HIGH WINDS AND LOW TEMPERATURES PREVAIL

Tuesday was the coldest day we have experienced in this district during the present winter, the thermometer reaching 14 degrees below zero. A driving snow prevailed at times Tuesday afternoon, but most of the country roads are open yet for motor traffic. We can expect them to be blocked at any time. Tuesday night and Wednesday morning high winds blew fine snow in clouds, obscuring vision for motoring and many narrow escapes from collisions were reported. The night was the roughest we have had this year, but the snow did not block the roads toany extent.

River Home Guards Protect Britain's Inland Waterways

Britain's rivers, like her countryside and rolling downs, are patrolled night and day by the Home Guards. The rivers and inland waterways, on which seaplanes might try to effect a secret landing, are watched by a special section, the River Home Guard. These men, recruited locally from anglers, yachtsmen and others with special knowledge of the reaches, are armed with rifes and machine guns, and regularly patrol the waters in fast motor boats. Here is one of the patrols.
