VANDELEUR

The Farm Forum met at the home of Mrs. Ethel Hutchinson Monday evening, when there was an excellent discussion on the law of supply and demand. The Forum was unanimous in the opinion that the farmer should not change his production plans to any marked degree, as the prices of his products change. It is almost impossible for those in specialized lines to change, but those following mixed farming might make some adjustments. The Forum felt that the weather, tariffs, combines, lack of purchasing power and many other factors interfere with the law of supply and demand. Mrs. Alex. Gilray presided and two groups were formed with Miss Alcox and Will Ratcliffe as secretaries. H. I. Graham read the correspondence. There was an interesting recreation period when indoor horseshoe, crokinole, etc., were played, after which lunch was served by the ladies. The next meeting will be held at the home of Will Johnston.

Mrs. Howard Graham was hostess for the January meeting of the W.A Thursday afternoon, with ten ladies present, and the president, Mrs. Bowles, in the chair. Mrs. Graham conducted the devotional exercises, Mrs. L. Johnston the interesting topic, Mrs. McGee a reading and Mrs. Bowles a Bible contest. The meeting had been postponed from the previous day on account of the roads being practically impassable. Lundy Johnston brought the old reliable team and wagon as transport for the ladies from the South end.

How To Be Happy

Be up to your ears in things. This is one sure way to happiness. It does not matter what you are up to your neck in. Babies, ideas, driving a truck, tatting—these are all ways to happiness if you really work at them.

People are generally happiest in middle age. They may feel better and be more hopeful in youth, and they may know more when they are older. But in early middle age, on the average, they are too busy to ponder long on whether they are happy or not.

Resourceful old people get around this by planning ahead. They lay out jobs for themselves that will take less physical and nervous energy but will still be a shade harder thna they can conveniently do. Young folk with their long, long thoughts and longer college education have a hard otife of it. But eventually most of them get working at something and brighten up. By the time they are short-winded and aching, they will have too many troubles to be unhappy. — Ex.

So People Could Retire At Birth

(Bowmanville Statesmna)

We've heard a lot about pension plans recently some contributory, some non-contributory, but every one was a pretty inadequate proposition when compared with the blatantly sarcastic plan offered by Alfred Haake, the mayor of Park Ridge, Illinois, who writes with his tongue in his cheek for a number of small town newspapers. Wrote Haake, as quoted by The Wall Sreet Journal:

Every new-born child in the United States would receive a promissory note for $20,000.00 at 3 pe.cent interest, payable in 20 years. The three percent or $50 per month, would go to the child's parents until the child was 20. Each year during those 20 the government would pay $1,000.00 into a sinking fund for the retirement of the note and when the child reached the age of 20 the government would give him or her the $20,000.00 it has paid into the sinking fund.

Boys and girls of 20 who elected to marry would thus have a capital of $40,000.00 and work would be forever unnecessary if they would undertake to have at least four children, because they would receive $50 a month for each child until it reached the age of 20, and there would be enough left of their own $40,000.00 after that to care for them in their old age.

Nobody would have to work again.

The parents, in addition to $50 for each child or $200 a month for four children, could invest their $40,00.00 in government bonds at 3 percent, and have an additional income of $100 or a total of $300 a month.

This, says the Wall Street Journal, might seem comical. But in a day when the government proposes to make Americans all rich by distributing dollar bills and when a labor union says they can all have more good things by working less, it would not be surprising to see this scheme taken up seriously in Washington.

The project for the new era will be to work less and less and quit that earlier and earlier. The slogan: "Why Wait, Retire at Birth."
