THIS VICIOUS CIRCLE

This question of unemployment has ramifications and one of the most important has been caused by pension Acts placed upon our statute books during the past 25 years; and the necessary taxation imposed to keep them functioning. Previous to the advent of pensions in their various forms, the people exercised frugality and were able to lay away sufficient funds to provide for old age, but since that time taxation has made it impossible for them to do so. Then the taxing of industry has made investments in industrial enterprises unprofitable, as a result of which industry has suffered and consequently unemployment is rampant. Thus the worker sees the little savings he had made dwindling to the zero point and his power of earning also vanishing. It is claimed that sixty thousand of the people in Ontario who have been on relief are now at the point where they could not work and save if employment were to be had. How long will this condition of affairs be allowed to exist? How long can it exist without chaos? We had high hopes when Mr. Hepburn was elected as premier, but while he gave evidence of a vigorous effort to better conditions, this province is still in the red fourteen million dollars and does not get a gleam of hope that a better day is close at hand. This little country of ten million people is over-governed. Our provincial governments, Dominion House and Senate besides the host of functioning municipal governments, all must have a finger in the passage of new laws, which make all of us toe the scratch in order to assist them in their experimentations — which is all that much of it amounts to. We are at the present time in the whirl of a vicious circle and we will all have to do a lot of struggling before things will get back to normal conditions as we knew them, before the law tinkers became so numerous and active.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Premier Aberhart of Alberta says the newspapers have given him a lot of trouble, so he proposes to publish a newspaper of his own to pass the trouble on to the general public.

The Ethiopian soldiers fight barefooted, and they do not wear much clothing of any kind. Their fuel bill is also small; even their butcher meat is consumed raw. However, the Italians have promised that if they defeat the sturdy Africans they will reform their habits, and see that they change the menu to macaroni and olive oil.

Three cheers for the Boy Scouts of Canada! They organized last Christmas, as on former celebrations, and throughout Canada established a chain of toy-making and toy-repair-shops. Thus approximately 100,000 deserving children received Christmas parcels, to their great joy and to the praise and happiness of the resourceful youthful manipulators.

A new Nazi order says that German women must wear dresses "simple enough to prevent flirting." Was ever a dress that simple?—Toronto Star. We doubt it, as we well remember when the Bishop of Kingston solemnly indicted the girls of his day with "flirting with their petticoats." Such a charge, fashion report has it, could hardly be made against the fair sex to-day. "They are not worn," is the declaration.

As evidence of the modern versatility of women is the announcement from the old land that Ishbel Macdonald, daughter of the former British Prime Minister, has become landlady of the Plow Inn, at High Weycomb. She has, it is intimated, started in on a wave of popularity, as was doubtless expected, for she served an unique apprenticeship as hostess for her father at 10 Downing Street, London.

Further fame has come to Dr. Allan Dafoe of Callendar. His name has been added to "Who's Who," which sets the seal on renown honorably acquired. Thus the indefatiguable medical manager of the quintuplets gets into the British record of the world's great. With him is to be found Mussolini, Hitler, Ghandi, Franklin D. Roosevelt, but not Douglas Fairbanks nor Mary Pickford They may not be put in the record made, if any, ahead of the quintuplets, Dr. Dafoe's wonderful youngsters.

Lord Tweedsmuir, in a reminiscent talk, confessed that, as a boy, his ambition was to learn to play the cornet. Which, the Toronto Star reasons, must have proved a shock to Ian Mackenzie, Tom Reid and the rest of those Parliamentary Scots who persist that the finest musical achievement of their race is to "play the pipes." Our new Governor-General probably simply wished to practice on the cornet as a start in blawing." Did the Globe writer ever try to squeeze sound ot of a bagpipe? It is hardly boy's work. Behold the piper, as he skirls the pipes an' gars them dirl!"

HE'LL BE THERE

"Dinner," said the rector to his guest, "is at eight o'clock, but I give five minutes' grace."

"Thanks for the warning,' answered his irreverent friend. "I'll be with you at 8.05."

WE AGREE

"They say that radium is always giving off parts of itself and yet it never gets any less."

"It is so? That's the sort of stuff they ought to make money of."

One thing the old year left behind was a lot of bills that still have to be paid.

Canada is to have four new coastal pursuit planes, and the idea doubtless is each pair of them will act as eyes for one-half of the Dominion's navy.

Curling Club News

A rink skipped by G. B. Welton won the first honors of the year when they took second place at the Mount Forest bonspiel last week and brought home the prize of lovely blankets. They were tied with a Mount Forest rink with three straight wins, but lost in the play-off. The rink was composed of G. B. Welton, J. O. Dargavel, C. S. McTavish and Wm. Welton.

