High School Notes

(By Principal H. L. Eubank)

1. The principals of the various high schools deem it inadvisable to hold a district tract meet this fall.

Lists of subjects, text books and note books required and suggestions for home study have been sent to all pupils who were in attendance last year and who are expected to return. (All those who did not attend last year and who intend to enroll this year in II III, IV or V forms should get in touch with the principal as soon as possible by telephone or letter, stating (1) what courses they have already completed, (2) what studies they hope to pursue this year.)

3. New Pupils will get their time tables and lists of books on opening day.

4. Everyone will be expected to come prepared to remain at school a whole day on opening day.

It has been my intention to devote some space in these columns to a discussion of the various subjects of the first year course. I will restate that the courses of instruction to be given this year will be Mathematics, Business Practice, Writing, Agriculture, Social Studies, French, Music and Art, English, Health Education. In this article I will merely define each and at a subsequent time I will outline the content and aims of the courses.

I might draw your attention to the fact that the courses in 1st year of types of secondary schools henceforth will be the same regardless of the fact that the secondary school is a fifth class, cont. school, high school, collegiate or vocational school. Next year the new course will be extended into second form. (A new course for second form is being drafted.) Each year the course will be extended into one more form until eventually the whole curriculum will be altered. First year students will not be introduced to the study of Latin this year but will study it next year. Henceforth Latin will be introduced to second year students. It is deemed advisable to give the students a general course in the first year and then they would be a little more mature to begin work in Latin in the second year, or they would be in a better position to know whether they would require the subject for the work they choose to engage in after graduating from high school. Further, since Latin and French are foreign Languages, the Department deem it advisable to introduce them one at a time so that teachers may see what aptitude the student has for languages and they may be better able to plan an interesting and useful course for the student. Since French is a present day language and such a large number of our Canadian people are of French extraction and speak the tongue, this course was thought to be a more interesting and valuable course to the new student. This, you see, would strengthen the bonds between the neighboring provinces of Quebec and Ontario by a better understanding of the people, their language, customs and literature and it would also facilitate trade between the provinces.

Now at the end of the first year I expect the student will be given the choice of entering a General Course, an Industrial Course, a Household Arts Course or a Commercial Course. Of course all these choices will depend on the accommodation and equipment that the school affords and the size of the school and the number of teachers, but in a school of the type which serves this community the first named will likely be the only course available as the others are adapted to schools with special accommodations, equipment and with larger staffs.

I want to add here that the 1st year course is not intended to fit a boy or girl for a vocation but to give him a little of a variety of courses so that he may better know his own tastes before entering his second year.

An explanation of the first year courses follows:

Mathematics — Will consist of some Algebra, Geometry, Arithmetic and rapid calculation.

Business Practice — A course to teach the students the simple business transactions which every citizen ought to know.

Writing — A continuation of the public school writing course. The need for such instruction is obvious.

Agriculture — A course consisting of experiments to determine the laws of nature and to find explanations for natural phenomena and the application of these laws and explanations to life on the farm and in the community.

Social Studies — A study of British History, Geography, Economics and Civics to form a basis for the study of political development and world trade and economic relations.

French — Spoken French and the reading of French literature to foster on the part of the student a better understanding of the French people.

Music — The elements of singing and reading music by sight, part singing and appreciation of music.

Art — Practice in creation of pieces of art. Art appreciation (picture study).

English — Greater emphasis on the study, writing, speaking, reading of our own language and the appreciation of good literature. A study of literature, reading, spelling and composition.

Health Education — Engaging in healthful physical exercise, to build strong healthy bodies, the study of the human body and the study of proper health habits.

In a subsequent issue of your paper, I shall deal with each of the courses separately.

Her 88th Birthday

A pleasing event took place recently when Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brown of Toronto presented the latter's mother, Mrs. John Radley, with a birthday party at the home of Mrs. Alf. Partridge at Rock Mills, the event being the celebration of her 88th birthday. All the family were present for the event with the exception of Mrs. Brooks of Pickering and Fred Radley of New Liskeard. Five generations of the family were present for the happy event. Among the numerous birthday gifts were two large birthday cakes. Her two brothers, Joe and Ed. Phillips of Toronto, the only remaining members of a family of eleven children, were present, also Mrs. Joe Phillips. Mrs. Radley is extended the wish of a host of friends for many more happy returns of the day.
