SOWING SEEDS OF PERENNIAL FLOWERS

Seeds of perennial flowers may be sown now. The seedbed should be made in a position where it is shaded from the afternoon sun. The surface soil should be raked very fine and the seeds sown in drills, the depth of sowing depending on the size of the seeds. The larger ones should be well covered but the small ones need practically no covering. The beds need careful watering and weeding and when the seedlings are large enough they should be transplanted so as to make good plants to put into permanent beds in the fall.

Trip up Saguenay

deepest river, rimmed by a palisade of rock on either side, mile after mile.

These walls were a changing panorama of greens, browns and distant purple, simply breath-taking in its vastness and rough beauty. Frequently lacy veils streamed down the precipitous rock, where small streams descended in a lather of foam.

Frequently small farm buildings could be discerned nestled among the hills, or perched on their tops. But they appeared to be farms that would be deserted if located in Collingwood township.

Occasionally there was a breath of pine scent that floated out over the water, from a riverside sawmill at the mouth of the huge valleys that swept down to the tidewater.

Entering a large basin where the river broadened a bit, the boat's siren let out a blast, and echoes roared and answered so long that one wondered if they would ever cease. It was the famous Echo Bay.

But the high moment of the trip was when the two boats circled and turned around the foot of the great Cape Trinity and Eternity, set among the towering mountains of rock in one of the finest theatres of nature to be found anywhere. This great rock rises 2000 feet sheer out of the water and is said to go down 1000 feet under the water in a straight drop.

The boats were dwarfed by the grandeur of this vast cape, jutting out into the water, like a great hand rising out of the timeless depths of the river, and pointing heavenward, defying times change, destruction and decay. This great rock, geologists tell us in of the oldest formation in the world. It was formed when time was first in the making, before the Creator had made primal man, and stands firm and unshaken to-day.

High on its side has been erected a snow-white image of the Virgin Mary, giving visible expression to the spirit of worship engendered by this great piece of handiwork of the Great Architect.

Here in the heart of old Canada, the great Capes, Trinity and Eternity have become famous the world over. Their setting beside a brooding, sullen lake. rimmed by rocky ramparts, far from the sign boards, motor highways, cities and roar and racket of modern life, is one of surpassing, vivid natural grandeur. And the boat's siren seemed to stir the spirits that might haunt such a rendezvous. The echoe became a roaring, bellowing tumult, sweeping and rbeberating about the bay, and finally sinking to a sullen muttering, and dying out after several minutes. The cackle of the folk on board never permitted us to hear the end of this echo.

And so, we again turned our bow up the St. Lawrence on the vast waterway which laps the shore at Thornbury saying farewell to the chip-strewn Saguenay. These chips were very interesting. At first we took them for leaves, but closer scrutiny revealed them to be peelings from the isolated pulpwood camps along the shore, which the rising tide had claimed.

Gradually the rugged grandeur of the St. Lawrence shore subsided, and the boat passed through more and more fertile country, until we were passing through as fine farmlands as one could desire—but through it all the atmosphere of quaint Quebec: a land of soaring church spires, outdoor ovens, quaint wells, whitewashed buildings, and contented habitants.

Back again to the great city of Montreal, with its beautiful mountain, its encircling rivers, bathing beaches, boating, and winding highways—in the midst of enjoying Dominion Day, even as the home folk were doing in Meaford at the same time.

A day in Toronto, and then the greatest "kick" of all: back home in the squeaking, writhing, out-of-date cars as the uneven tracks twisted this way and that—back to Thornbury, and good old Grey county, where one finds friends and work; where Earl Shaw grins at one as he comes up the platform, and Ralph Pulfer accepts both check and stub which we have familiarly removed from our own baggage; back home again to where even the dog wiggles an ecstatic welcome.

Folks, it's mine to have a holiday, but the bests part of it all is just: "Comin' home again!"

The teacher was explaining to the class the meaning of the word "recuperate." "Now, Tommy," she said to a small boy. "When your father has worked hard all day, he is tired and worn out, isn't he?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then, when night comes, and his work is over for the day, what does he do?"

"That's what mother wants to know." Tommy explained.

Acheson Re-Union

In spite of the wet weather, about 150 members and guests of the Acheson clan gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Christie Johnston (Fairview Farm), Shelburne, on Saturday, July 6, where a very pleasant afternoon was spent and plans made to hold an annual re-union, Mr. Robt. Acheson of Proton, was elected president This gathering included four generations of the descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Acheson, (Christina Fallis) who originally came from Ireland. Mr and Mrs. McQuay, of Elsa, Texas, were among the guests, Mr. McQuay being a school chum of Mr. Johnston whom he had not seen for 37 years. Mr. Will Johnston of Marchand, Man., a brother of Mr. C. Johnston, was also present. Other members came from Toronto, Angus, Markdale, Proton, Dundalk and vicinity. An interesting program of sports and races was arranged, running races for the children and games of baseball, horseshoe and quoits were suddenly halted by rain. This did not dampen the eneuthusiasm as contests were carried out in Mr. Johnston's roomy barn. Some of the amusing events were honeymoon race, cup and water race, steppping race, and ball tossing. Mr. McQuay favoured the gathering with a song entitled, "chums." The prize for the oldest couple went to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Acheson, of Dundalk. The three youngest were children of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Foster, of Honeywood, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Small of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Inkster of Wareham. An enjoyable afternoon was brought to a climax by supper, old Sol shining forth to make it possible to carry out this function on the lawn.

We've often wondered how old a man should be before it's all right for him to sit down when they sing the hymns in church.

Turner Gathering

Joy-time picnic was celebrated on the lawn of the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson, Scarboro Junction, on Saturday, July 6. There were one hundred and seventeen registered from different points representing New Jersy city, Toronto, Streetsville, Paisley, Flesherton, Ceylon, Orangeville Eugenia, Lady Bank, Rock Mills, Proton Station Thornbury, Heathcote, Redwing, Ravenna, and Markdale. A lovely dinner was prepared after which a business meeting was held those holding offices were re-elected. The sports committee had a good entertaining program arranged and participation in the various features provided much enjoyment, prizes were given to the winners. A prize was also given to the largest family present at the reunion which went to Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkinson, Redwing, also to the oldest member, it going to Mrs. J. H. Turner, and, also to the youngest grandmother, which went to Mrs. G. Benson, Markdale.

A snappy ball game was played and as the night was aproaching a dainty supper, was prepared, the ladies then packed up their goods, on which they had their claims and the cars and trucks rolled out for their homes each said there couldn't be a better way for this famiy to reunite.

A thief tossed a brick through a store window in Toronto and stole a wristwatch and two wedding rings, so now every person who gets married there is going to be under suspicion.

Minister (who was filling out the marriage certificate and was uncertain as to the date —Let me see, this is the fifth. isn't it?

Bride (indignantly)—No sir! This is only my second.
