At Kutno an order has been issued threatening the arrest and punishment for any Pole who "smiles ironically" at or shows "any sign of contempt" towards a German, or refuses to raise his hat to any German in uniform.

Six Sons Enlisted

Miss Didge Madden and Mrs. W. H. O'Brien have received the following from their cousin, Mr. John F. Burns of Weyburn Sask. It is taken from „The Weyburn Review," Jan. 18, 1940.

"John Burns' family of Weyburn has set Canadian manhood a remarkable example in this war of sacrifice and service to homeland and empire in time of stress. Indeed, their example is probably an outstanding record for one family in the whole of Canada.

"There are six sons in the family: Bob, Basil, Bill, Jack, Jim and Ed., and they are all serving with combatant units of the Canadian Active Service Force. Three of them, the first named, are serving with the South Saskatchewan Regiment, which is undergoing preliminary training at Weyburn.

"There is probably no other one family in Canada which can show a similar record of service in this war. responding quickly after the war was declared,to the call for volunteers for the armed forces of the Dominion, the six brothers donned khaki as quickly as their private circumstances would permit, and they have now all been in training for from three to four months. In due course of time they will see action with the Canadian corps on the battlefields of Europe. Good luck to them all.

"And in the meantime their father, a faithful hardworking employee of the city of Weyburn, who year in and year in and year out, carries on with his outdoor duties irrespective of whether it is 50 below zero in the winter or 115 in the shade in the summer. Everybody knows him and everybody lakes him, and now the best wishes of the Weyburn folks will go with his six intripid sons to the war zone in Europe."

Mr. Burns was born and raised on the Eighth Line, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Burns, and a brother of the late James Burns. The eldest son Ed., was born on the old homestead on the Eighth Line and is a veteran of the first Great War.

We join with their Weyburn friends in wishing the boys Bon Voyage, and a safe return to their native land.

On the evening of February 28th, a half hour after sunset, in the southwestern sky, there will be a string of six planets visible, Uranus, Mars, Saturn, Venus, Jupiter and Mercury, in that order from the upper end of the string. Uranus may not be visible to the naked eye, but the others will be Some may be seen any evening now, but not quite in a string. The conjunction of the six mentioned takes place once, it is calculated, in 425,320,621,606 years, hence the chances that any of us will se the phenomenon again are not very bright.
