EDITORIAL NOTES

Spring is here and the weather is becoming warmer. A number are commencing the making of syrup, but we have not yet seen a robin.

Last week the Ontario Government passed a law fixing the legal speed limit of a car at fifty miles per hour. We believe that this measure was long overdue as almost every driver using a motor vehicle on the highways broke the speed limit every time out. With the new speed limit each driver will have a different attitude while driving and realize that it is in his own interest to drive carefully with the rights of others in mind also. It is hoped that the new regulations will have the effect of reducing the numbers of accidents on our highways.

In the Kimberley budget this week our correspondent states that dogs are busy running deer near that village and urges that the authorities do something to halt the interference with the usual habits of the deer. It was just a few years ago that one person in Euphrasia was fined for allowing dogs to run where deer were known to harbor, and the same regulations are still in force. It is a shame that these animals are not allowed to roam their usual haunts in peace during the closed seasons.

For the past year the amendments to the Assessment Act of the Province of Ontario has created great discussion and dissention in Protestant circles due to change in regulations in awarding to the Separate Schools greater revenues from taxes. So great was the opposition to the measure that the Hepburn Government last week repealed the measure. Surely if the concessions granted one year ago were just what was wanted a year ago, and why the sudden change of government opinion? No doubt it was to avert a bitter religious war brought on by the government at the request of the Catholic Ratepayers Association.

One On C. P. And Alta.

A news item considered of sufficient importance by Canadian Press to send it on the wires across Canada tells of an Alberta youth of 16 years, who, landing in Edmonton recently, saw a "big city" for the first time and had his first ride in a street car. The youth, it explains, was from the Cold Lake district about 150 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Now in case the Canadian Press thinks it happened on a story which establishes a record for being backwoodish or hillbillyish or whatever one could call it, and makes the announcement in such a way as to imply that the honors go to Alberta, The Rural Co-operator is going to stand right up on its hind legs and correct any erroneous misconception which the reading public may have gained from the aforementioned item. And The Co-operator is in a position to verify names, places, dates, and otherwise establish the authenticity of its story which puts the Alberta incident completely in the shade.

The Rural Co-operator can tell of a youth, not in a semi-frontier province such as Alberta, but right here in Ontario, the long-settled, long-civilized (?) ultra-modernized "banner" province of this great "farflung" dominion, who though not living 150 miles from a city, but only 40 miles, and who at the age, not of 16 but of 17 years, set eyes for the first time on a city of any size, and on a street-car, and a real lake, and an elevator, and glaring electric signs and peanut-vendors, and policemen, and newsboys, and painted women, and professors, and top hats, and "financiers," and other what-nots "too numerous to mention," as they say on the sale bills when they get down as far as the trinkets, and old tools, and unused furniture, and the like.

"Guess that'll hold the Canadian Press for awhile." says The Rural Co-operator to itself, in fact, "laffin" up its sleeve—the one what's busted at the top and frayed at the cuff.

Took Sudden Drop

On Tuesday afternoon at Earl Walton,s sale the auctioneer with a crowd of men about him were up in the barn disposing of the hay and grain. Like a bolt from the blue the auctioneer disappeared. The men close by could hear him yell out, "How much am I bid?" but could not see him. They stood abashed while another group of men in the horse stable below were surprised to see a great bunch of straw come down on a horse, which was standing in the hall-way, and a man slip off the horse's rump, yelling "'How much am I bid?" He looked like an over-ripe porcupine, his sweater covered with barley chaff. However he never quit talking but went up the stairs and sold the goods while the crowed smiled. Good prices were realized.— Dundalk Herald.

People with large feet are usually more intelligent than people with small feet, says a psychologist. That should keep people with small feet from putting on airs—maybe.

—If Canada is ever so unfortunate as to be drawn into war, then the whole of Canada must go into it. Not just the young, able-bodied men who would do the actual fighting, but the "arm-chair generals," the manufacturers, business men, bankers, brokers, farmers—every class should be enlisted and made to do its share. The Government should take over all the resources of the country and administer them and it should so arrange remuneration for service to the end that all would do their share and no person be allowed to make a fortune out of the country's misfortune.—Port Elgin Times.

Farmers Benefit Most from Telephone Rate Reductions

Farmers will benefit by over $100,000 yearly through reductions in rural telephone rates, effective April 1st.

In this district rural telephone rates are reduced 25 cents per month—$3.00 yearly.

Other reductions are—

Hand (cradle) telephones—
reduced from 30 cents to 15 cents per month over Desk type (effective with May bills).

Inside move charges—reduced from $2.00 to $1.00 (effective April 1st).

Short haul Long Distance Calls—
20-cent person-to-person calls reduced to 15 cents. The extra cost for reversing charges on calls to nearby points is cancelled (effective April 1st).

Deaf Sets—
The special type of equipment available for the hard-of-hearing is reduced from $2.50 to $1.50 per month.

These reductions, especially those affecting farmers' telephones, will tend to increase the general use of telephone service, making it of greater value to every user.
