Clarksburg Postmaster Dies

W. Reginald Fawcett, postmaster of Clarksburg for the past 18 years, died suddenly at his home on Friday, July 22nd, in his 65th year. A veteran of the First World War, he served overseas for nearly five years and was wounded in action in France.

A native of Collingwood Township, he was a son of the late George Fawcett. He learned the printing trade as a youth with his uncle, the late A. R. Fawcett, founder of The Advance, and operated a weekly newspaper at Thornbury, but after the war he was employed with a rubber company in Hamilton and London for several years before going to St. John, N.B. He was a past master of the Masonic Lodge and also had been noble grand of the Odd Fellows' Lodge. He was well known and highly regarded by many here and in his own community. He is survived by his widow, the former Sybie Mitchell; one brother, Roy, of Detroit, and by one sister, Mrs. Leith Balfour (Gladys).

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, July 25th, with interment in Thornbury Union Cemetery.

TEN PEAS IN POD IS SOMETHING OF A RECORD

Two pea pods from the garden of Mr. A. E. Bell of twon were brought to The Advance Editor on Monday that were monsters for size. Each pod held ten peas, something away out of the ordinary. The largest one Mr. Bell had ever seen before was a pod containing nine. We grow them large in Flesherton.

In Memoriam

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of my dear husband, William D. Campbell, who passed away July 27th, 1948.

God's greatest gift: remembrance.

Hutchinson - Hardy

Delphinium, roses and fern formed an effective setting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Swinton, Park, for the marriage of Eleanor Marie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. A. Hardy, Swinton Park, to Ward Harvey, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Haddon Hutchinson of Priceville.

Eighty-five guests witnessed the ceremony, performed by Rev. L. W. Mould. Miss Muriel Martin played the wedding music and Mrs. Fred Irwin of Dundalk sang before the ceremony "I Love You Truly," and during the signing of the register "O, Promise Me."

Given in marriage by her father, the charming young bride looked graceful in a long gown of white slipper satin with nylon yoke, flared skirt, lace trimmed bodice, tiny buttons down the back and the long sleeves ending in lace points over the hands. Her long veil was held with a coronet of pearls. Her shower bouquet was of red Sweetheart roses, fern, stephonitis and rose buds tied in the streamers, and she wore a three-strand necklace, the gift of the groom.

The bride's attendants looked lovely. As maid of honor, Miss Shirley Hardy, cousin of the bride, was in a flow-length of yellow faille taffeta, the hemline caught with clusters of flowers. In her hair she wore a garland of blue flowers and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations and blue cornflowers. The bridesmaid, Miss Lorraine Porter, wore a similar gown of blue faille taffeta. She wore a garland of yellow flowers and carried a similar nosegay tied with yellow satin ribbon. Little Ruth Hutchinson, sister of the groom, made a winsome flower girl, attired in a dress of pink faille taffeta, the long skirt caught up with flowers. She carried a nosegay of sweet peas and baby breath, tied with pink satin ribbon. Bruce Christie was groomsman and the ushers were the groom's brothers, Calvin and William.

Mrs. Hardy, mother of the bride, received in a dress of navy sheer with petit point and white accessories, with corsage of pink roses, assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. Hutchinson wearing a powder blue printed sheer dress with white accessories and corsage of pink roses. The four grandmothers of the bride and groom were present

Mrs. E. Nuhn, grandmother of the groom, made the all-white pillared wedding cake which centred the bride's table, decorated with tall white and pink candles and silver holders, and silver bowls held pink and white flowers. Those who assisted at the tables were: Misses Beth and Jane Fawcett, Joan Akins, Leona Keeling, Audrey Heard and Helen Black.

The bride's gifts to the groom was a wrist watch, to the attendants, a strand of pearls; to the flower girl, a heart-shaped locket; soloist and pianist, china cup and saucer; to the groomsman, a leather billfold and to the ushers, a tie and belt.

For the honeymoon trip to Guelph, Niagara Falls and Toronto, the bride donned a powder blue crepe lace-trimmed dress with matching hat and grey coat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. On their return they will make their home in Artemesia Township. The best wishes of the communuity follow the popular young couple.

Friends were present from Laurel, Thamesville, Alberta, Meadowvale, Toronto and near-by centres.

GOESH AND IN HAND

It's no secret that good humor and good digestion go hand in hand. Tense nerves and frayed tempers at the dinner table very often lead to digestive upsets and, in the case of children, to the creation of a stubborn feeding problem. Troubles that loomed large on an empty stomach often look far less forbidding after they have been shelved during a good meal

Fine Osprey Home Burned Sunday

The fine large brick home of Mr. Roy Fenwick, one and a quarter miles south of Maxwell on the 4th line, was destroyed by fire early Sunday afternoon. The cause of the fire is believed to have been sparks from a chimney igniting a pile of dry shingles in a woodshed at the rear of the house. The residence was of red brick construction and was one of the finest homes in Osprey Township.

The fire was first noticed by Mr. Fenwick and at the same time by Mrs. Percy Winters, who was passing in a car. Mr. Fenwick, along with some friends from Peterboro attempted to put the fire out, but were not successful. A call was sent in to the Flesherton, Dundalk and Collingwood fire brigades and the Flesherton brigade was the first at the scene, but the woodshed was entirely gone when they arrived. In the meantime the fire made headway in the gable end of the roof and had a firm footing in the space under the roof, that made successful fighting impossible, as the smoke in the attic was too dense for the men to enter. Neighbors soon gathered and the furniture, both upstairs and downstairs was saved, although a refrigerator was lost, being too heavy to move quickly.

