PRICEVILLE

A fine union of the two branches of the agricultural classes was held by Mr. Cooper of Markdale and Mrs. Shearer of the domestic science and culinary department. In the community singing Mrs. Shearer was later constrained to remark that she had not heard such hearty singing for some time. In her remarks she lamented the fact of the poor attendance of the young men in comparison to that of the ladies' classes, and predicted that in the future the gentler sex would supersede them. Tea and sandwiches were served at the close.

Again on Friday afternoon the men were invited to a program given by the literary section. Miss Sadie Oliver presided and called upon an orchestra of Mrs. G. Whyte with violin Miss Mary McKinnon with guitar and Mrs. Jos. Harrison at the piano. Miss Mather gave a reading, Jas. Hill a recitation "Courting by Proxy Not Advisable."
