

2009...in the news

- Gardiner Public School in Georgetown South, named after late HDSB trustee Ethel Gardiner, opens its doors to about 550 students as one of just a few leading-edge environmentally friendly structures of its kind in Ontario.

- A committee of individuals from several local-area businesses at the Town of Halton Hills was established to encourage residents to "Shop Halton Hills."

- Town council agrees to lend financial support for the $2-million Field of Dreams project at Georgetown District High School, which would replace the natural grass surface on the Rebels' playing field with artificial turf and an all-weather rubberized track.

- Mayor Rick Bonnette makes headlines and grabs air time nationwide for council's stand on the U.S.'s Buy American policy, referring to Halton Hills as "vying for be the mouse that roared in the battle against big, bad U.S. protectionism."

- Cops use taxi as an unmarked cruiser to nab aggressive drivers in north Halton but complaints from the public result in Halton Police pulling the vehicle off the road.

CFL star Mike (Pinball) Clemons busts out with Artcast's Eric Knoepsel

Julie Parent jogs with son Gabriel and pooch Meg in tow

2009...in the news

- The inaugural Georgetown-Acton Walk for ALS drew 1,500 participants and set a record of $230,000 for the most funds generated by any ALS Walk in Canada previously.

- The Georgetown Eagles win Baseball Canada's bantam AAA championship in Vaughan, beating Quebec 4-2 in the final. For many of the team members, it was their second national title in three years after winning as peewees under head coach Bill Byckowski.

- Cab driver chokes on cheeseburger and crashes through Timeless Treasures front doors

- Immunization clinics open at community centres in Georgetown and Acton, drawing huge crowds as vaccinations are given out to help protect local citizens from the H1N1 virus (swine flu).

- Halton Hills Fire Protection & Prevention Services moves into its new headquarters at the Eighth Line and 10 Sideroad, a state-of-the-art 13,616-square-foot station.

- Thousands of local residents turn out before dawn to witness the Olympic Torch Relay for the 2010 Winter Games in Vancouver pass through Georgetown and Acton on Saturday, Dec. 19.

(Left) Erica McDonald and Chuck Tutty at the Candlelight Tribute (centre) Kiwanis Club member David Ashbee works up a sweat for Lobsterfest while (right) Fraser Stiwi rejoices in the opening of the Dominion Gardens splash pad

YOUNG'S GUARDIAN PHARMACY AND HOMECARE A GEORGETOWN TRADITION SINCE 1958!

Some of the older people in Georgetown may remember when Stu and Dorothy Young took over Robb's Drug Store next to the Old Bank Building at number 4 Main Street and it became Young's Pharmacy. That was over 50 years ago! Today, Neil, Ruth and all the Young's staff are still dedicated to Stu's philosophy of providing superior customer service to compete in an ever more competitive marketplace. Young's has since moved across and up the street to Number 47, but it is still a "legacy" pharmacy, in that it's a business that has passed from family to family since at least 1857, when records show a pharmacist named Thomas Ruston took over Watson & Ruston, Druggists and Stationers, presumably from his partner Mr. Watson. That was over 150 years ago! Since 1958 the Young family and their staff have consistently embraced profession-enhancing innovation and good old-fashioned small town caring to make their pharmacy thrive. As the last of Georgetown's original independent pharmacies, Young's is proud to be stronger and more competitive than ever. To all our loyal customers who have chosen Young's over the years and to our new customers who have more recently "discovered the difference" we say thank-you.

Guardian

Young's
Pharmacy & Homecare

... more reasons to make our pharmacy your pharmacy!
47 Main Street S, Georgetown 905-877-2711

Rexall