800 ONTAIO TEACHES WANTED FOR NEXT YEAR

Ontario was short some 900 qualified teachers at the beginning of this year, and although the enrolment in teachers training establishments showed a slight increase at the start of the fall term if fell far short of the necessary numbers required to maintain a workable level in the province. It is still short some 800 teachers.

A survey taken by the Canadian Education Association in January revealed that Canada was short nearly 6,500 teachers in its elementary and secondary schools. The enrolment in teacher-training institutions throughout the country at that time was given as 6,866.

To make good the shortage of teachers, the Canadian Education association estimated that an enrodment this year of 9,508 teachers was needed. This enrolment said the association would make good the existing shortage in three years and allow for ordinary replacements.

The association could see no immediate alleviation for the shortage. This observation agreed with aducationists throughout the country.

STRATHROY MAN WOULD KILL CATS

A writer in the Strathroy Age-Dispatch recommends that all cats be killed as a saving on bread. He estimates that there are at least eight million cats in Canada, and the elimination of these would mean the saving of approximately 243,333,090 twenty-four ounce loaves of bread during the year.

We might remind him that this was tried during the war in Britain and the way that rats and mice and other vermin multiplied during the experiment soon convinced the populace that such was a mistake. No doubt the people of Canada would soon voice their objections and be willing to feed a few cats for the good they accomplish along this line.
