Dundalk Man Had Narrow Escape In Tractor Accident

Ken Dinsmore, of this place had a miraculous escape from injury, early Tuesday afternoon, when run over by a tractor and plow he was delivering for George Duncan and Sons, local dealers, to George Graham of Redickville district. The accident occurred on Highway 10, a mile south of town, with the machine travelling at the rate of 10 miles per hour. When in front of the farm of Ross Oldfield, Ken stood up to shift his position and stood on the running board. Losing his balance, he grasped the closest object which happened to be the steering wheel. This action pulled the tractor to the right off the pavement and through the ditch dragging Ken with it, as his pants' leg had caught on the brake and clutch. Continuing over the partially-down wire fence the tractor dropped Ken there and continued on its merry way into the field where it stalled about half-way across in the soft ground. Ken's right side, from the shoulder down to his leg, was run over by the tractor, which fortunately had smooth rubber tires, otherwise his injuries might have proven much more serious. The tractor was drawing a plow and this implement drew Ken's clothes over his head but luckily did not otherwise injure him. While Ken was able to pick himself up, he collapsed at the roadside. A passing truck hailed Elvin Richardson of Corbetton, who brought him in his car to the office of Dr. Carter here. X-ray examination at the office of Dr. Sudden revealed no broken bones and Ken was able to walk about next day, though somewhat stiff and sore.—Dundalk Herald

H. A. McCauley Chosen Conservative Candidate

Howard A. McCauley of Flesherton was chosen as the Progressive Conservative candidate in South Grey at the nominating convention of the South Grey Conservative Association at Durham on Monday evening, and will oppose Hon. Farquhar Oliver, leader of the Liberal party in Ontaro. Mrs. Austin Ball of Hanover, J. B. Duffield of Durham, F. D. Sawyer of Markdale and Harry Kress of Durham also received nominations, but the former three withdrew, leaving the field to Mr. McCauley and Mr. Kress, the former winning on the voting. Mr. McCauley is president of the South Grey Conservative Association and Mr. Sawyer the secretary.

In his address, Mr. McCauley remarked that "It's time people woke up in South Grey riding. Take a look over in Bruce County, where J. P. Johnstone is M.L.A. There have been more miles of Hydro strung there than we've had in years. There is a new hospital in Southampton, a large chunk of it paid for by the province, and in North Grey rural Hydro has been extended for many miles also. Mr. McCauley stated that the system of government in the province gives the opposition no opportunity at all and explained that the government goes into caucus before sitting, when they put a word in for their own ridings, and the opposition does not know what goes on when the legislature sits.

"There's only one real opposition in the House as far as I've been able to see, Mr. McLeod and Mr. Salsberg, the Labor-Progressive members, and they're the kind we don't want in the government. The Liberals seem to sit and sleep." In addition to this Mr. McCauley continued, they (the Liberals) are not consistent. "They have voted for every government bill so far, and then they go out and criticize it."

"Since 1943 I have never stopped working for the Conservatives of South Grey," Mr. McCauley said. "I have averaged two trips to Toronto per month to get old age pensions or mothers' allowances for local persons, or to bring back rifles and fishing rods which were taken from people in the riding by game wardens." He said that he had also made it possible for the Kimberley Co-operative Creamery to be established.

Glenelg Forest Largest In Grey County

The largest block of land in Grey County under reforestation is situated a short distance east of Durham near McWilliams CPR flag station in Glenelg Township.

There are 900 acres in this one block. Near Markdale are another 400 acres, and altogether 1600 acres have been planted, or the ground being prepared for further planting. Herbert Atkinson lives on the Glenelg farm and is the caretaker for the whole area.

The trees are of different ages. The first planting was done in 1928 and except for a few years during the war has been increased every year.

The Game and Fisheries Department of Lands and Forests, thus giving protection to wild life within the county's acreage. Many streams run through the reforested lands and as the trees grow larger, will afford an ideal place for the speckled trout, which abound in the district, to multiply.

There are a great number of farmers who have been gradualy planting their hills and waste lands with trees and they provide a pretty picture for motorists as they go along the township roads.

The plantings on the Dr. D. B. Jamieson reserve began in 1920. The ground is soft with the needles that have fallen throughout the years. The trees were planted closely in rows to make them fight to reach the sunshine, and thus make them grow straight, now exclude the sunshine from above.

Even the birds do not rest in these trees and the silence and twilight as one walks through the forest is not soon forgotten. The sound of a trout stream tumbling over a little falls can be heard as a clear space is approached.

Upon mounting a sharp rise a panorama of the forest of trees presenting varying shades of green can be seen, rising and falling through the depressions and hummocks over which the trees were planted by the late Dr. David Jemieson, as he personally supervised all the plantings.

He had a vision of those trees as they would be 50 years hence and though knowing he would never live to see them grow to a great size. The planting of the 400-acre plot of waste land and its beauty today is what lies envisioned 22 years ago. If more waste land had been reforested at that time, the flood waters of the Saugeen would have been held in check to some extent, potential lumber would meet a growing demand and owner would have pride in their undertaking.

Referring back to what is known as the Grey County Forest at McWilliams for some years past this has been headquarters for Christmas trees and they were sold by the thousands to buyers who trucked them to Toronto, Windsor and other points. The supply has been pretty well exhausted, we have been told and we have no knowledge whether the government intends continuing the business. In any event, here is a wonderful chance for a young person to buy up some waste land, plant it out to the right type of pine trees, and reap a harvest seven to eight years hence The Christmas tree companies cut their own trees and there is a market of up to 10,000 trees a year at prices ranging up to 50 cents each—not a bad income.

Vandeleur People Plant On Reforestation Project

(By Vandeleur Reporter)

A combined reforestation plot and windbreak was planted along the Meaford Road, south of Vandeleur School on Monday, April 19th, and it was a red letter day in the history of the community. The event marked the inauguration of a new reforestation policy on the part of the Artemesia Council which purchased the land and fence, while members of the local farm forum and the teacher and school children did the work. The planting started about 9 a.m. and was under the supervision of John Jackson of Owen Sound, Zone Forester for Grey and Bruce, who spoke briefly, gave instructions to the adults, then to the children, and then planted the first tree. Reeve J. A. Davis was also on hand to see the start of the project. The trees are planted six feet apart, with the sod cut back about two feet around each tree. As the ground was stoney all the work had to be done by hand, and everyone, including the children worked like trojans, which is proven by the fact that a dozen men one woman, the teacher, and 20 pupils planted 1500 trees and almost completed 50 rods of wire fence during the day. In conversation with your correspondent, Mr. Jackson stated that he never saw a group that entered with better spirit on any community project. "It was in this spirit," he added, "that makes a better community and a better world in general." At opportune times during the day Mr. Jackson explained to the group the value of reforestation; also the nature and peculiarities of various kinds of trees, methods of plantng, etc.

It was a real worth-while community effort, which should prove of value as years go by, as snow drifting has always been bad along the road at this place. It is hoped that it is the start of many other similar projects. The Farm Forum, which startd the ball rolling, is to be congratulated. They wish to thank all those who worked so hard to bring this project into being. A few of the faithful gathered on Tuesday morning and completed the work.
