Hanover Boys' Choir Took Sunday Service

On Sunday, September the 22nd, the congregation of the St. John's United church had the extreme pleasure of again hearing the Boy's Choir Organization of Hanover. There were 23 or 24 in the choir, and they displayed great talent in their singing. They were accompanied by Mr. Bobby Mann, the gold medal saxaphone player at the Toronto exhibition, who delivered two lovely solos that were enjoyed very much. A quartette comprised of four boys: Messrs. Wendorf, Hingley, Bell and Hayne, gave a number that was enjoyed. The service took the usual course, with the Doxology followed by a hymn and the scripture reading. Jim Grandy then lead in prayer and Mr. Scott introduced the choir and the speakers. Mr. Art. Wright was in charge of the troop while Stuart Magwood, member of the Boy's parliament for South Grey gave a very interesting address, after which a Hymn, asd Benediction closed the service.

Fawn Came To Town

Some excitment occurred in town last Friday morning when a fawn deer was reported as having been heen seen on the street near Mr. John Pedlar's residence. Several citizens followed the little animal on its meanderings about that section of the town. It became suddenly frightened and ran full out along spring street and up over the hill near Mrs. McKinnon's residence. As it was leaping down hill on the north side it was not able to see the wire fence and crashed into it head-on. When Mr. G. B. Welton and Leslie Ferris came up to it the animal was dead with a broken neck. A. J. Rolston of Owen Sound, game warden, was notified of the accident and ordered that the hide be sent to him. It is thought that the fawn had lost its mother, maybe through death, and on becoming hungry, had moved into town in search of food. The deer was properly dressed and special steaks an roasts appeared at the dinner tables that day.

HOUSING FARM EQUIPMENT

Want of care of farm equipment causes heavy inroads into the operating costs of a farm, and the fact is one always appreciated that a machine should not be left out in a field or shed unless properly protected at all times from the effect of weather. It is not always feasible to afford this sort of protection to machinery on a farm but a great deal more can be done to prevent deterioration than is sometimes the case. Machinery requires suitabte housing all the year round, if the overhead is to be kept in check, although often in the exigencies of farming this is not always an easy matter. In the absence of proper protection from the weather, rust and decay play havoc with the various parts, and careful farmers make it a rule to get their machines under cover as soon as possible. These farmers know that stabling for machinery is as necessary as for the livestock. Besides building inexpensive but efficient sheds for their machines, they make it a rule to inspect each machine every day to see that the bearings have been properly oiled, that the nuts are tight, and the working parts are in alignment and working smoothly. These precautions have saved money, prevented loss through delay and obviated exasperation and worry, The present-day machine-worked farm really requires to be equipped with a forge, an anvil, a stock of dies a drill, a tool grinder, and sets of hammers, wrenches, punches and chisels, not to mention a supply of stock repairs for replacement of parts.

Must Carry Flares

Truck owners are warned, in a statement issued last week by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways, that if their vehicles are operated outside the limits of urban municipalities after dark, they must now be equipped with flares, lamps or lanterns as required by the amendment to the Highway Traffic Act passed at the last session of the legislature. Mr. McQuesten said "records of the motor vehicles branch show that serious accidents have happened all too frequently when the lighting system of disabled vehicles has broken down on the highway after dark. To minimize the danger resulting from such breakdown, all commercial vehicles operated outside the limits of cities, towns or villages after dark, are required to carry flares, lamps or lanterns, of a type approved by the department which must be lighted and placed on the highway at the front of the vehicles when a failure of the ordinary lighting system occurs."

The late Mr. Hale was a son of the late George and Isobel Hale, pioneers of Osprey, and was born at Wareham. He received a college education and spent his early life teaching, later taking up farming. He made many warm friends and was held in the highest esteem by all with whom he cafe in contact. He leaves to mourn two sisters and three brothers: Mrs. A. E. Bennett Receives Ovation On Trip

Prime Minister Bennett opened his campaign in the capital earlier in the month. The Prime Minister gave four radio addresses in a series. He opened his public speaking campaign in Regina the middle of the month.

The Regina meeting resulted in a real personal triumph for the Prime Minister, especially after five years of the worst conditions a prime minister could have picked to face the country for a general election. One lone individual in the audience ventured a question when Mr. Benentt was discussing the wheat question.

"What are you going to do with it (surplus wheat)?" Mr. Bennett was asked.

Right back came Mr. Bennett in his old form, "Sell it, but not for 38 cents a bushel." That was that. The girders in the old Regina Armories rang with the applause as Mr. Bennett continued his message to the electors of the West. It is Hon. W. L. Mackenzie who is said to have told Mr. Bennett that he dare not show his face in Regina after the hunger march last spring. Mr. Bennett went to Lethbridge from Regina. He got the same reception there, in fact better. Enthusiasm had definitely increased. Then off he went to Calgary, his home town.