Fireman Fred Gorrell of Flesherton was overcome by smoke and was taken to the Markdale Hospital where he remained until Monday afternoon, although was unable to work on Tuesday.

The walls of the house were left standing, most of them appearing to be too seriously damaged. In fact the linoleum on the diningroom floor appeared to be undamaged, as the heat of the fire was kept at a low temperature by the amount of water and chemical played on the burning building.

The house replaced one destroyed by fire 21 years ago. Mr. Fenwick carried insurance on the building, but it would not be enough to cover his loss, as it is estimated that the building could not be replaced under $12,000.00.

As the truck bringing the Dundalk fire equipment arrived at the corner, for some reason the truck hit the ditch and overturned, one of the chemical tanks being damaged in the spill, and only one tank was fit for use in fighting the fire.

THE SMALL TOWN

(By George Matthew Adams)

I shall never cease to be grateful over the fact that I was both born, and lived the early part of my life in a small town. You knew almost everybody, the druggist, the harness maker, to the high school principal and the town's clergymen.

There was a friendliness that was spread all over the town. There was community interest. Co-operation and a democracy of spirit were always alive. People travelled and came back with ideas that were distributed. Sunday was a day of worship and the many churches were filled with people eager to gain spiritual sustenance.

The small town, with its weekly newspaper, is the backbone if every country, and a goodly portion of a country's great men and women were reared in the small town. Most came from humble origin. And I have never met a man or woman who didn't take pride in the fact.

People take time to think in the small town. They keep informed (and from many a one have come our most outstanding premiers and legislators, as well as those who have contributed to the life of the nation and to the world.

Our great educational institutions are filled with students who have come from the small towns—and if you have listened to the broadcasters of baseball games you have learned that a majority of our great ball players come from the small town! In travelling across the country in a car you will pass through many a small town and you will learn from each. They are a happy, useful people who live in them. We, who have been born and lived in these small towns, carry many happy memories with us all through life, and these memories grow richer with the years. The church, the school and the library are outstanding institutions in the small town. They are its intellectual and spiritual guardians. No one who has ever lived in a small town can forget its endless benefits.—The Telegram.

Mrs. GEO. LAWLER LOSES SISTER IN THE WEST

The sad word was received last week by Mrs. Geo. Lawler of the death of her sister, Minnie (Mrs. Ed. Rusnell) which occurred at Lucky Lake, Sask., on Tuesday, July 199th, in her 76th year. Deceased was the eldest daughaer of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Carr and was born at Eugenia. Besides her husband she leaves eight children, also five sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Edith Sturgeon of Hartnell, Alta; Mrs. Tena Bailey of Vancouver, B.C.; Mrs. Flo Lunam of Regina, Sask.; Mrs. Mabel Twigg of Campbellford; Mrs. Lawler, of Flesherton; Edward Carr of Stoughton, Sask., and Will Carr of Calgary, Alta.

Campbell - Tudor

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage at 2:30 o'clock on Saturday, July 16th, when Annie Janet, youngest daughter of Mr. Henry Tudor and the late Mrs. Tudor, was united in marriage to Frederick Dorland, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Campbell of Eugenia. Rev. A. G. Macpherson performed the ceremony.

The bride looked charming in a street-length dress of pale blue moire silk taffeta. Self-covered buttons trimmed the front of the fitting bodice, which had cap sleeves, v-neckline, and a peplum, shirred in front, fell over the full skirt and her shoulder-length pale blue net veil was held in place by a bandeau of pale blue roses. She wore a shoulder cascade of pink roses and maiden hair fern tied with white ribbon. Her accessories were white. Her attendant was Miss Shirley Cairns, attired in a street-length frock of pink with matching veil and flowers and a shoulder cascade, similar to that of the bride. Mr. Leslie Johnson of Flesherton acted as groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home, where the tables were laid for forty guests. The bride's table was centred with a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a bride and groom ornament. The waitresses were: Miss Marge Martin in a pale blue moire silk taffeta dress and wearing pink flowers, Alice Tudor, sister of the bride, in navy taffeta with white flowers, Miss Helen Carsadden of Clarksburg in a red and white printed frock, and wearing blue flowers, and Miss Leona Johnson of Flesherton in a printed green dress and wearing white flowers. The guests were received by the bride's sister, Miss Jean Tudor, attired in a costume of dark green, with a corsage of yellow roses, and the groom's mother, Mrs. S. Campbell, wearing a white printed silk jersey dress with a corsage of yellow roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea service, to the bridesmaid a string of pearls and to the groomsman a bill-fold. The bride presented her waitresses each with a lovely cup and saucer. The wedding gifts were beautiful and useful.

The young couple left that evening on a honeymoon trip to Barrie, North Bay, Sudbury, and to the Manitoulin Island. On their return they will reside in Eugenia for a while. Our best wishes are extended to them for a long and happy wedded life.

Baptist Church News

The services on Sunday were all very well attended. The pastor continued the series of sermons on the Lord's prayer, speaking on the first petition, "Hallowed be Thy Name", also singing "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte as a solo. The McFarlands of Collingwood delighted the Rock Mills congregation in the afternoon and the Cedarside congregation in the evening with their very fine singing of the old gospel songs. They are to be with us again on the 14th of August, for all services.

The regular weekly meeting of the B.Y.P.U. was held in the Cedarside church last Friday evening. Ted Newell was in charge of the programme, and Mr. A. Bayford gave the topic. Emerson Beaton conducted the business, after which games were played, and refreshments served. The next meeting is to be held with the Rock Mills Union and will be an outdoor social at the Helmkays'.
