Presentation To Mt. Zion Soldiers

(By Centre Line Corr.)

A large number of friends and neighbors of Pte. Joseph Little and Pte. Victor Osborne of Camp Borden attended a gathering given for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell White on Wednesday evening last. During the evening the boys were presented with a beautiful wrist watch each and a very well-worded address, read by Mrs. F. Lyons. The boys thanked their friends for their kindness and a happy evening was spent. The boys then left early to return to Camp Borden.

Following is the address:

Dear Victor and Joe: On tihs occasion we, your friends and neighbors, have assembled here to enjoy an evening with you before you leave your present encampment. War is a terrible thing, with all its horrors, but we are proud of you young men who have responded so nobly to the call to preserve liberty and freedom. We realize the courage and bravery you must possess to take this stand and we feel sure there will be a crown in years to come for such brave boys as you.

Having spent all your life in our community, you will be greatly missed. Sterling characters, such as yours, will be har to lnd during your absence, but we trust that wherever you may be sent you will be protected and spared to return to home and native land.

As a slight token of remembrance we ask you to accept these wrist watches, and may God's richest blessing be with you now and forever.

—Signed by Arnott Menzie, Arthur Wright and Norman Jackson.

Graham's Service Station Booth Entered by Thieves

Mr. W. W. Graham, proprietor of the Shell Service Station, lost a large quantity of cigarettes, chocolate bars, cigars and other goods early Friday morning of last week when thieves broke into the booth on his premises. Mr. Wm. Whitton, night watchman, was on duty and while standing on the corner near the Perkins hardware heard a noise in the vicinity of the Graham property. He investigated and as he neared the premises two men ran, jumping into a car parked near the shed at the Gospel Workers' church. A bar was used to break the lock. It is understood that the license number of the car was obtained but to date no arrests have been made. Mr. Graham's loss is in the neighborhood of $100.—Markdale Standard

Most folk are glad that the man who makes up those reports of British shipping losses is not figuring out income taxes.

Boys Camp At Maxwell

(Victoria Corners Correspondent)

Under the auspices of the three Sunday Schools of the United church at Hopeville, Inistioge and Proton Station, a boys' camp was held from August 12th to 16th on the farm of Mr. George Ross at Maxwell. Some 15 boys from the three communities attended, the camp being conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Patterson, their minister and his wife. The camp site is on the Beaver river, has almost everything to recommend it from good sports grounds to good spring water for drinking and refrigeration. The camp program featured, besides three outdoor meals a day, Bible study and sing-songs around the camp fire, soft ball and daily dips in the icy Beaver. Ideal weather added to the enjoyment. Friday evening the parents and some friends of the boys came out for the camp fire program, after which the camp broke up and the boys returned to everyday life. Those present at the camp were: Mac Love, Delbert Fowler, Everett Scott and Bob Scott of Hopeville, Jim, Paul, R. J. and Gerald Patterson and Leslie Duncan of Inistioge, Vern Corbett, Bill Marshall, Bob Dingwall, Ken Bates, Russell Lee and Everett Lockhart of Proton Station.

Men Returned From Military Camp On Saturday Night

Bronzed and apparently in the pink of condition the local representatives of the 2nd Battalion of the Grey and Simcoe Foresters Regiment arrived home Saturday evening from two weeks under canvass at the military training camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake. The trip home was without incident, the troops travelling by boat to Toronto and then by special trains to their homes in their respective districts. The Durham contingent were taken to their homes by train which left the remainder at Saugeen Jct. while it backed up to pick up its four cars and deliver them to their northward destinations.

For most of the boys attending the camp it was the first taste of military life and after the first couple of days settled into the groove of duties and training and most of them were sorry to have to return home so soon. The first week in camp the weather was real hot and all had sunburns to nurse, but the second week was just the reverse with cold nights and rain, causing considerable sickness. While the Medical Officer was extra busy most of the time with sickness of various forms, there was not any more than in other years as there were four times the number of men in camp.

