Old Timer Enjoyed Reunion To Fullest Extent

Following is a letter received by the editor of The Advance from "Old Timer" expressing his enjoyment at having been back home for Old Home Week. He recalls some of the times they had in the early days in this district.

When I heard of the Old Boys and Girls Reunion for 1947 at Flesherton says I to Euphemia, "Phemia," says I, "we're goin'"

Well, we arrived on Saturday and was we glad to see the flags flyin a welcome for us. And it seemed so good to be greetin' our old friends and gettin' the glad hand, and there was our old friends' likeness to greet us in the windows. Manys the good time did they recall. Aye, the parades and picnics of our youth! And the line of cars! Says I to Euphemia, "Phemia," says I, "It's different than the horse and buggy days when we were young."

Sunday mornin' came and to church we wended our way, just managin' to get a chair in the aisle. My, it did seem good to see how the old boys and girls turned out to church — the MacTavishes, the Armstrongs, the McCauleys; of course we did miss the Mitchells, Bill Bellamy and many others. In our mind's eye we could just see them in their pews with hosts of others who have gone home.

Well, after shakin' hands and talkin', and a bit of eatin', we managed to make the Legion's parade in the afternoon. Yes, too many of our young men were not able to return to the old home. Wars have too often taken the toll of our fine young men. And Col. Sydney Lambert is just another sample of what wars will do and a wooden leg is only a small thing to the price some have to pay, but I tell you, it didn't spoil his speakin' none, no siree. That man knows how to talk out plain, and with these new-fangled loud talkin' machines, everyone had a change to hear. At the park again we missed many of the old friends who had been there eighteen years ago. Doc Murray, Mrs. Blackburn, Harry LeGard (who was Mr. Fleshertonian last time) And it was to bad Fred Murray had to slip on the church step in the mornin'. By night the seats of the church were gettin' a bit hard for my old bones, but I enjoyed the singin' and the horns and the fine music, and after all we can't get too much of a good thing. But shucks I was too tired to go to that midnight dance and I wanted to see that calithumpian parade next mornin'.

Well, sir, I liked that parade. The surries, the buggies, the old-fashioned clothes, well-covered people once more. It made Phemie and I seem young again an'wasn't I pleased to see Annie and Andy. Annie as coy as ever, but if Doc Murray had been alive, I tell you there wouldn't have been so many gaps.

An' that girl at the pond sinkin' like a submarine! Phemie says, says she "I'd have sunk, too, when I was young if I'd been caught witn as little clothes on as she has." Anyway, there was lots cut to see her.

That loud speaker sure is fine There we was standin' away back in the shade at Emery Fisher's and heard every word Bill Hemphill, Bert Field, Mrs. Turner and the rest had to say during the flag raisin'.

Wel, I don't know if it was worth 50c or not to hear the seven lions roar, but to hear them roar in Flesherton was worth something.

An' a young feller like Farquhar Oliver to open the concert at night! Well, it's to be hoped he will be as good as his uncle, Honest John Oliver, one-time Premier of B.C. I tell you that Tom Hamilton can give you the good laughs and that feller in his plaid pants on Wednesday wasn't far behind. With all the changes of costumes and the dancin' and singin' and violin playin'. I was fair bewildered; at times my eyes fairly popped out of my head at all there was to see. But it takes the old boys to do it. To them it just comes naturlee. When Tom Wardrobe played his mouth organ and Sam Sheardown hoed it down, that was something. At night I was fair ready for my bed, although we were crowded until, like Alice Dunbar singin', we had to pretty nigh "roll over" to give everyone room.

I had my money on Alex. Henderson's Mac in the races, knowing he had good practice last winner. It's not always safe to bet on a sure thing.

Phemie and me will pass many the hour recalling the times we had at that Flesherton Old Home Week Celebration. The kilties, the bands — my wasn't the Flesherton band good — the baseball games, the trick canoeist from Markdale. I sure thought he was a gonner once there, when he disappeared under the canoe. The friends we met!

We was glad to get to our beds come night without attending the dances, but we managed the fireworks that last night and thought it a fittin' endin' to a truly happy celebration.

Says I to Euphemia, "Phemie," I says, "I hope they don't put off the next one too long or we may be too old to enjoy it."

—OLD TIMER.

The world grows smaller day-by-day, and so do a lot of the world's leaders.
