VOL. 56; NO. 49. WEDNESDAY, MAY 12, 1937 W. H. THURSTON & SON, Proprietors

Stole Wool From Nuhn Warehouse

Leslie Wright of Swinton Park was arrested by Constable S. H. Cooke at his home on Saturday morning for the theft of wool from the warehouse of Mr. John Nuhn in Flesherton. He acknowledged the theft and when taken to Owen Sound Police Court following his arrest pleaded guilty on a charge of breaking, entering and theft. Magistrate Spereman remanded Wright until May 15th for sentence.

The theft was discovered when Mr. Nuhn went to work at 7.30 in the morning and information was laid with Constable Cooke. Mr. Walter Dungey, who resides near the warehouse, saw a car parked in front of the building around midnight and took the license number. With this information the owner of the car was located and a visit made to his home when, after questioning, admitted his guilt. Five bags of wool, weighing about 140 pounds, were found in the barn and returned to the owner.

Mrs. Robt. Weir Dies

Friends deeply sympathize with Mr. Robert Weir, in the death of his wife, which occurred Wednesday morning. She had been in ill-health several years.

Born at Singhampton, Jessie, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Snell, she spent the greater part of her life there. Some twenty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Weir moved to Nottawa where they have since made their home. Mrs. Weir was a member of the United Church and active in its work.

Among those from this district who attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Weir were: Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Cairns, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. John Nichol, Mrs. Jos. Blakeley, Mrs. Will. Moore, Mrs. Ross Stevens, Mrs. Thos. Gilchrist, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Johnson, Mr. R. Bentham, Mr. and Mrs. John Parker and Wm. Beaton.

The British Market

According to the terms of the new Canada-United Kingdom trade pact, recently made public by Hon. Chas. Dunning, Minister of Finance, when the 1937 budget was presented to the House of Commons, Canadian farmers will continue to have free entry to the British markets for bacon, hams, cattle, beef and dairy products. The quota on bacon remains at 280,000,000 pounds per annum, which gives bacon hog producers ample scope to expand their business. Canadians are safeguarded in exports of cattle and meat up to 50,000 head of cattle per annum, and the value is enhanced by the one and one-half cents per pound duty on foreign chilled beef imposed by the United Kingdom last December. No change was made in the 1932 agreement regarding dairy products which were accorded free entry. While the United Kingdom was at liberty to apply preferential control against Canadian dairy products at the termination of the previous agreement, no action has been taken.

Miss Kate Macmillan and her two friends, Dr. Helen PlumMer and mother of Toronto were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Macmillan over the week end.

Mrs. F. Leavell returned home from Toronto in company with her daughter Evelyn, who had been in a hospital for an operation on her eye. We understand she will have to return and have a second operation.

Deer Broke Its Neck

A fine buck deer came suddenly to the end of its life on Friday morning of last week on the farm of Mr. Allan Gillies, Pretty River Valley, north of Feversham, when it attempted to jump a fence when in full flight, breaking its neck. Mr. Gillies saw the accident occur and immediately bled the animal and called the police. Constable S. H. Cooke of Flesherton investigated and brought the deer to town where it was skinned and the meat given to needy families in the district.

Mother's Day Service

The Mother's Day service in St. John's United Church on Sunday last was attended by a large and interested congregation. The "Order of Service," as supplied by the publishing house was not strictly adhered to as the Sabbath school joined in the worship by adding several items of great merit and the congregation entered joyously into the spirit of the day. The church was lavishly decorated with flowers. The Pastor was assisted by members of the Sabbath school. Mr. Wm. Parker read the Scripture Lesson; Mr. Wm. Miller, the superintendent, led in prayer; Mr. C. R. Wright gave a children's story; three little girls, Jean Duncan, Jean McTavish and Diana Goldsborough recited Psalm 27th in unison, and did it perfectly, speaking in a clear voice. Mr. Murray Inkster of Toronto sang in his usual pleasing style. Mr. Service reminded the large congregation of the influence which his Grandmother Lois and his mother, Eunice had in the life of Paul's beloved helper, "my own son in the faith," as he called young Timothy.

The evening service was taken from the text, "there stood by the Cross of Jesus his mother"; those who heard it, say it was an outstanding sermon, among good ones given by Mr. Service.

JOHN NUHN, Prop.

GOD SAVE THE KING

The world in general, and the British Empire in particular, today gazes on the greatest display of pomp and ceremony that the world has ever seen, when George VI and Queen Elizabeth are crowned as the first gentleman and lady of the land—our new King and Queen. It will surpass in magnificence of robes, jewels and pomp and circumstance the splendors of the great moguls, the triumphal processions of the Caesars or the adornments of the imperial Czars or any other great event in history. Thousands of people from all countries have journeyed to London to view this great spectacle and, besides, several million will be lining the six miles of streets through which the procession passes to view and pay homage to the new King and Queen, while on their way to Westminster Abbey to be crowned as rulers of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen, and the triumphant return following the coronation. Through the invention of radio millions of his loyal subjects throughout the world will be enabled to enjoy the coronation when commentators will present a word picture of the occurrences at the Empire capital of the great procession, the coronation itself, and the return of the new monarch and his consort to their official residence.

The procession reaches Westminster Abbey and files into the 1,000 year old church, where 7,000 notables of the Empire—Lords and ladies, rulers of the countries in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and others of high rank in foreign countries—have gathered hours previous to witness the thrilling spectacle of the crowning of a king.

There is a stir in the old Abbey as the Archbishop steps forward. Behind him stand the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Lord High Constable, the Earl Marshall. It is the great ceremonial — The Recognition.

