

Georgetown's muralist to go 'Solo' at Williams Mill Gallery

Williams Mill Visual Arts Centre presents "Solo" an art exhibit featuring artist, illustrator and muralist Robert Johannsen

The exhibit will feature a collection of acrylic paintings depicting Canada's rugged landscapes.

Johannsen is well known in Georgetown, as the artist selected to create a mural for the Royal Canadian Legion building, unveiled last year. The mural consists of four 8 foot x 16 foot colourful panels representing the Canadian military from WWI to present day. Nearby at Wesleyan and Main Street, is another mural created by Johannsen, depicting the Niagara Escarpment in the Halton region.

Johannsen's work appears on book covers of Farley Mowat, W. P. Kinsella and Dan Needles.

His illustrations are found in magazines, children's books, texts and on consumer goods, while his original acrylics are displayed in corporate and private collections across North America.

An award-winning, honours graduate of Sheridan College's illustration program, Johannsen works as a freelance illustrator and graphic designer and has taught art at Seneca College.

A nature lover at heart, Johannsen's paintings are inspired by his travels throughout Canada and his Northern Ontario roots, where he was raised on his grandmother's cattle farm.
