NOMINATE SOMEONE TODAY!

Nominations are now being accepted for the Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year Awards

Halton Hills Concert Band hosts Instruments in the Attic event

Halton Hills Concert Band (HHCB) invites the community to our Instruments in the Attic & Open House, on Saturday, Sept. 21, 12:30-3 p.m. at The Carter Farm Market, 9880 Winston Churchill Blvd. in Norval.

Michael Carter has generously provided his farm for this first for Halton Hills, which features a free professional instrument appraisal, an outdoor concert and open band rehearsal for those interested in playing along with the band. Purchase fresh baked goods, sandwiches or ice cream anytime during the afternoon at The Market's Bluebird Café.

The afternoon kicks off at 12:30 p.m. with a rehearsal and instrument appraisal session by Music-Tech Services Inc., whose owner has kindly donated his time in support of this special project, Music for All. Dig out that old woodwind, brass or string instrument and find out its condition or value. From the free evaluation, if you want to get back into playing again, you can choose to have your instrument repaired later and maybe even join the HHCB. Alternatively, you can donate your instrument or funds to the HHCB Music for All project for children who would like to learn a musical instrument but whose family situations make that impossible.

Bring your lawn chair or blanket and watch or join in HHCB's open rehearsal of familiar tunes, marches, swing and movie music to prepare for With Glowing Hearts, a tribute to the Armed Forces on Saturday, Nov. 2.

Get a copy of the music in advance and play along or chat with friendly, enthusiastic musicians of all ages. HHCB members love to play, improve their skills and support numerous community events throughout the year.

A short concert that's sure to have something for everyone will follow the rehearsal.

And there's more. Kids can also see farm animals such as the pygmy goats and alpacas or try the corn maze. Parking is available and for inclement weather, there is a covered patio.

For more information on this or other coming events, membership and non-playing volunteer opportunities, call Roper Galloway, Halton Hills Concert Band President, at 905-873-6144, or visit haltonhillsconcertband.com.
