Compass offers a competent package

mance enhancing technology that Jeep boasts is not typically available on vehicles in Compass' price class.

As tested here, the 2.4-litre I4 is rated at 10/7.4L/100km (city/hwy). My real world combined results average closer to 11L/100km.

This Compass Limited 4X4 matches the new six-speed tranny to Jeep's Freedom Drive I system, a full-time, active four-wheel-drive, really an all-wheel-drive system that responds to slick roads and challenging weather conditions.

But it also features a four-wheel-drive lock mode to handle deep snow, sand and other low-traction challenges.

An upgraded Jeep Freedom Drive II 4X4 system combined with a second-generation CVT transmission is available for more serious off-road bush-bashing - steeper grades, occasional wheel lift and rock or log climbing.

And we should round off the Compass Limited's equipment list with the healthy dose of more than 30 safety and security features on board, including the new standard front-seat-mounted side air bags, a new available ParkView rear backup camera, front and side curtain airbags, electronic stability program (ESC), electronic roll mitigation, Hill Start Assist, tire pressure monitoring, four-wheel ABS disk brakes and LATCH child seat anchors.

It's a pretty competent package for a very competitive compact SUV market.

And, while cynics might decry this as the Compass' swan song in light of a rumoured Fiat-based replacement for 2015, when you tally up the addition of the new six-speed automatic, improved fuel economy and a list of new refinements inside and out, it's not a stretch to consider the 2014 model the best Compass ever built.

A new interior trim option for the 2014 model year- Saddle Brown perforated leather seating with accent stitching and matching colour door treatments.

GM adds Colorado, Canyon to pickup line

At the Center for Automotive Research Management Briefing Seminars, General Motors executive vice-president and CFO Dan Ammann provided the first look at the next-generation Chevrolet Colorado and GMC Canyon, designed to be capable, versatile and fuel-efficient alternatives to full-size pickups.

Production is scheduled to start in 2014 at GM's Wentzville, Mo., assembly centre.

Colorado and Canyon will join the all-new 2014 Silverado and Sierra 1500s, and the upcoming Silverado and Sierra HDs, to give Chevrolet and GMC the industry's most comprehensive lineups of pickups, helping customers choose the right truck for their needs.
