Sprucing up the house with fresh paint is the spring and early summer job of many householders. Keeping homes well painted is important for the well being of the house and judicious use of fresh paint will do the trick of "making old look new."

Pte. T. Stephens Visited Interesting Scottish Places

The following interesting letter was sent by Pte. Thos. R. Stephens, son of Mr. D. L. Stephens, 8th line, Osprey, (who is overseas:

I was up to Glasgow for my leave and had a splendid time we went out nearly every night. The girls would take us out and entertain us. Then we went on tours of the city to some of the industrial places and saw them making shoes, clothes and all sorts of foodstuffs, such as jam, etc. It really was worth while. The best tour of them all was to an old castle (Bothwell Castle) and some of the old cemeteries. I was wishing you could have been there. The castle was used in the wars between the Scotch and English (if you could call them wars now.) The walls are from 10 to 15 feet thick and about 30 feet high, with a drawbridge and moats. Parts of the walls are now buried, but you can still see the outline. There are steps cut right inside the walls, so that they could go to the top while inside them. They also had cellars underneath in which to store food and ammunition.

The cemeteries were really the laugh, with all the old epitaphs on them, telling quite plainly what sort of a person was buried there. Some of them were really funny. I should have written some down, as my memory is not very good. Here is one:

Here lies the body of our Mary Ann
Asleep in the bosom of Abraham;
Now it may be alright for Mary Ann
But it dinna sae much for Abraham.

Another one tells about a woman who had married a really tough guy, who later in life became quite a saint. The verse told all about her life with the sinner and also the saint. I wish I could remember the verse, as it was really funny. I could have stayed all day. I was away nine days, so had a good visit.

We had quite a raid over here the other night. We could hear the bombs bursting and the Anti Aircraft guns, but they were quite a piece off. The flares were something to see for the first time. They seem to just hang in the sky like large bonfires. They say they are held up by a kind of parachute. Everything is lit up below them like daylight.

War calls must come first . . .

which means that we should reduce our non-essential use of the telephone to the minimum. Present facilities cannot be increased; your co-operation is needed if war calls are to go through promptly. ¶ Please remember that the wasteful use of telephone time can hold up war business —and that every second you save counts.
