheese factories is 626, which is 131 more than the number reported to the Bureau last year. The produce of 352 factories, that have made returns for the same period as the creameries, was 10,853,557 lbs., and of this quantity 8,431,372 lbs. was sold, realizing the sum of $900,210. The quantity of cheese on hand at the 352 factories on the 1st of August was 2,402,135 lbs.

Failing!

That is what a great many people are doing. They don't just know what is the matter, but they have a combination of aches and pains, and each month they grow worse.

The only sure remedy yet found is SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS, and this by rapid and thorough assimilation with the blood purifies and enriches it, and rich, strong blood flowing to every part of the system repairs the wasted tissues, drives out disease and gives health and strength.

This is why SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS will cure kidney and liver diseases, consumption, rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers &c.

Office of Edward Elliott, Wholesale and Retail Grocer, Cor. Henry and Lagauchetiere Sts. Montreal, Nov. 9th, 1882.

I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and for several weeks could eat nothing and was growing weaker every day. I tried SULPHUR AND IRON BITTERS, and am happy to say I now have a good appetite and am much better in every way.
