A MONEY-MAKER

Here is a pointer for the village fathers of Flesherton to consider. The town of Wolseley, Sask., says the Oxbow Herald, has a very effective method of dealing with speeders, who make a race track of the highway running through the town. A speed 'cop' was borrowed from the government for a week, and in two days a total of eighty-five dollars was collected in fines. One of those brought before the magistrate was just doing 58 miles an hour through Wolseley's main street, while all of the others, with one exception, were doing anything from 40 to 50 when 'clocked' by the policeman. What about Oxbow's pacemakers, many of whom seem to be in such a hurry when going nowhere in particular? We believe there is an old bylaw setting a speed limit in the town twenty miles per hour.

We do not think a single day passes when traffic laws of one kind or another are not broken, yet so far as we can recall a penalty has never been handed out, which goes to prove that we are a long-suffering community without a chip on its shoulder — or something.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Toronto Star warns the public against taking money with them when attending an Earl Rowe Conservative rally, and cites the pocket picking at Owen Sound. In any event it was a braver effort than was the Hepburn birthday party, which had to be called off owing to an influx of bootleggers. Fie Mr. Star.

Italy has put out a feeler to see if she would be welcomed back into the League of Nations. If she were accepted her sojourn would probably be only until her covetous eyes rested on some other country where she could repeat her murdering propensities. Italy has been a sorry example of modern civilization, and she will have to travel a long way before she can live down her reputation as an outlaw.

Mr. Hepburn's persistent denial that the school question is a factor in the forthcoming provincial election will probably cause a hastening of the very thing which he wishes to avoid. The very fact that he does persist in that denial on every platform is a very good reason to degenerate humanity why it should be made a factor. If a person sees smoke the general procedure is to look for its source, which in this case will be easily found.

An exchange points out very aptly that every business firm and professional man in the community should be represented in every issue of the local paper, if only by a small card. The local newspaper serves, among other functions, as a town directory, not only for the community folk but for strangers. Old established firms, our exchange points out, who think they can live on past prestige, are leaning on a doubtful support. The personnel of even a quiet rural community changes constantly these times. How many faces do you yourself recognize in the street on a busy Saturday night.

By some astonishing quirk of fate The Advance man got his hands on one of the recently issued dollar bills of the newly-formed Bank of Canada. In critically examining this phenomenon we noted the following astonishing peculiarities about it. Search as we might we could not find a single word of English on the bill. There was nothing to show whether it was made in an English-speaking country or French Morocco, Timbucto or Tangier. It announces on its face that it is "Emission de 1935—banque du Canada, poiera au porteur sur demande. Sou gouverneur, governeur." Our postage stamps are given the dual language; at least our paper money might include some small reminder that the language of this British colony is English. On behalf of the United Empire Loyalist element in our electorate we make this suggestion.

IN MEMORIAM

WICKENS — In loving memory of our dear mother, Lyda Wickens, who fell asleep September 13th, 1935.

What is a home without a mother?
What are all the joys we meet
When her loving smile no longer
Greets the coming of our feet?

You were very true and patient
Through the months you struggled on,
And those dear hands now are resting,
Which made a home and now are gone.

To those who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
There will never be another
To fill her vacant chair.

—Ever remembered by her husband and family.

IN MEMORIAM

WICKENS — In loving memory of our dear sister, Lyda (Mrs. Fred Wickens) who passed away September 13th, 1935.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear;
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps her near.

Away in that glorious city,
Away from this world of care,
Some day we shall meet her there.

—Ever remembered by her loving brothers and sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

McMILLAN — In loving memory of Mrs. Donald McMillan, South Line, Artemesia, who passed away September 13th, 1935.

'Till we meet again, dear mother,
Upon the heavenly shore
Where our partings are forgotten
And sorrow is no more.
Those willing hands and tired feet
At rest from toil and pain;
Sleep on, dear mother, in perfect peace
Until we meet again.

—Husband and Family.

The objection to an early start is that you meet all the people who started early to avoid the crowd.

British passenger train has attained a speed of 113 miles an hour, and people used to talk about those folks blundering through.

Being governor or president or whatever they have in Spain can be added to the list of positions we do not want.

Col. G. R. Pearkes, of the Canadian Department of National Defence, states that the day of the horse in war is past and he will never be used again. Lucky horse.

LOST

"Nearly a generation and a half ago my head was grazed by a bullet at the battle of Chickamuaga."

The little fellow looked at the old man's head thoughtfully and said:

"There isn't much grazing there, now, is there grandpa?"

HEALTH

by Frederick Tennant M.D.

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

NOISE

One of the greatest curses of modern civilization is noise. There is noise everywhere. Our streets are full of it, day and night—trucks, motor horns, motorcycles, street cars, milkwagons at night. Our houses are full of it—vacuum cleaners, furnace blowers, and, if in apartments, elevators and the neighbors above. The modern fireproof construction of large dwellings but amplifies sound transmission through walls and plumbing.

And now, with the blatant radio screeching from every neighbors window from morning until night, the last vestige of peace for the city dwellers has been shattered.

It may be true that we can get used to anything, even hanging, but the effect on the human constitution during the process may be deplorable. Noise is definitely detrimental to health. Science has proven that a passing truck may so disturb a sleeper, even though he be not roused, that the blood pressure rises twenty millimeters. Noise raises muscular tension and the brain pressure has been found to be increased fourfold. Hearing may be impaired, sleep lost, and efficiency lowered.

What can be done about it? Many cities have set up anti-noise regulations, but the final solution rests with the individuals themselves. We are not likely to give up our paved streets, our mechanized transportation or our labor saving devices, therefore the solution lies in controlling their use.

Motor horns are needlessly loud and could be used less; night trucking and through trucking can be regulated—if we demand it; lazy cubs can get out and ring the doorbell rather than disturb the neighbors until her ladyship appears.

All horse-drawn vehicles should be rubber-tired; rubber horseshoes have been advocated; night delivery of milk is not absolutely essential.

Street cars should be gradually replaced by buses. Street cars should not be permitted to race over track crossings at high speed, particularly at night. Advertising loud speakers should be eliminated.

The radio has an infinite capacity for providing pleasure and education, but in mny homes it is automatically turned on when the blinds are raised and never turned off until bedtime. It does save one the trouble of thinking—if it be listened to at all—but it makes the neighbors do a lot of vitriolic thinking.

If we all observed the Golden Rule and considered others, life would be made a lot quieter and happier.

If you have anything to sell—let "The Advance" tell the people about it.

VALUE OF PUNCTUALITY

There is no more desirable business qualification than punctuality, and no other so indispensable to a man of affairs or to any one who would save his own time and that of others. Napoleon once invited his marshals to dine with him, but, as they did not arrive at the moment appointed, he began to eat without them. They came in just as he was rising from the table. "Gentlemen," said he, "dinner is now over and we will immediately proceed to business.

The drought is reported to have set corn jumping on the Chicago Exchange. Funny, ours always bother us when it is going to rain.

"It's very strange how some people manage to get along without any garden tools. Why our new neighbors haven't got a lawn-mower, step-ladder, nor a hose."

"How do you know they haven't?"

"Because after they moved in I tried to borrow them."

No Credit

In future we will sell for cash only.

All notes and accounts not paid before Sept. 1st. will be placed in other hands for collection.
