TIME DECIDES

Notwithstanding what you may have thought to the contrary, cancer can be and is cured in many cases through proper treatment given in the early stages of the disease.

Time is the deciding factor as to the results which may be hoped for through treatment. If the cancer can be removed or destroyed, the condition can be cured; the chances for doing this depend upon whether or not the disease is localized in one place.

The millions of cells which go to make up the human body all come from one original cell, the fertilized ovum or egg. For some reason which is as yet unknown, a single cell may start to grow independently, apparently no longer under the control which regulates the normal growth of body cells. This one cell multiplies to from a growth which if it be malignant is called cancer.

The important fact is this, and which everyone should understand, is that cancer does begin in this way, It means that for a period of time, every cancer is a local growth. Later every cancer spreads to distant parts of the body, but in the first place, it is limited to one part.

This is of significance as regards treatment. A local growth can be removed by surgery or destroyed by radium or X-rays. It is because cancer is, for a time, a local growth that cancer can be cured by proper treatment.

There are no serums, diets, salves or secret remedies which cure cancer. It depends upon the kind of cancer and its location as to what is the best treatment, we have surgery, radium and X-rays, either alone or in combination.

Time decides the outcome. The delay of even one day in securing proper treatment lessens the chance of a favourable result. The day comes when the curable cancer becomes incurable because of delay, neglect or ignorance.

Fish Culture Makes Lake Dividend Payer

Man Transforms Pretty but Barren Water in National Park into Wonderful Fishing Ground

Any angler who fished Amethyst Lake in Jasper National Park prior to 1932 came away with no fish, for the very good reason that there were no fish there, but in 1935 the sportsmen were taking Kamloops trout weighing up to three and a half pounds, and a good many of them.

Here's the rest of the story, and its a story, of course, which points the dollars-and-cent return which intelligent fish culture may bring, for making Amethyst Lake into a prolific source of game fish have added something which Nature left out to the many other attractions which Jasper Park has for the tourist.

Nature forgot to put fish at all into Amethyst but in 1932 the water was stocked with about 50,000 Kamloops trout fry. More of the baby fish were put in the lake in 1933 and still more of them in 1934. They all came from the Jasper hatchery operated for the National Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior by the Dominion Department of Fisheries, whose fish culture people had suggested a plan for building up Amethyst resources.

After stocking had been undertaken the little fish were given a chance to get settled in their new home and to grow up. No fishing in the lake was permitted until this summer. As it happened no anglers went to Amethyst until the middle of July but between that time and the middle of August approximately 300 pounds of fighting trout were taken. Later in the season the same good sport kept up and indeed, some noted fishermen from the United States declared that they had never found better trout fishing anywhere.

Next year no doubt, the number of anglers going to Amethyst will be greater than it was this year. The lake where nobody used to go will attract fishermen season after season.

It's another case in which fish culture earns dividends.

VICTORIA CORNERS

Dear! Dear! Dear! Oh no, it was Deer! Deer! Deer! Some of the local boys were out last week and although none of them, that we heard about, got more than their limit, yet most of them would have a nice taste, anyway. We did hear of one man who, on Saturday, after having missed several shots, remarked "Oh well, we didn't want that one anyway. It's the very last doe in Grey County and there would be no shooting next year if we had killed it."

King Abdell, a two-year-old standard bred horse owned by Mr. James Best, and exhibited by Mr. Carl E. Atkinson, won first and was reserve champion at the Royal Winter Fair.

The men of Inistioge congregation have torn down the old shed at the church and are remodelling and rebuilding it.

Frederick was sitting on the curb crying when Billie came along and asked him what was the matter.

"Oh I feel so bad, 'cause Major is dead—my nice big collie," sobbed Frederick.

"Shucks!" said Billie, "my grandmother's been dead a week and you don't catch me crying."

Frederick slowly rubbed his eyes, and looking up said despairingly:

"Yes, but you didn't raise your grandmother from a pup."
