RURAL MAIL HOLIDAYS

According to an announcement by the Postmaster-General, Hon. Norman McLarty, the number of holidays to be enjoyed by rural mail carriers has been extended from two to six. In the immediate past, the only holidays allowed men in this branch of the civil service were Christmas and New Years. To these will be added Good Friday, Dominion Day, Labor Day and Thanksgiving Day. For a time the rural couriers were given no holidays at all and later they were granted Christmas and New Years.

A Rackateer's Stunt

The Brampton Conservator prints a story of a "down and outer" who appealed to a clergyman for the price of a meal on Christmas Day. The clergyman told him to go to a restaurant and have a real meal, promising to telephone the restaurant and fix it up. Later the man returned and thanked the clergyman. He said he had had a ninety-cent meal, and he hoped that wasn't too much. As they were talking the man pulled a paper out of his pocket and a folded ten-dollar bill dropped to the floor. The clergyman pounced on it. He gave the man quite a lecture for begging a meal when he had ten dollars in his pocket. Then he took out his purse and gave the man back $9.10 with the remark: "You can pay for your own meal." The man departed. Later when the clergyman tried to spend the bill, he was informed that it was a counterfeit.
