

Sheridan Nurseries gives Green light to youth group

Still time to apply for plant donations

Sheridan Nurseries, Canada's largest combined garden centre retailer and grower, has announced that Toronto Kiwanis Boys & Girls Clubs has been chosen to receive the first donation of plants from its Live Green campaign.

With a proven track record for transforming the lives of young people, Toronto Kiwanis Boys & Girls Clubs will use the Live Green donation to provide some much-needed TLC to their facility, supporting the creation of a beautiful green space that is inviting, yet protects children at the Club.

Gardening guru, Frankie Flowers said, "We received entries from so many worthy causes; it was very hard to choose just one. The submission from the Toronto Kiwanis Boys & Girls Clubs stood out for all of us on the decision-making panel. Not only will this donation provide valuable environmental and landscape benefits for their facility, but the educational impact that it will have on their young people, now and in the future, is extremely important."

Live Green, Sheridan Nurseries' new environmental campaign will donate 1,000 plants over the next six months to communities across the GTA that have a severe lack of green space or plant material.

"We are thrilled to be the first recipient of the Sheridan Nurseries Live Green donation," said Ian Edward, executive director, Toronto Kiwanis Boys & Girls Clubs. "This gift will encourage our kids to connect with nature where they will learn about patience, responsibility, and teamwork through sustaining our lovely garden."

Running until October 31, Sheridan Nurseries will announce Live Green plant donations monthly.

Members of the public can submit a donation request for their local area online at www.sheridannurseries.com/live_green and it will then be reviewed by Frankie Flowers and a Sheridan Nurseries' panel.

Karl Stensson, President at Sheridan Nurseries added, "We are delighted to be able to make a donation that will have such a beneficial impact and, to echo the words of the Toronto Kiwanis Boys & Girls Clubs, help make it 'look like the home of the best Boys & Girls Club in the country'. If you haven't already submitted a recommendation for your local area, I would encourage you to do so!"

Sheridan Nurseries is currently celebrating its 100th anniversary in business in Canada. To find out more about this milestone, visit 100.sheridannurseries.com.
