

New park opens in Glen Williams

The newest Glen Williams park was officially opened last Thursday as Mayor Rick Bonnette and local councillors gathered to celebrate the completion of Ainley Trail Park.

Located in the Meadows in the Glen neighbourhood off Barracough Boulevard, the local park contains a playground with swings, glider track and play panels, a hard surface basketball court, shaded seating areas with low masonry walls and pathway connections to the nearby Credit Valley footpath. Construction commenced last November and was completed last month at a total cost of $177,000.

"I'm glad to see the work of local contractors and suppliers like Gerry Inglis (stone mason) and Sheridan Nurseries involved in our park projects," said Bonnette.

Cambium Landscaping and Playpower Inc. are two of the other firms who contributed to the park development led by Mark Taylor, landscape architect for the Town.

The 0.26 ha site backs onto an open space area of trees and includes naturalized areas to enhance the character of the site and manage storm water runoff. Future works for the subdivision in 2014 include a stairway connection to Glen Williams Park that will complete the neighbourhood trail link.

Ainley Trail Park, located in the Meadows of the Glen neighbourhood in Glen Williams, was officially opened last week. On hand were (from left) Councillor Clark Somerville, Town landscape architect Mark Taylor, Mark Burrows president of Southwestern Energy, Mayor Rick Bonnette, Frank Filippo, vice-president Intracorp, local resident Leslie Gormley and Councillors Joan Robson and Bryan Lewis.
