How Hard Up Are We?

Are we hard up? Read the following from that well read paper, The Ottawa Journal. "What a strange medley of contrasts and contradictions is human behaviour! Most of us have been talking and complaining about 'hard times.' Yet comes the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to tell us that last year, 1937, Canadian liquor stores took in the tidy sum of one hundred and nine million dollars—or about ten dollars for every man, woman and child in the country. We smoked a lot too. We smoked, in fact, about six thousand million cigarettes, or about sixty million dollars worth,and topped that off with one hundred and twenty-three million cigars. In between just for fun and relaxation we wagered twenty-one million dollars at our various race tracks.'
