SATURDAY BUYING

There is a village matter which The Advance has been asked to bring to the attention of the public, viz. the closing of stores at a reasonable hour on Saturday evenings. For some weeks past the stores have been unable to close their doors at the legal time limit. namely 12 p. m. on Saturday. As it has worked out recently business has been shoved over into the early hours of Sunday. This is a hardship on both business men and employees. Of course the business men are mightily pleased and thankful to get so much business but they cannot help but think that a portion at least of the last minute trading could be done before 11 p.m. Saturday and thus give all hands time to get their personal affairs attended to in preparation for the day of rest. But speaking of a day of rest, how many of the younger generation look upon it as a day of rest? What they seem to desire is a day of excitement and action. If any more moralizing is advisable any person can find plenty of material for it if they look around. But please keep in mind the original object of this plea, and give those who serve you a "break."

UNDESIRABLE ATTRACTIVITY

The Toronto Daily Star has some things to say about the way some women paint their faces. Among other things it says:

"Nearly all men fail to admire and actually resent, the painted face daubed beyond resemblance to a healthy human countenance—not as if the thing had been done by an artist, but by a rough-handed painter of houses and fences. Men see down town some faces that are terrible from overpaint as must have been the faces of Mohawks on the warpath Can those who thus sign paint themselves imagine that they make themselves attractive? It is true that men look at them, but can they imagine that men view them with approval, or are they content to be seen whether with or without approval?

Men do not admire painted ladies or over-painted ladies with lips so scarlet that they do not resemble human lips at all. Who has been misleading young girls about this?"

If the Star has any hair left on the place where the hair ought to grow by the time this item reaches its sanctum, let us suggest that it ought to grab its trenchant pen and add the smoking cigarette girl to the list of undesirable proofs of depravity of women, as evidence in any restaurant in the city of Toronto as the girls "feed up."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Never mind! Winter is not far off now and then we will be wishing the weather was warmer.

Premier Hepburn has identified the opposition to his separate school legislation as just an ordinary herring. There is of course just the merest possibility that before this fish gives its last wiggle and gasp, he will discover it to be a West Indian sting ray — providing the Protestant electorate can help him to a proper identification of the species.

The Flesherton Voters' List has been distributed by Clerk W. J. Bellamy and all citizens are urged by an advertisement in this issue to see that their names are on the List or if any mistakes have occurred. Now is the time to make sure your name is listed as a voter, so that you can exercise your franchise if a municipal election is held this fall.

It is very difficult for a man not on relief to secure employment on the highway constructed this year, as the Government has stipulated that the receivers of relief are to have first call. This is hardly fair for those who have been keeping off the relief list by taking odd jobs here and there and providing a meagre living for their family. The village council should have some say in the matter because they may be placed with the relief problem next winter if work is not provided for our own citizens. While the village does not owe some of these men a living it should see that when employment is right at our door that they have their chance of making a living. It appears as though a man would have to go on relief to secure work, certainly a vicious system.

ROCK MILLS

There passed away at her home here on Monday evening, July 13th, 1936. Mrs. John A. Foster, in her 58th year. Mrs. Foster has been a great sufferer for several months from the effects of a stroke which she suffered about two years ago which left her partly paralized.

The deceased lady moved here six years ago with her husband and family from Corbetton.

She was a woman of very kind disposition which won for her many friends who deeply mourn her passing. She will be greatly missed by her family as she was a good wife and mother. She was tenderly cared for during her last suffering by members of the family to whom the community extend their sincere sympathy in their hour of great sorrow. The funeral will be held from her late residence on Wednesday afternoon, July 15th. Interment will take place in Flesherton cemetery.

Miss Annie Robertson R. N. and friend, Miss McCall of the Durham hospital staff are holidaying at the former's parental home.

Mr. Garth McDowell of Toronto is holidaying for a couple of weeks with the Foster family.

We extend our congratulations to Mr. Carl Atkinson and his bride, who were married on Wednesday last.

A large number from here attended the Orange celebration at Dundalk on Monday.

EUGENIA

On Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Cutler delivered a fine address to an audience in the L. O. L. hall. He read portions of Chap. 9 St. Mark, taking as his text, verse 49, "For every one shall be salted with fire." Before his address, Miss Jean McKenzie of 12th line rendered a beautiful sacred vocal selection which was enjoyed.

