

Permits delay new library opening

A delay in receiving elevator permits has postponed the opening of the Halton Hills Library and Cultural Centre to later this month.

The facility had eyed Tuesday, Jan. 8 as an opening date.

"We had hoped to be ready to open our doors to the public on January 8, but are still awaiting the final certification of our two elevators," said Jane Diamanti, Director of Library Services. "In keeping with our goal of opening in early January, once we receive our elevator certification, we'll look at opening as soon as possible. Return dates will be adjusted accordingly on all borrowed Georgetown Branch materials.

Watch our website (www.hhpl.on.ca) for more details."

However, the Official Grand Opening celebrations are set for Saturday, January 26. A fun-filled day of activities for the whole family to enjoy is being planned.

"We are looking forward to welcoming the Halton Hills community into this beautiful new facility," said Diamanti. "Our construction crews and staff have been working hard over the holidays to organize the new branch."

For a full schedule and more information on the activities planned, visit the Halton Hills Public Library website at www.hhpl.on.ca.
