Injured Hockey Players

Three players of Flesherton hockey teams have received severe injuries the past week. Bruce Thurston was "given the works" by Rolston in the game at Shelburne a week ago and after x-rays on Wednesday it was found that he had a separated shoulder. At an exhibition game in Markdale Monday night Jack Milne received a cut on his forehead requiring five stitches to close, caused from a puck shot by one of his own players, and Bob Stoddart received a double fracture of his left elbow when he fell.

Tribute of Appreciation Extended To Players of Flesherton Senior Club

(By R. B.)

After a successful hockey campaign, it would be well to look back on the boys who made it so enjoyable for us, the critical fans. With two exceptions, which may or may not have been preventable, every game was of the highest calibre of effort and sportsmanship possible, in this speedy and rugged game, which taxes even the mildest tempers.

Starting from the net and working out, we have two fellows of entirely different style, but with the same purpose in mind, to "keep them out." Russ "Muscles" Andrews, who quietly waits in the crease to try and out-guess incoming forwards, and Ed. Ferris, who "waits for no one," skating out time and again to beat opponents to a loose puck, both swell fellows who did a grand job.

Some will say that the shortage of players was because "Hank wasn't on the ice," however, no matter what penalties Hank Best received, deserved or otherwise, no man ever played harder for his team than this rugged defenceman, who, unfortunately was forced from the game early in the season by a leg injury. The two men left to carry the brunt of the defence work, after Hank's injury, were big Fred Bannon who, as the writer overheard a Camp Borden player say, "Can stretch his arms and legs and cover the rink." As the season went on Fred improved so much that in the last game he not only carried the puck through twice, but also scored one of his team's three goals. His partner, the good old 60-minute man, and one of the new additions to the team this year, was Russ. Acheson of Proton, who travelled many miles in order to play. When things are quiet, Russ is the quietist, but when they are rought, watch out. Russ also scored a goal in the last game. "Baldy" Boyd was the man who filled in the tough spots, setting up plays for his wings, Gord. Chard and Bill Lawrence during attacks, and ragging the puck when his team was shorthanded, and after the absence of Harold Best, George alternated on the defence, along with Bill Lawrence, both doing "time and a half."

The second line of Doug. Cairns, Bob Turney and Roy Best, was always the fastest and kept the fans on their feet most of the time, Doug's fiery temper earning him a few tongue lashing from referees, with whom he sometimes disagreed. Bob Turney, "old brittle bone" was a bit more fortunate this year than previously, not suffering too many injuries, while Roy Best was probably the fastest skater on the ice, but moved to Toronto half way through the season and his position was taken by Ken Chard, brother of Gord, who had previously played with his brother and George Boyd. Without a doubt, the hardest working trio was centred by Bruce Thurston, with Jack "Doc" Milne and Jack Lawrence brother of Bill. It's too bad that seven-man hockey is out of fashion as these three boys would have made great "rovers," the extra man used in those days, where the puck is that's where they want to be. Another man of whom little was seen during the year, but who did great utility work when called upon, was Fred Gorrell, when by his efforts at of spelling off the regulars, the others were able to display a much stonger game after their "breather."

Looking back over the season, it is not out of place to give special thanks, on behalf of the supporters, to those who forfeited time and effort in order to entertain us. Bill Lawrence was without a doubt the outstanding player of the year, also high scorer, with Gord. Chard and Doug. Cairns running very close. These three boys, along with Jack Lawrence, Ken Chard, Ed. Ferris, Fred Bannon and Russ. Acheson are the ones for "special mention," as they had to travel many stormy nights from Kimberley and Proton, Cairns from blocked back roads, and Bannon, away down No. 10. Some of them had farm chores to do before game time, but all put their best efforts into every game. Behind the scnes we have "Gump" and "Hap," Bob Phillips and Reg. Boyd, who shared coaching and managing bouquets and brickbats. Who is to say that one should have been coaching at the time he was managing or vice-vrsa — they did what they figured was right and did a darn good job. We will be looking for all the fellows in skates and pads toward the end of 1949 and wish them every success. Many thanks for an enjoyable winter season.

From the other side of the fence it must be said that no team, great or small, carried a stronger or more loyal fan support than did these boys. Hockey enthusiasts from Kimberley, Priceville, Ceylon, Eugenia, Rock Mills, Maxwell, Feversham, Proton, Portlaw, and even from our neighbor to the north after their own team had been eliminated, followed their favorites to Markdale, Dundalk, Shelburne, Grand Valley, Erin,, Tara, Waterloo and finally to Walkerton and glorious defeat, this we say, because at no time during the season did they play harder than the last few minutes of the last game. It is a privilege the writer takes upon himself to thank these many fans for their loyal support of a fine group of fellows.

Meeting of St. Columba W. M. S. And Ladies' Aid

The March meeting of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid of St. Columba United Church, Priceville, was held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Harrison with 18 ladies present. Mrs. McConkey presided for the W.M.S. and after the usual opening ceremony, Mrs. Wm. Meads gave a reading on perseverance and Mrs. Mould led in pryaer. Miss Velma Wright read an interesting article from the Missionary Monthly on Miss Kate Rutherford. A chapter from the study book "West of the Gorges," on the medical work in China was well given by Miss Edith James.

Mrs. F. R. Oliver presided for the Ladies' Aid meeting. Final plans were made for the Irish supper and novel ideas for the bazaar, to be held in May, were discussed. Rev. L. W. Mould read a letter on the sale of gladioli bulbs, proceeds of which would be spent on Bibles to be sent to European countries. Two quilts, recently completed in the church basement, were on display and are now for sale. A visiting commmittee was appointed, composed of Mrs. Wm. Meads, east of Priceville, Mrs. P. Hunt and Mrs. J. Harrison for the village and Mrs. Angus MacArthur for the west side. Mr. Mould closed the meeting with prayer. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Meads.
