A blend of the world's most fragrant green teas

"SALADA" GREEN TEA

323

SYNOPSIS

Since Pop Clark disbanded his famous Blue Fire-eaters ten years ago he has been vainly trying to win the United League pennant with his Royal Blues. Sport writers give them little chance.

CHAPTER IX

Dick Stewart, the outfielder, said, "Say, are you crazy? Do you think any of us would kill one of our own men? What do you think we are in this game for—love? We want to make money, didn't that ever occur to you?"

Kelly learned nothing from the Philadelphia men and on the way back to Pop's rooms Walsh, the Philadelphia manager, said that Larry's punch had not really hurt Whitper except for his pride.

"I guess he was pretty sore," Kelly suggested.

"He threatened to get Doyle for it later and he probably would have, too, if he had lived to have a chance," Walsh said.

The men on the Blues team were all questioned, but had nothing to add to what Kelly already knew. When asked about Doyle, Ducth Schatz said that Lary came into the locker-room after the game was over.

Doyle, with the other men, had been kept under the eye of the policemen until Kelly was ready to question them Larry was getting ready for his shower when the team came in and told him the news.

Doyle was the last man to be questioned. When he came in, Kelly motioned him to a chair facing the fading light from the windows. Doyle sat down and faced the men. His only trace of nervousness was in his hands, which would not stay still. He swallowed once or twice as he waited for Kelly to begin.

Doyle was really very young compared with the other men on the team. The fresh glow of youth still clung to him in spite of his sober expression. He was tall and straight. His shoulders were broad and tapered off to a slim waist. He had soft wavy brown hair and his blue eyes were large and wide. His white even teeth gleamed against the tan of his skin as he moistened his lips with quick dartings of his tongue.

"You didn't like Whitper, did you?" Kelly began.

"No." Doyle's prompt answer was startling.

"Why?"

"No other reason?"

Doyle's eyes darted toward Pop for a second before he said, "No."

"You were jealous of Whitper, weren't you?"

"Why did you dislike him?"

"I don't know. I just did. You don't know why you like some people and dislike others," he explained.

"It's all right, Larry," Pop interrupted. "Mr. Kelly knows about the row you and Whitper had over Frances."

"But this could have nothing to do with that," Doyle said pleadingly. "There is no reason for bringing Miss Clark's name into the discussion at all. That difference of opinion was an old thing when we were playing exhibition games," he explained to Kelly.

"Don't worry, young fellow. We won't drag Miss Clark into this at all," Kelly assured him. "I want to know why you slugged him today."

"Because he was trying to bean me."

"Why should he want to do that?"

"Because he was a sorehead.

"Exactly," Kelly agreed. "He was sore because he thought you had cut him out. You didn't have to slug him, you know. You could have kept on ducking and he would have had to stop. Another ball and the crowd started booing."

"I know I was hotheaded," Larry admitted.

"Where where you when the accident happened?"

"In the locker-room, I guess. I didn't know there had been an accident until it was over."

"That's funny," Kelly said. "I asked the men about you and they said you didn't come in until the game was over, Where were you?"

"I was there," Doyle insisted.

"Come on, Doyle, don't hedge. You didn't go directly to the locker-room at all. Where did you go?"

"Maybe I wandered around a bit," Larry said lamely. I don't remember."

"You wouldn't be wandering around for five or ten minutes, would you?" Kelly insisted.

"It might have been that long," Doyle admitted.

"Now get this, Doyle, and get it straight. Whitper was shot soon after you were put out of the game. You and he had a row today. There has been bad blood between you for some time. You are the only likely suspect so far and you sit there trying to make me believe you were wandering around in a daze It's the bunk. Come clean now."

"I've told you all there is to tell."

FROM GIRL TO WOMAN

GROWING girls are often sufferers from female irregularities, catarrhal drains. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the vegetable tonic to give your daughter at such times. Hear what Mrs. Wm. E. Cole of 13 Hamilton Road, London, Ont., said: "When I was developing into womanhood I was rundown, weak and pale. I suffered so badly with cramps that I would almost double up with pain. Mother gave me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it helped to build me up so that I developed into womanhood with very little pain or discomfort and had no more cramps."

The Fowl Supper

Town and country churches in Canada have a reputation for "putting up" excellent fowl suppers in the Autumn — whether it's the Ladies' Aid, the Missionary Society or the Young People's Club, it is always a festive affair and people drive for miles to be there. The baking powder biscuits, the coconut cream pies, the chocolate layer cakes made by the best cooks in the Parish are certainly worth coming for. The modern cook knows how to be certain of success with her pastry and cakes because she knows the value of sifted cake flour in getting the results she wants for an affair like a fowl supper where her reputation as a cake maker and pie maker is a matter of discussion and importance.

The baking powder biscuits that are served along with the fowl course must be light as feathers, the coconut cream pie must look as fluffy and toothsome as possible and if the chocolate layer cake is not high, wide and handsome, it is just too bad. Here are the recipes of one of the church ladies who is locally famous for her baking.

