Vandeleur W. I. Visited Mrs. Wm. Summers

(By Vandeleur Reporter)

Following the W. I. meeting on Thursday, Aug. 22nd, the president, Mrs. Ethel Hutchinson, and Social Welfare Convener, Mrs. Howard I. Graham, called at the home of our oldest resident, Mrs. Wm. Summers, who was celebrating her 92nd birthday. Mrs. Graham read an address and Mrs. Hutchinson, on behalf of the Institute, presented her with a sheaf of gladioli. Following is the address:

Mrs. Summers: We, Vandeleur Women's Institute, are highly honored in celebrating with you, your 92nd birthday. Few are privileged to attain that great age, but unique, indeed, are you in being the grand niece of Abraham Lincoln, that great President of the U.S.A., who out of chaos, tyranny and slavery, united a country, gave freedom and laid the foundation of democratic government. We are honored that 65 years ago, you chose Vandeleur as your home, as a young married woman. You settled here and have raised an industrious family, who have married and are raising their families in nearby homes.

It is the homes that make a nation and as Abraham Lincoln, when asked the most famous person he knew, answered unhestitatingly "My mother." So today I am sure that if your descendants were asked the same question, would readily answer the same.

The principles of good citizenship, the love of home and country, which are impersonated in the life of Abraham Lincoln, are the motto of our W. I. and had you as one of Vandeleur's esteemed citizens as long as the majority of us can remember.

By precept and example you have taught your family the love of honest toil and of justice and freedom. So, today, we rejoice with you.

May this bouquet of flowers we present on behalf of Vandeleur W.I., express to you our sincere good wishes for a happy birthday, and remind you that, although you are now unable to come to our meetings, we think of you, and are sending these flowers as silent messengers of our best wishes.

Signed: Mrs. Hutchinson, president; Miss D. Hurd, secretary, Mrs. H. Graham, Social Welfare Convener.

Mrs. Summers expresesd even more by looks than words, as she said "How lovely to be remembered." She seemed to forget the years and chatted about her childhood home, where Uncle Abe was a frequent visitor and recalled the day of his death. She spoke of the excitement when he could go down to Washington, and repeated a rhyme they used to say, a few lines of which follow:

"His hair was cut, his whiskers trimmed,
His gaiters brushed outside and in,
When Abe went down to Washington."

Another surprise was a birthday cake sent by Vandeleur Woman's Association.

Mrs. Summers, although unable to move about due to rehumatism, is able to enjoy her meals. Her hearing is keen, but she cannot see to read, so has much time for thinking and dreaming, and is very appreciative of the birthday remembrances.

Some Delayed News

Last Wednesday afternoon we had a severe break on our linotype and had some type set on the Markdale Standard linotype. In the confusion we neglected to mention two important items. One was a presentation to Ben Bellamy, the last of our overseas boys to return home. The other was the fourth anniversary of the landing of the Canadians at Dieppe, France, on August 19th, 1942, in which our fellow townsman, Mr. Al. Duxter, proprietor of the Park Hotel, was taken prisoner by the Germans, where he remained until released at the end of the war.

Presentation Made To Mr. And Mrs. J. H. Thurston

A presentation was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Thurston in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. H. Thurston, when they were presented with a miscellaneous shower of pyrex ware, glass ware and china by the cousins in this district. Mrs. Thurston arrived from England the week previous with their little son, Jimmie. Both thanked the donors for their appreciated gifts. A very pleasant evening was spent by all present.

THE BOOK OF FREEDOM

"What is the secret of England's greatness?" asked the Indian Prince of Queen Victoria many years ago. Calling for a copy of the Bible the Queen placed it in the hands of the Oriental Prince, and said, "This is the secret of England's greatness."

As early as 1804, some years before the above incident, a group of learding Englishmen, realizing the influence of the Scriptures in the life and history of the British people, organized a Society for the publishing and spreading of the Bible. The first President was Lord Teignmouth, and the Committee included such outstanding men as William Wilberforce who later did mor than any other to abolish slavery in the British Empire.

To-day, the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society and its auxiliary organizations reaches every corner of the earth. The Old and New Testaments are printed in over 600 languages, more than 1000 colporteurs, as they are called, sell copies to their own people, spreading the good news of a God of law, love and abundant life. In war and in peace the work has gone on. In hospitals, prisons and camps, and in the streets, millions of copies have been sold and given away. Many a former sailor, soldier and airman still value the New Testament he was given when he entered the armed services. Every Protestant Denomination has been given inestimable assistance in its job of proclaiming the universal gospel so much needed by a violent and chaotic world.

If you haven't made your annual subscription to this great work, you are asked to do so now through your local church.

Sharp Criticism Of Our Funeral Customs

(Fergus News-Record)

We hope there will be no long parade past our casket in the church, or in the house, or wherever the service may be. The more we see it, the more it seems a barbarous custom, no matter how diplomatically it may be handled. It's painful for the sorrowing relatives and it's often a shock to those who have not seen the dead man for a while, especialy if there has been a long and wasting illness. We note at several services lately the coffin is not opened in churches or in a funeral home. It may be open before the service for those who wish to go early. We like these symptons of a return to the Christain idea that death is a natural thing, that comes to us all, and not an unnatural event that must be covered up and toned down and camouflaged. We like a few flowers at a funeral, particularly for those who loved flowers when alive; we like a plain and simple service, simply any eulogy but with some facts; an statement of unbellished the short co like the wording of the cemetery by-l service used at inations. of the denom-

Times Are Getting Tou

The war may be over but supplies are getting more difficult to get day by day. Several times during the past week there was almost a bread famine in town, and we had to carry pasture to the hens as there was no chicken feed available. It looks as if we will have to kill the hens and live on fowl meat to save on both bread and grain. That would be somewhat of a disaster at a time when eggs are selling at well over fifty cents a dozen. It is hard to determine just where the holdup is. It may be heavier shipments are going to Europe or is it possible that the producers are holding back for still higher prices. It is certain that there has been an advance in the price of almost all commodities and the cost of living is gradually soaring despite government statistics to the contrary. We are caught in a vicious circle and no one can see where it is going to end.
