FARM IMPLEMENTS

Evidence of the touchy nature of the cost of farm implements may be found in the fact that more than 36 speeches revarding the matter were made in the House of Commons between the hours of 3 o'clock in the afternoon and 11 o'clock at night in one day. This is almost a record for expressiveness. The Government was attacked from several sides.

Explaining the move, Finance Minister Ilsley said that the change in ceilings has been authorized with "considerable" reluctance.

Mr. Ilsley pointed out that maximum production on farm machinery and equipment was urgent for the expansion, or even the maintenance, of Canada's food-producing capacity. This maximum production of farm mahcinery coul not be effected in the face of increased cost of materin Canada, and proper increases i ials and component parts prodhced in Canad or imported for assembly wage rates and the increases given to the implement companies are to cover thes added costs.

Mr. Ilsley noted that prices of farm products rose 44 percent during the past year (including the very recent increases in butter and hogs) while implement price roses only 3 percent. Agricultural Minister Gardner indicated that further increases in farmers' revenue was imminent.
