

Globe to hold fundraiser for cancer-stricken mom

By LOIS FRASER

Georgetown Globe Productions

Kimm Poirier-Fletcher is a member of Georgetown Globe Productions. At 41 years old, Kimm is a wife and mother of two, a business owner, a friend to many and a woman with a heart as big as they come and a will even bigger.

Kimm has a goal: striving towards conquering terminal brain cancer. Her most fervent wish is to have more time to make more memories with her young family.

In September 2013, Kimm was not expected to live past two months. With the help of an Internet campaign, a lot of press, and a very strong support system behind her, Kimm has been able to afford the drug Avastin.

She had two goals—to be able to have Christmas with her family (done!) and to attend her daughter's confirmation this June.

Kimm's condition is still listed as terminal, but she is getting the gift of extra time. The cancer is being brought to its knees a little more everyday with Kimm's strength and her winning attitude towards life.

Thanks to the fundraising efforts of her friends and supporters working together constantly to pay for the very expensive treatments not covered by her insurance or the government, the tumour has not grown substantially in the last two months.

Globe is presenting Making Memories Benefit Concert for Kimm Poirier-Fletcher on Saturday, March 8, 8 p.m. at the John Elliott Theatre