Chocolate Layer Cake

2¼ cups sifted sake flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 3-4 cup milk, 2¼ teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup butter or other shortening, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually creaming until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 minutes. Spread all-around chocolate frosting between layers and over cake. Or bake in greased cup-cake pans 20 minutes; frost. Makes 2 dozen cup cakes.

All-Around Chocolate Frosting

4 tablespoons butter, 3-4 teaspoon vanilla, 3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, 3 cups sifted confectioner's sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons hot milk (about).

Cream butter well; add part of sugar gradually, blending after each addition. Add vanilla, salt, and chocolate, and mix well. Add remaining sugar, alternately with milk, until of right consistency to spread, beating after each addition until smooth. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of 8 x 8 x 2-inch cake generously, or about 3 dozen cup cakes. This frosting and other butter frostings of similar type, which hold their shape are often used for decorating cakes. To make flower or special motifs, force through pastry tube or bag, filling tube or bags only half full of frosting at a time.

Coconut Cream Pie

4 tablespoons sugar, 5 tablespoons sifted cake flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten, 1½ cups coconut, premium shred, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 baked 9-inch pie shell, 2 egg whites, unbeaten, ½ cup sugar, dash of salt, 2 tablespoons water.

Combine sugar, flour and salt in top of double boiler, add milk and egg yolks, mixing thoroughly. Place over rapidly boiling water; add 1 cup coconut and vanilla. Cool slightly; then turn into pie shell. Place egg whites, sugar, salt and water in top of double boiler; beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat 1 minute; then remove from fire and continue beating 1 minute or until mixture stands in peaks. Add flavoring. Pile lightly on filling. Sprinkle with remaining coconut. Serve at once.

THIS WEEK'S WINNER

Flapper Pie

16 Graham crackers, rolled fine; 1 teaspoonful flour, ½ cupful shortening, part butter, melted; ½ cupful granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Mix as for pie crust, take half of mixture and pack in pie plate.

Custard Filling

3 egg yolks, ¼ cupful sugar, 1 teaspoonful vanilla flavouring, 2 cupfuls milk, 2 tablespoons corn starch.

Cook together until this mixture coats spoon. Pour into the pie plate.

Meringue

Make a meringue of 3 egg whites and 3 tablespoons granulated sugar. Spread on top of custard. Sprinkle remaining cracker-crumb mixture over top of meringue. Bake in a moderate oven, 325 deg. until meringue is brown. — Miss Marie Featherston, Wheatley, Ont.

Girl Can't "Get By" On Looks Alone

Charming Manner More Important Than Pretty Face and Figure

Our standards of beauty really have changed a good deal. Nowadays, even beauty contest entrants are judged according to their personality, intelligence and charm as well as physical pulchritude. Everyone seems to agree that beauty is a fine thing indeed but that no girl should attempt to get by on looks alone.

Rose Veronica Voyle, the Philadelphia girl who won the title of "Miss America" this year at Atlantic City is a shining example of the kind of beauty that is most highly prized these days. Black-haired brown-eyed Miss Coyle uses make-up with discretion and the artifices she does employ are put on artistically, Also her interesting manner and sparkling personality contributed as much toward winning the contest for her as did her perfect figure and pretty face. She is the natural type.

"I never diet and I seldom do setting-up exercises," Miss Coyle says. "You see, I practice tap dancing about two hours every day and these plus the number of hours per week I spend golfing, swimming and riding keep me physically fit. I do not eat between meals, but at mealtime, I have anything I want."

Rose Coyle is 5 ft. 6; weighs 114 pounds, wears a 4B shoe and a size 12 dress. She has pearly white teeth, curly hair an olive skin and freckles. Incidentally she does not like freckles, but she doesn't worry about them or spend hours fussing with freckle-remover preparations. Instead she covers the tiny brown spots as much as possible by a normal use of foundation cream and powder, then forgets about them.

During drilling operations for an artesian well in the Goondiwindi district in New South Wales, Australia, fragments of a hardwood tree and several acorns similar to those of the native oak were found at a depth of 290 feet.

New Profession For Women May Develop In Railway Work

CHICAGO, — After 10 days as supervisor of passenger service for the Burlington Railroad, Miss Velma McPeek decided recently that this newly created position may well develop into a new profession for women.

A former school teacher and tea room manager, Miss McPeek said she could "see why providing comfort and pleasure for train travellers logically is a permanent field for us."

Courtesy from ticket agents, conductors stewardesses or porters; and prompt service of hot meals at reasonable cost; fittings for women's dressing rooms; new magazines for lounge cars; cleanliness in cars; aid to passengers with baggage — these are but a few matters within her jurisdiction.

A Junior's School Frock

This dapper dress styled in the approved manner for well-dressed school-girls will see many a student through the class room.

Every junior Miss from a 14 right down to the growing eight-year-old will love the dainty puffed sleeves which cut in one with the front yoke, the scalloped closing, and its bit of youthful sophistication that makes one feel important. The back view is equally trim, short darts at the waist help to give a smooth well-fitting skirt and a considerable flare is gained by two knifed pleats in front. Its neatly tailored style looks well in any material.