Miss Irene Martin in company with nine other former high school girls spent a very enjoyable afternoon with their ex-high school teacher, Miss Emily Acheson. Proton, prior to her marriage. The girls presented her with a radio lamp as a slight token of remembrance. The girls viewed her trousseau which was very beautiful. We join in wishing Miss Acheson and her life partner a happy and prosperous journey through life.

The garden party held on Tuesday of last week at the United Church here was a decided success. The ball game between Eugenia and Mt. Zion resulted in a victory for Mt Zion. The program which consisted of a play, "The Girl Who Forgot" by Rock Mills Young People was enjoyed by all. Some of the members of the caste acted their parts well. Rev. Mr. Bushell was chairman and introduced the characters. The receipts at the door amounted close to $60 and a nice sum was realized at the booth.

Miss Evelyn Turner has resigned her position as teacher in Spring View school near Singhampton. Prior to her departure her many friends and her pupils gathered together and presented her with a purse and the following address:

Dear Miss Turner:

Since we realize that this is perhaps our last opportunity, we your friends and pupils have gathered here to bid you farewell. It will serve as a farewell to another year of school.

It is needless to say that we will miss you but we hope that you will be a frequent visitor. The fact that you have carried out your duties toward the school is indisputable, and we feel sure that your undaunted ambition and good will, will bring you success in the future. We still believe in the old French proverb, "L'appetit vient en mangeant" which is translated, "Desire comes with success", to others perhaps it would seem better to translate it more literally, "Appetite comes while eating."

To express our humble appreciation of your work and activities in this neighborhood we ask you to accept this gift with all good wishes for health, happiness and prosperity in the future. In closing we will say "au revoir," but not "good-bye.

Signed on behalf of the community
Marjorie MacDonald

—E. Lalonde, Penetang trucker, saw a bear ambling up the road as he returned with a companion from Methodist Point, 12 miles from Penetang, Monday afternoon. Lalonde stepped on the gas and gave chase. The bear gave one look over his shoulder at the charging truck and took to the open fields. But Lalonde swung his machine off the road, lurched it over the shallow ditch. and continued the chase. The end came unexpectedly. With the truck only 50 feet away and gaining ground, Bruin decided on desperate measures. Swinging around he charged the machine. The impact killed him.—Midland Argus.

The next public holiday is Civic Holiday, Monday, August 3rd.

ANAEMIA PROBLEMS

In the blood are many millions of red blood cells. The haemoglobin of the red blood cells carries oxygen to the tissues. Many of the foods which we eat contain carbon. To burn carbon and so produce energy requires oxygen. The carbon dioxide formed as a by-product is carried away by the haemoglobin to the lungs where it is released and oxygen is again picked up.

A decrease in the number of red blood cells, or a falling-off in the amount of haemoglobin, is called anaemia. Anaemia may result from failure to build new red blood cells rapidly enough to replace the loss from wear and tear. This is the most common cause. The average life of a red blood cell is not much over a month. The need for replacement on a large scale is constant.

Destruction of red blood cells may be so excessive that even if the renewals are made at the normal rate, they are not sufficient to maintain the normal healthy balance between Anaemia follows upon haemorrhage. The loss of blood is made up in time, and recovery is assured if the loss is arrested. Bleeding commonly gives rise to fears which are unfounded as sudden death from haemorrhage are unusual.

Anaemia interferes with the carrying of oxygen to the tissues, and as the oxygen is required if the carbon of foods is to be used, insufficient oxygen means a lack of energy and heat. The heart will beat faster in an attempt to make the blood circulate more rapidly and so compensate, in some measure, for the deficiency. If the anaemia becomes worse, there will be shortness of breath and, perhaps, faintness and dizziness.

There is no short cut to the treatment of anaemia. Just because iron is indicated in some forms of anaemia, where the haemoglobin is deficient, does not mean that iron is helpful in other forms of the disease. Again, to say that the proper use of liver restores the pernicious anaemia case to normal does not imply that liver therapy has merit in the treatment of other anaemias.

You can not tell from the appearance of a person as to whether or not he is anaemic. The colour of the skin depends upon the thickness of the skin and the amount of blood in the superficial blood vessels. Pale persons are not necessarily anaemic, and those with good colour may be. An examination of the blood itself answers the question.

A diagnosis which reveals the nature of the anaemia must be the first step towards securing proper treatment. Indiscriminate dosing never accomplishes any good, whereas skilled treatment offers much either as a means of cure or else to hold the condition in check.