Turning to each of the four sides of the theatre, as the place where the Throne stands is known, the priest cries in a loud voice: "Sirs! I here present unto you King George, the Rightful Inheritor of the Crown of this Realm, Wherefore all you that are come this Day, to do your Homage, Service and Bounden Duty, are you willling to do the same?"

At each challenge the King stands facing those addressed, who answer with a great shout "God Save King George!" Trumpets sound through the Abbey, and there follows the Solemn Litany — and such sermon as there may be. Then follows the Oath, where the Archbishop, standing before the King, says: "Sir, is your Majesty willing to take the Oath?" to which the King answers, "I am willing."

Then follows the anointing or consecrating. Four Knights of the Garter hold a rich canopy of cloth of gold over their Majesties, while the Dean of Westminster pours a little of the consecrated oil from the gold ampulla into a spoon which the Archbishop takes from him. There is a deep silence while the Archbishop anoints first the King and then the Queen, making the sign of the cross on the head and on the palms of both hands.

After the anointing, the King is invested with the golden spurs, the sword of state is girded upon him, the imperial mantle of cloth of gold is placed upon his shoulders, the ring upon his finger, and the orb and sceptre in his hand. Then the Archbishop takes St. Edwards crown from the altar and solemnly places it upon the King's head. At the same moment the peers put on their coronets, the people cheer, the drums roll and the trumpets sound, you hear a great booming of cannon from the Tower, where the Royal Salute of 21 guns is being fired — and another King has been crowned.

LONG MAY HE REIGN

Should Tighten Up

In a recent issue of the Toronto Telegram, the following question and answer appeared.

Question —Can a person in receipt of old age pension make a will leaving anything he possesses to anyone he chooses or does his estate go to the government.

Answer —You can make a will disposing of your estate in any way you choose. The Old Age Pension Commission can claim from your estate amounts advanced to you during your lifetime, but this power is seldom, if ever, exercised so far as we are aware.

It is altogether likely that when the province gets down to the serious business of administering Old Age Pensions that the full power of the law will be invoked. There are numerous cases where old persons would be maintained by the children if the residue of the estate reverted to the government.

In other words it should be obvious that the whole scheme of Old Age Pensions was designed to help the aged and needy and not their children.

Whaling

There is a very touching story connected with the whaling industry. The largest ship in that trade and the largest tanker in the world is the Terje Viken, virtually a floating oil factory. This great vessel of 43,000 tons was financed in Sweden built in Germany, manned almost entirely by Norwegians and sails to the Antarctic whaling grounds under the British flag.

Terje Viken was the name of a Norwegian sailor who was captured by the British during the Napoleonic Wars. When he was released and had returned home he found his family had died of starvation. He determined to sink the first British ship he saw. This he did within a few years and he became a national hero.

The fact that a ship carrying such a name is now sailing the high seas under the British flag, is a sign of the splendid relationship between the Briton and the Norseman. It is a fine showing of the heart of sailor folk everywhere.

The Arctic and the Canadian Atlantic Coast were once the centre of the whaling industry and the stories of ships sailing out of Dundee fired our imagination, but now it is the Antarctic, and the Norwegian have taken the place of the Scots as whalers. Only on the Pacific Coast of Canada is there much left of whaling in the Northern Hemisphere.

The catch of whales last year was 202, giving 427,000 gallons of oil, 21' tons of meal and 354 tons of fertilizer, with a total value of all products of $105,360. There are two whaling stations in British Columbia, both located in the Queen Charlotte Islands. The exports of whale oil amounted to 93 per cent. of the production and practically all went to the United States.

Must Shut Off Motor

The next time you drive up to the gasoline pump and ask for "Five, please," and leave your motor idling don't get peeved when the attendant asks you to shut off your motor. For operators of gasoline tanks are now prohibited by law to deliver fuel to the tanks of any motor vehicle while the engine is running, it was revealed recently as the new regulations governing the handling of inflammable petroleum products were issued by W. J. Scott, provincial fire marshal. These regulations are patterned upon the lines of those in force in other countries.

Pretty soon the women who are out motoring and looking for a nice spot to have lunch will be complaining that Friend Husband is like a lot of speakers—he misses so many good stopping places.

Trail Rangers' Corner

Rev. G. R. Service, B. A. Scribe

Even though it was rainy, yet 10 boys turned up for their Friday night session at the town hall. Spring is here, and all the old bicycles are getting their spring overhauling and some of the boys are giving their's a new coat of paint. Next week they are going to try for their cyclist's badge, which requires that a boy be able to (a) repair a punctured tire. (b) Teach one person to ride. (c) Carry a verbal message five miles and repeat it correctly on delivery. (d) o at least two errands on wheel without remuneration each week for six consecutive weeks. (e) Ride one mile on four and on half minutes. (f) Ride 11 miles in one hour.

Jesus not only increased in knowledge and wisdom, he also increased in stature. That is he grew a good strong healthy body. We have a duty to look after our bodies and keep them healthy, just as much as to go to school and develop our minds. H. N. Burr says: "It is great fun to live in the glorious open air, fragrant with the smell of the woods and flowers; it is fun to swim and fish and hike over the hills; it is fun to sit about the camp fire and spin yarns, or watch in silence the glowing embers."

It is a mistake however, to think that all the fun in life is found in play. As a matter of fact among the most enjoyable feelings we ever have is that which comes from having done some work which was worth while in a credible way. We should see to it that we are developing the cleanest, keenest, strongest body it is possible for us to have, so that we may have a good house in which to live and a well trained instrument with which to do our work and serve our fellow men. Good health increases our capacity to work — to have fun, and to be useful.

There is a time when much reading maketh a man mad—when it is the reading of opinions he strongly disagrees with.

The events of the Coronation day are to be broadcast for twenty-three hours in a row which we venture to point out leaves very little time for meals or repose.
