GOLD FLAKE CUT PLUG
It is made by a new and original process, through which the rank aroma is extracted and the sweet Aroma and Natural Flavor are retained. It is made from pure sun-cured, Bright Virginia Leaf, without the aid of coloring or injurious compounds. It is cut ready for use and neatly packed in tin foil, in compact 4 ounce packages. It will keep in any climate and will not burn the tongue.
As dealers are slow to take hold of a new thing, however much its merit, until there is a demand for it, I have determined to place it directly within the reach of all. For the next ninety days, where it cannot be obtained of local dealers, I will send two sample packages (4 oz. each) post-paid, to any address, on receipt of 40cts (postage stamps or currency). THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 4.

SWEET WIND OF EVE.

Sweet wind of eve! around my window praying
With blue forget-me-nots and roses crimson blown
On fragrant fluttering breeze! perchance amid thy straying
Through wander where my dreams, my fonder thoughts are flown!

Sweet wind of eve! oh may thy soft caresses,
Thy purest sighs of love still breathe around her tresses,
On her fair neck of snow unroll her shining tresses,
And happy, faint and sick, amid her golden hair

Sweet wind of eve! oh whisper to her sleeping
In murmuring music low, thy dreamy melody
While I in tears and prayers, my lonely vigil keeping,
Industrious kneel, and sing of her so far from me.

HON. E. C. INGERSOLL.

THE FUNERAL OBSEQUIES—ORATION OF COL. BOB INGERSOLL.

Washington, June 3.—The Hon. Eben C. Ingersoll's remains were buried at Oak Hill Cemetery just before sunset on Tuesday evening, in the midst of a terrible thunderstorm and pouring rain. The funeral services were held at his late residence, and were unusual and impressive. The house was crowded almost to suffocation, nearly all the distinguished men in Washington being present. The body lay in a velvet casket, sat upon two velvet pedestals in the centre of the long saloon-parlor, the windows of which were darkened, and the chandeliers were blazing with light. The family and relatives sat about the casket, and Robert G. Ingersoll stood at its head when the lid was being screwed down. Then, drawing from his pocket a few pages of manuscript he laid it upon the coffin lid and commenced to read. His voice trembled with emotion, and much that he said was scarcely audible. It was a touching tribute of brotherly affection, and the eulogy upon the dead man's life and character was expressed in the very highest art of eloquence of which Colonel Ingersoll is the master. The love between the brothers was always a matter of comment among their associates, and it was the voice of their affection which spoke. The address was about ten minutes long.

The following is the oration of Colonel Ingersoll, which was received by all present with marks of deep and sincere feeling and sympathy:

My Friends: I am going to do that which the dead felt promised he would do for me. The loved and loving brother, husband, father, friend, died where manhood's morning almost touches noon, and while the shadows still were falling toward the West. He had not passed on life's highway the stone that marks the highest point, but, being weary for a moment, he laid down by the wayside, and, using his burden for a pillow, fell into that dreamless sleep that kisses down his eyelids still. While yet in love with life and raptured with the world he passed to silence and pathetic dust. Yet, after all, it may be best, just in the happiest, sunniest hour of all the voyage, while eager winds are kissing every sail, to dash against the unseen rock, and, in an instant, hear the billows roar—a sunken ship. For whether in midsea or among the breakers of the further shore, a wreck must mark at last the end of each and all. And every life, no matter if its every hour is rich with love, and every moment jeweled with a joy, will, at its close, become a tragedy as sad and deep and dark as can be woven of the warp and woof of mystery and death. This brave and tender man, in every storm of life, was oak and rock, but in the sunshine he was vine and flower. He was the friend of all heroic souls. He climbed the heights and left all superstitions far below, while on his forehead fell the golden dawning of a grander day. He loved the beautiful, and was with color, form, and music touched to tears. He sided with the weak, and with a willing hand gave alms with loyal heart, and with the purest hand he faithfully discharged all public trusts. He was a worshipper of liberty, a friend of the oppressed. A thousand times have I heard him quote the words, "For justice all place a temple and all seasons summer." He believed that happiness was the only good reason, the only torch, just as the only worshipper, humanity the only religion, and love the priest. He added to the sum of human joy, and were everyone for whom he did some loving service to bring a blossom to his grave, he would sleep beneath a wilderness of flowers. Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word; but in the night of death hope sees a star, and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing. He who sleeps here, when dying, mistaking the approach of death for the return of health, whispered with his latest breath, "I am better now." Let us believe, in spite of doubts and dogmas, and fears and fears, that these dear words are true of all the countless dead. And now to you, who have been chosen from among the many men he loved, to do the last sad office for the dead, we give his sacred dust. Speech cannot contain our love. There was—there is—no gentler, stronger, manlier man.

A Brutal Assault.