Every day commenced at 6 a.m. daylight saving time and at 6.15 the boys were all out taking ther physical training and enjoying it, too. Then came the job of folding blankets and placing them in orderly rows in front of their tents and cleaning up the lines, followed by breakfast and preparing for the morning parade at 8.15, followed by platoon drill and lectures on various subjects pertaining to military activities. The morning period lasted until 12 noon and the afternoon period from 1.45 to 4.30, when the men were free for the evening, except those who had duties to perform. All ranks were worked hard while in camp, but this was to be expected at a time like this and the men entered into their duties with a zest, determined that they would make as good a showing as possible. The officers were greatly satisfied with the progress the troops made while in camp. Coming home they did not appear to be the same men who had gone to camp two weeks previously.

While the military camp is finished for the battalion this year, training will still continue in the local headquarters every week until the required number of days are completed, with two or three evenings each week being given for further training.

The regimental band played for several route marches, one of them being for a distance of five miles on the Sunday, following a church parade, when over 5,000 men in camp marched past Col. Smythe, Camp Commandant, who took the salute on the main street of the little town at the mouth of the Niagara River. Another march was for four miles south on the river road toward Queenston, a route followed by General Isaac Brock on that memorable day in 1812. Brock's monument was in sight when the return journey was camp. On another occasion a night march was made up the same road, marching by bearings, which the men thoroughly enjoyed. A visit to the rifle range Thursday morning was brought to a quick close when rain descended in sheets, everyone received a thorough soaking. The firing was continued Friday morning, followed by a tactical scheme in the area adjoining the rifle range, assisted by a battery of artillery. These tactical exercises will be continued in the training during the next few weeks.

While there was considerable work for all ranks, there was also the lighter side to camp life and many pranks were played on unsuspecting victims. "B" Company adopted a kitten that had wandered into camp and made one of the tents as home, dividing its attention between the tent and the company orderly room. Then there were the explosive epithets of the Sergeant-Major in his attempts to have his company on the P.T. area first each morning.

While many were reluctant to leave camp, many others were glad to get home and escape the ever-lasting command of "fall in," and have a warm and comfortable bed in which to lie and recall the last couple of cold nights when the cold became so severe.

Decks Cleared For Training

Decks have been cleared for the mobilization of man-power for home defence and the stage set for the military training plan that will summon approximately 30,000 young Canadians to camp each month to be taught fundamentals of modern soldiering.

Until men, certified fit for training, reach their designated camps and are turned over to military authorities of the Department of National Defence responsibility for arrangements lies with the Department of National War Service.

The class will be called October 1st. The first task to be tackled by the Department is the classification and idexing of all registration cards, according to age groups for men and women, single and married. Registrars in each constituency and district registrars attached to the boards in each of eleven military districts and in Prince Edward Island are conducting this tabulation.

Single men between the ages of 21 and 45 are liable to be called to train during the first year. The Department of National War Services will call up the men by groups, starting with those 21 years of age in October, as the Department of National Defence makes known its requirements. These men will be medically examined as near as possible to their place of registration. All men in category C1 or better will be considered fit for training. Transportation will be provided free for men to attend medical examination and to proceed to one of the 30 or more training centres. It is expected there will be eight calls within the year.

OIL OPTIONS AT KIMBERLEY

(Kimberley Corrospndent)

Much interest is being taken these days when a member of an oil and gas firm has been securing options on farm property with the intention of commencing drilling operations in the near future, if enough property can be secured. We doubt if they will have any trouble in interesting everyone.

Will you, therefore, en-a@ numbers. Knitters, therefore, are encouraged to concentrate on these garments until further notice, to insure an adequate supply. Instructions from Mrs. Campbell, National Chairman of the Women's War Work Committee, urges that seamen's socks and stockings should be on hand at all times. We have on hand plenty of instructions for knitting the above articles. We are asking our knitters to co-operate.—Mrs. Brady, convenor of local committee.
