Accomplishment

Did you know how many tradesmen
Were included in our town?
I could dare you just to name them,
And would on your figures frown.

No one knew just how to do it,
But they all turned engineers
When a skeptic said it can't be done
And more expressed their fears.

But the spheme got under motion,
And in fairness to the ones
Who played engineers and draughtsman,
Must admit 'twas nobly done.

No one knew just what the other
Had in mind, or where to start,
But they started in to do it,
And with such a mighty heart.

Men with hammers, claws and crowbars
Started in to rip out boards,
Having not much more idea
Than the British House of Lords.

Next came John McBeth and mixer,
Stone and sand and cement, too,
Water tank, more men with shovels
Timbers, big ones, and more crew.

Two stout walls were put in lengthwise
Then the beams were jacked up higher,
And bolted to the timbers good.

Now a foot more height was needed
And the trucks came into play,
Tractors, Scrapers and their drivers,
Labored hard day after day.

Now in case you have not guessed it
(I refer to our rink),
It has had its face uplifted
Go see it, say what you think.

Many thanks we should be giving
To the ones who did the job,
Reg and Lorne and George and Harry,
Em and Russ, and Huck and Bob.

Preacher, Barber, Clerk and Miner
Soldier, Sailer, and Marine,
And the ones who came a distance
To help carry out the scheme.

I can't mention all your names boys
But give you thanks the same as they,
You will feel a glow of pride, boys,
When it comes to opening day.

It has been almost completed
And the town should glow with pride
Knowing that the old rink building
Has not gone out with the tide.

And now, dear people of our town,
Don't let the other fellow down.
He gave so freely of his labor,
You play your part and be good neighbor.

It's money we need to pay for the rink,
And when you're asked, just stop and think
It's nice to live in land that's free,
Make your contribution to Liberty.

And if you have a girl or boy
Who in this new rink will enjoy,
Give thanks that they can be near home,
And not in Paris, London or Rome.

And when there is a hockey game,
Come to the rink and lend your name
To the ranks of the sporting crowd
Who believe in liberty and yell it loud.

Best Wishes

At this time of year, we cannot help but think of our good friends with whom we have been associated this past year. It is with sincere appreciation of pleasant relations that we extend to you our best wishes for a
