Outlets' popularity a problem for neighbours

The petition says the traffic from the centre is causing unsafe road conditions on Eighth Line, and preventing residents from enjoying peace and privacy.

It goes on to say the parking facility north of Steeles is a non-permitted use and Halton Police are facilitating the non-permitted use, losing their credibility with the public.

The petition calls for various signage on

Steeles Ave. and Eighth Line, closure of the overflow lot in the field and all mall traffic to be routed through the mall to exit again at traffic signals.

"Obviously there are going to be growing pains but let's not push the panic button yet," said Mayor Rick Bonnette, who believes the traffic to the mall will die down.

"We're monitoring the situation."

Hendrickson was not that impressed by Smith's response to his email.

He said Smith is admitting the use of the field for parking is not permitted but the Town will not enforce the bylaw and is telling him "not to bother corresponding further on the subject."

Smith was unavailable for comment.

The Town's Economic Development Officer Doug Penrice said TPO has more than 2,000 parking spaces and they are meeting the requirements of the site plan and the municipal bylaw.

"The opening weekend for the TPO was the most successful in the history of Simon Properties and traffic was much more than expected. We are now working with TPO to secure a long-term viable solution to parking," said Penrice.

A spokesperson for TPO said they are "pleased to experience the great interest and support from shoppers."

"Our priority is on safety, for both pedestrians and vehicular traffic. We are continuing to work with the Town of Halton Hills and other local authorities to improve traffic and parking plans for the center," said the spokesperson.