From the railway station to the hotel where Mr. Bennett stops is less than the distance of an average city block,—about a three minute walk But—— it took Mr. Bennett an hour and a quarter, took him that long to mill through the enthusiastic crowds that came to Welcome R. B.." and shake his hand. Yes, Mr. Bennett was really welcomed home. And if he had felt when he left Ottawa that his terrific fight of the last five years had been in vain, had been unappreciated or unheralded, he has something else to think about now.

Incidentally, there is plenty of meat in the four radio speeches of the Prime Minister to keep thinking minds busy for a day or two. Boiled down, they show Canada's Man of the Hour and Man of Action has the nation's problems at his finger tips, that he is a few jumps ahead of the other political leaders in this campaign.

In a recent issue of The Advance the name of Frank Graham was mentioned as obtaining the highest marks on the Entrance examinations in South Grey. No. 6, Artemesia, and was a pupil of Miss Christina Magee until March, when he moved into Flesherton and studied under Mr. C. R. Chapple. We offer congratulations to pupils and teachers.

BE CAREFUL

She: "Anybody would think that I was nothing but a cook in this household!"

Virtue is its own reward, but even an angel may blow his own horn.

Traffic was so heavy in Collingwood on a recent Saturday night that Chief of Police Hough was forced to swear in two members of the fire department to help keep the lanes clear on the mais street.

Magee, principal of the local school, is secretary.

Mrs. Fred Wickens

The community of Kimberley and neighboring vicinities were suddenly shocked on Friday, September 13th when a highly esteemed resident in the person of Mrs. Fred Wickens passed peacefully away at her home. Mrs. Wickens, whose maiden name was Lydia Agnes Genoe, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Genoe. She was born in Artemesia, on January 15th, 1887. She was married 19 years ago to Mr. Fred Wickens, and lately has resided in Euphrasia township, near Kimberley.

Fifteen months ago she had the misfortune to fall and break her leg and since then had been confined to her bed, she bore her illness with cheerfulness and courage.

The diseased leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband, one son, Arthur and three daughters, Ora, Alma, and Irene all at home, also two sisters, (Minnie) Mrs. John Baird of Owen Sound, (Anna Bella), Mrs. Wm. Boyce of Kitchener and Alfred of Owen Sound, and Norman, her half brother of Vandeleur.

The funeral service was conducted at her home on Sunday, Sept. 15th. Rev. Silas McAuslan preached a helpful and beautiful sermon. The hymns that were sung were: "Nearer My God to Thee," "Saved by Grace", "A Beautiful Land".

I. of Kimberley, a wreath from brothers and sisters of Owen Sound, spray from Mr. asd Mrs. Charles Camack, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Teeter of Vandeleur, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Wickens, Kimberley Public School and teachers, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Elliott of Markdale, also one from Mrs. G. S. Kinney.

Markdale Votes For Local Option

Markdale decided to put the beverage room in that place out of business after the expiration of the present permit at the voting on Thursday of last week. The drys polled a total of sixteen votes over and above the required three-fifths necessary to discontinue the sale of intoxicants in the beverage room. The vote resulted in 317 for the discontinuance of the license and 184 in favor of the sale. Both sides used the weekly paper for the presentation of their argument and the campaign was very orderly, showing the good sense displayed on both sides of the question. The permit to operate the beverage room in connection with the only hotel in the village will terminate at the end of November and the sale will then cease. There are only two places in Grey County where the sale of intoxicants is legal, these being at Chatsworth and Hanover.

Keep Out Of Court

(Durham Chronicle)

When small town people deliberately get into trouble with the courts they are terribly hurt when it gets into the local papers. What are newspapers for, anyway, and what do people take them for if not to get the news? A man may go out, get a jag on, and land in front of the magistrate charged with breach of the liquor laws. This is more a lapse of good sense than anything else, and perhaps not of general public interest. But when that same man gets caught in petty pilfering or outright burglary it is a distinct breach of the law and the public should be told. In fact, the newspaper that doesn't tell it is not playing fair with its readers, who take the paper to learn of these and other news matters of public interest.

The best way to keep your name out of the police court records is to keep out of the police court. Don't blame the newspapers. Blame yourself. Don't run away with the idea it is a pleasure for the local newspapers to tell of your lapses; rather, they would sooner tell of your many good qualities, but by your behaviour you won't let them.

The local press doesn't tell everything it knows. If your wife lams you with the roast beef because you arrived home late for dinner and got saucy about it, the editor says nothing about it. He never knows but his turn is coming next. If you are picked up by the police because you were a bit woozy coming home from some early morning party, the local press isn't interested. It is when you get into something distinctly out of order that lands you before the cadi in a crowded courtroom that the press gets busy. Then it softens the blow as much as it can.

IN MEMORIAM

PHILLIPS — In loving memory of our dear daughter, Grace, who passed away at her home, Fourth line, Sept. 27th 1933.

Jesus came and took her from her earthly care,
Though we loved her dearly we know she's happy there.

Not just today, but every day, in silence we remember.

—Sadly missed by mother, father, sister and brothers.