President, Dargavel and Vice-President Piper are to have a bonspiel taking in the players of the local club, the loser to provide a dinner at the close of the season, when all past victories will be the general topic of conversation, with the defeat properly shoved into the background.

The first schedule of the Club is at present being played and many stirring contests are in vogue. Dr. Little defeated Roy Piper's rink last week by one point, playing an extra end. For the past week or so the mild weather has not been productive of much curling.

Four Flesherton rinks took part in the Markdale bonspiel held Monday and Tuesday. Three of the rinks were eliminated in the first day's play while G. B. Welton's rink went to the fourth round in the second competition. Some splendid games were held. Flesherton's bonspiel is to be held on February 5th and 6th.

HARNESS AND LIFE

"He died in harness, poor chap."

"Yes, and, by the way did you ever notice how much like harness life is? There are traces of care; lines of trouble; bits of good fortune, and breaches of faith. Also tongues must be bridled, appetites reined, impulses checked, passions curbed, difficulties collared and everybody has to tug to pull through so as not to be strapped."

Mother: "Why, dear?"

Little Mae: "Because that's where their funnybone is."

Fleshert'n 7, Dundalk 6

With tough ice and tired players, with no particular care of whether sticks stayed on the right side of the law and much disagreement throughout the game, Flesherton struggled to a 7—6 lead over the Dundalk team, both entries in the Centre Grey League.

In the first period it seemed as though things were going to run along smoothly, then things began to happen and both teams, a little hot under the collar, dug in their toes and played with all the best they had. At the very first face-off, Dundalk went down into the Flesherton zone and Acheson scored, facing-off again, Gorrell, as if for revenge scored one for Flesherton tying the score, one all. Flesherton, not satisfied at being classed with the enemy team sent two more calls along the line, by Patton and Smith, to end the period at 3—1 for Flesherton.

The second period, the wildest of them all, registered both on the players and on the tallies, with Smith and Johnson scoring for Flesherton and Acheson and McGuyrk for Dundalk. Smith of Flesherton and Thompson of Dundalk were taken off in this period, both being laid out with facial or head injuries.

In the third period, Dundalk had the best of the scoring, with three tallies, one by Copeland, another by McGuyrk and one by Acheson, Flesherton scoring one more, by Phillips, to tie them at six all. Dundalk could not see the last goal as having gone in, when referee, Bert Hamilton overruled the goal umpire's decision, and there was quite a dispute, which ended in Dundalk refusing to play overtime. The referee therefore centred the puck with the Flesherton team on the ice, Smith scoring the seventh goal to give Flesherton the game with a score of 7—6.

The line up was as follows:

DUNDALK — Goal, McCullough; Def., C. Thompson and Lyons; Forwards, R. Acheson, G. Acheson and R. McGuyrk; Alt., Copeland, McGuyrk and M. Thompson.

FLESHERTON — Goal, Ferris; Def., Phillips and Johnson; Forwards, Gorrel McCutcheon and Sled; Alt., Patton, Smith, Boyd.

Works Fool Head Off

The other evening we had read to us one of those apt quotations that went something like this, "A public spirited citizen is one who will work his fool head off if made chairman of anything." We don't know what kind of an individual wrote the item, and we're not absolutely certain why it was read within our hearing. But we've often wondered what could happen if all the public-spirited citizens decided to refuse to become chairmen or accept public office and work their fool heads off for those who sit back and find fault and refuse to accept appointments unless there is "something in it for them." There isn't any doubt that there is some truth in the above quotation. Perhaps too much truth for it to be repeated. And again perhaps not even the whole truth, because many public-spirited citizens will put a lot of effort into community work in smaller offices than chairmanship. We've often wondered why and we've never yet been able to solve the problem. Always, however we've thought how splendid it was that so many citizens were public spirited enough to work their heads off for others. We don't agree that they are fool heads, but we do agree that they are usually unselfish minds who realize some responsibility to their fellow men. And we do notice that these citizens who work for others do seem to be getting some pleasure out of their effort as they pass along life's roadway. — Acton Free Press.

HEIFER DRAWES STONEBOAT

A heifer hitched to a stone boat and carrying on quite satisfactorily in place of a horse is a common sight in the outskirts of Arthur. When the heifer, now almost two years old was a calf she was trained by Arthur Green. Now he has carried the training to a point where she does duty much as oxen were accustomed to proceed in days gone by. The other day, hitched to her stoneboat, she was driven through the town and made the trip in fine style to the amusement of all who saw the unique outfit.—Arthur Enterprise.
