The congregation may be justly proud of their church. The church was suitably decorated with flowers for the occasion.

Rev. L. F. Kipp of Toronto had charge of the morning service and many old friends greeted him. He spoke of the many changes that had taken place since he was pastor thirty-five years ago, and of those who had passed on. He spoke, too, of the great change in the appearance of the little church and of the improvements that had been made.
