

TED'S TOP 32 PHOTO'S

December 1996. This was our first digital colour front page. Santa came out to my place for a visit, and as we were enjoying the warmth of the fireplace, a neighbor's daughter dropped by for a special moment with the jolly old elf. I love the magical feel of this photo.

Dec. 19, 2009. Jack Harrison was one of the lucky ones chosen to carry the torch through Georgetown for the Olympic Torch Run. It was a very early morning shoot, and the media rode in the back of a van with the back door taken off. We nearly froze!

With the introduction of Kodak's T-Max 3200 ISO high speed film in 1988, sports shots became much easier. I shot this through the glass at 1/500 second, as the player played the ball off the glass. During the match, the ball bounced over the glass. I picked it up to toss it back over the glass— it was so hot it burned my fingers!

One of my favorite sports shots, proving the old adage that being a news photographer is 95 per cent skill— and 5 percent luck. Covering softball was always a great challenge. One had to try to second guess the players and try to be focused on the spot where the action was about to happen.

April 07, 2009. My eldest grandson Andrew Willett enjoyed the opportunity to hold a day old lamb in the barn at Brown Farm. We were looking for a photo to illustrate Easter, and having a flock of sheep at home and a willing grandson— it was simply a super easy shot

Acton High School track and field competitor Jennifer Scott took part in the OFSAA competition at the Etobicoke Olympium. It was always neat to be assigned to cover an event located out of town, seeing new venues with familiar faces competing for the gold.
