Paper Run By Negroes

A copy of the Georgetown, British Guiana Daily Chronicle was handed to us by Mr. Jas. Robertson of town, who secured it while on his recent cruise through the British West Indies. On March 8th, when Mr. Robertson called at that city the thermometer registered 148 degrees in the sun and 86 in the shade. The paper is operated entirely by negroes and is a credit to that city of some 15,000 persons. A number of advertisements in the Chronicle are very interesting to Canadians, as many of the goods sold there are made in Canada. Two Canadian life assurance companies have branch offices in that city. Another advertisement of local interest is for "Buckley's Mixture," a cough and cold remedy discovered by W. K. Buckley who married a Ceylon girl.

When Mr. Robertson visited the office of the Chronicle he was met by the manager, a full blooded negro, who exclaimed that he was delighted to meet another Scotchman and he was Scotch himself! Mr. Robertson was quite startled by the revelation but did not ask for any explanation.

Employment Com. Has Difficult Task

The short week of three days was practically all taken up by discussion of the Employment Commission Bill and a money bill providing seventy-five million dollars for relief and public works. It is becoming increasingly evident that the commission is charged with many tasks, too many.

In speaking on it, Mr. Stevens said: "The Commission will proceed to examine, enquire, analyse, study statistics and make a report. . . That will take probably eight or nine months at the least. It is possible that some time, about the middle of next session, the government will bring to Parliament a supply vote giving effect to some of its recommendations." Then, he thought, after a lengthy debate in the next session and a period of rest for Cabinet ministers after prorogation, September would see some activity. "At the very best it will be a year before effective measures can be worked out."

The present Government, led by Mr. MacKenzie King, pins its faith apparently on "a normal revival of trade and industry absorbing a large percentage of the unemployed workers." Members of the government repeatedly voiced this belief. Mr. Stevens, in his speech, warned the government against believing that external trade would revive to a point which would provide a solution for our internal problems. He said: "In my opinion, at any rate, they are leaning on a broken reed when they depend upon external trade to solve internal problems. There is scarcely a country in the world which has been a market for Canadian products that has not in the last dozen years put on high tariffs, quotas, inhibitions, prohibitions and other measures of impediment to embarrass the operation of a long-range (Canadian) policy. The long-range policy of these countries has been to build up within their own boundaries of self-sufficiency in relation to articles which we have been in the habit of exporting to them."

Mr. Stevens then proceeded to ask the government where they were going to get markets for wheat, lumber, newsprint and manufactured goods. He expressed the belief that this would be a sorry House a year from now if we learned upon the Royal Commission on Unemployment as a solution.

The Finance Minister often wears a provocative smile; it is warm enough, but a trifle superior. It brought him into conflict with one of the able private members of his party, Mr. Gerry McGeer. As usual, Mr. McGeer was speaking well and convincingly on the need of monetary reform and addressing his remarks to the Finance Minister, when to his surprise, he spied the smile and with some heat said: "Yes, the Minister of Finance may laugh, but I want to say that when the time comes for issues of this kind—." When Mr. Dunning, on a point of order, broke in with: "I made no reference to my hon. friend." Mr. McGeer: "I thought the hon. gentleman was laughing at me." Mr. Dunning: "I was just reading a very amusing letter. Would my hon. friend like to read it?" Mr. McGeer: "I am surprised thot the occasion permits the hon. Minister at this time to read amusing letters, although I must confess that it may be the attitude of the government . . : "

All of which goes to show that perfect peace does not always reign within the government party.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad publishes a magazine, and once a year make it a woman's number, featuring outstanding women. This year they are giving a major place to stories of the four women Parliamentarians of Canada. Miss Stevens, their representative, was talking to me after she had interviewed the women Senators and Mrs. Black, and she expressed herself as being delighted with them. I agree that it would be hard to find three more charming women. It warms my heart every time I think of their presence in the Parliament of Canada. I wish you could meet them. I winder if we could induce them to come to Grey-Bruce?

Easter holidays begin now and end on April 20th. In other words — "school's out."

A Correction

In our last issue, in referring to the resignation of the Rev. W. J. Scott from the pastorate of St. John's United Church, we mistakenly mentioned that as he had been ill recently his physician had advised a year's rest. We regret this misinformation, since Mr. Scott has quite recovered his normal health and has been carrying on his full ministerial duties.

IN MEMORIAM

WINTERS—In loving memory of a dear Husband, Charles Winters. who passed away April 18, 1935.

For years we journeyed together,
Heart to heart, and hand in hand,
Though you were the first to journey
To that bright and better land.

Will you watch and wait my coming
When my lonely life is o'er?
Will you come and meet me
When I reach that shining shore?

—Sadly missed by Wife

IN MEMORIAM

WINTERS—In loving memory of a dear father, Charles Winters, who Passed away, April 18th, 1935.

It came at the eve of a well spent Day
And the voice that was calling seemed to say:
Ye that are weary, come and rest,
Lay down your head upon my breast.
Come, follow Me! and I will guide
Thy footsteps to the Jordon side.
Our Father heard the sweet command
And gently took the Saviour's hand.

—Sadly missed by his Family.