Patrick Slattery, a Canadian teamster, aged twenty-three years, was arrested last evening by Sergeant York and Patrolman Matchett, of the first precinct, and locked up in No. 1 station, on a charge of assault with intent to do bodily harm. The complainant is Anna Hinckley, the keeper of a saloon and bagnio on Canal Street. It seems that Slattery came into her place and had been drinking. She did not enjoy his company very much and asked him to go away. He declined and she threatened to summon the police, whereupon he seized a heavy beer tumbler which was standing on the bar and struck her in the face. The blow was a savage one and of sufficient force to shiver the glass into fragments. Anna was knocked down and badly cut about the eyes and face. Dr. B. H. Daggett found the ball of her left eye punctured by a piece of glass and the eye slowly oozing out, causing great pain. Her nose was split open and there was also a deep gash in her left cheek. The woman will recover, but it is probable that she will lose the sight of her left eye.—Buffalo Courier.

ORANGE AND GREEN.

(Ottawa Herald.)

A Montreal paper takes objection to the Orange Association walking in the Vice-regal procession at Kingston. We cannot conceive what good could come of attempting to prevent them so appearing. As a matter of fact we are rather pleased than otherwise that all divisions of the social mass in the Limestone City should have united to do honor to the Governor-General and his royal wife. Thank goodness, one occasion in a lifetime was found when bigotry, intolerence and hereditary hatred were forgotten, and Orange and Green partizans walked peacefully under their banners in the same procession. If we had our way, they should never walk otherwise, and now that they have discovered that they can meet each other without flying at throats we hope the experience will not be forgotten, but other occasions are frequently found, when they can do so over and over again. While we deplore the lack of education and good taste which makes the existance of religious parties possible in this age, we nevertheless insist that a man has a perfect right to be an Orangeman, if he please. He may display offensive devices, delight in lively tunes and beating of drums. All these things, if we regard them properly are devoid of the power to offend a wise man. Men should not allow their passions to reduce them to the level of bulls and turkey-cocks who go to war with red rags. By doing so they only show themselves on a par with these creatures. We rejoice that these people have walked together, and we hope to see them unite still more, and to go on learning the pleasure of tolerating each other, till finally the strife will cease, and a union of good-will take the place of the hatreds and heart burning of the sad old times. The people of Kingston did well, and we congratulate both parties for the honorable and sensible way in which they conducted themselves on the occasion of His Excellency's visit.

A Great Strike.

Pittsburg, June 3.—The great iron workers, strike throws out of employment in this city and in Alleghany about 40,000 workmen. It affects not only the mill hands, but also the coal diggers and men employed in other connections with the mills. Yesterday 200 puddlers marched to Hussey, Bowe & Co's steel works and ordered the employees, numbering 500, including 16 puddlers, to stop work. The men promised they would work at night. T[illegible]kers ordered the men at other [illegible]. The capital that will be [illegible] strike lasts is estimated at $25,000,000 in this county alone, besides $2,000,000 at Youngstown, Ohio, and 2,500 men, $2,500,000 at Sharon, Pa., and about 1,000 men, and $1,500,000 at Newcastle, Pa., and 500 men. There are dozens of other places in Eastern Ohio Virginia and Western Pennsylvania, where the iron mill owners belong to the Western Iron Manufacturers' Association, who pledged their honor not to take any action not endorsed by all appointed to take charge of their side of the case.

We know hundreds of cases it has completely cured, and where all other medicines had failed. No other remedy can show one half as many permanent cures. Now to give you satisfactory proof that Dr King's New Discovery will cure you of Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Consumption, severe Coughs and Colds, Hoarseness, or any Throat or Lung disease, if you will call at J. G. King, successor to E. H. Parker Market Square, Kingston, you will get a bottle.

THE PREMINENT REMEDY.—No one disputes the fact that, whether as a laxative or cathartic, Castor Oil stands preeminent as the mildest and most efficient that can be administered. It not only thoroughly cleanses the system, but at the same time has a healing property peculiarly its own. Especially is it unequalled in cases of chronic constipation, or a stoppage. Moreover it is par excellence, the medicinal regulator which best agrees with children. But everybody says it is so nasty. So it was until Scott & Bowne's Palatable Castor Oil was put on the market. They have deprived it of its unpleasantness, and placed it within the reach of all. Only 25 cents a bottle.

NASAL CATARRH, (no matter of how long standing,) a cold in the Head or Throat, Difficult Breathing, Dizziness, Headache, Deafness, Watery Acrid and Purulent Discharges from the Head and Throat, Stopping, Clogging, Fullness, Ringing or Roaring Noises in the Head, Constant Dropping into the Throat, disagreeable Hemming, Hawking and Spitting, Offensive Breath, and Nasal Twang. DR. SYKES: I am to day truly thankful that [illegible] your very simple and [illegible] Catarrh remedy. For many years I have suffered from the Catarrh—the disease being brought on by a too persistent effort in singing. I had laid myself on the shelf, having received no benefit from the various numerous remedies which I had tried. A few trials of your remedy relieved me and I at once and now after a three months trial I am able to sing with a clear voice and ease that astonished me. I wish you great success and shall not fail to recommend it wherever I see a need of its use. Respectfully yours.
