Death of Herbert Strain

The death of Mr. Herbert Strain, merchant, of Great Falls, Mont., on April 10th, removes a gentleman who was well known to many in this section, being related to the Armstrong family, and also Mrs. James Bell, of Glenelg. Mr. Strain was born in Flesherton and spent his boyhood days there. He was only 48 years of age at the time of his demise.

The Great Falls Tribune gives a very extensive account of Mr. Strain's wonderful business success in the west where he was very highly esteemed, and also deals editorially with the lessons to be taught by his exemplary life. The Tribune says:

"The death of Herbert Strain at his home in this city last evening removes from the business and social life of Great Falls one of her most sterling citizens, from the world of men a man who loved his fellow men, whose lines were builded upon a foundation of humanity, charity and understanding.

"Himself a man who worked his way every step up the stairway of life to the place men call success, he had that understanding of men which comes from knowledge of their trials at first hand, and kindly commendation and timely aid came from him unostentatiously and in a manner most effective to those served. In him there was no cant or hypocrisy, no deceit or double dealing; his opinions all men knew, and he maintained them openly, honestly, and with that sturdy zeal which comes of earnest belief.

"With the most pronounced views against the liquor traffic and its following, it is yet a fact that those engaged in the business held respect and admiration for him through it all, for though he never temporized, yet he always fought fair, and always with the weakness and frailties of humanity in mind—and in it there never entered suspicion of hypocrisy — never whisper of dogmatic cant. In all matters of public policy he held decided views, but they were views formed through honesty and not expediency. The world is better for such a man having lived. The example he has left is one to be cherished by friend and family alike, and remembered as a beacon set along the great highway we are travelling when darkness falls. He was one of those upon whom nature had set the seal of MAN."

The deceased gentleman leaves behind a wife and four children.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST DESCRIPTIVE ORGANIST

By the great critics of two continents, Gatty Sellars, concert organist of The Queen's Hall and Crystal Palace Music Festivals, London, England, who plays here on next Monday evening at the Methodist church has been acclaimed the world's greatest descriptive organist. One writer put it succinctly when he said, "What Paderewski is to the piano, Gatty Sellars is to the organ," and it will be a musical event of the highest importance to hear the Paderewski of the organ." Even those who are not musically inclined are held spell-bound, as they would be at an intense drama, by his marvellously realistic rendition of "A Storm in the Alps"—the lightning, thunder, rain and wind sounding as in real life, or "The Russian Patrol" by Rubenstein, where the realistic sounds of tramping, struggling troops are so life-like that one critic accused Mr. Sellers of carrying a company of men with him to make the sound of tramping behind the organ. Music-lovers will be enchanted when they hear the world famed artist in classical selections by the greatest masters, from Bach and Wagner to Sir Edward Elgar and Gatty Sellars himself, who is one of England's foremost composers. To hear The Coronation Music, with the beautiful Cathedral Chimes (which Mr. Sellars carries with him and adjusts to the organ) is to imagine oneself inside Westminster Abbey at the historic moment crowning of King George V. The same programme will be given which has delighted audiences, averaging from five to ten thousand people in such auditoriums as Queen's Hall and Crystal Palace, London, or the Auditorium, Los Angeles or The Morman Tabernacle, Salt Lake City. It is not surprising that there is a very large demand for tickets. The demand is so great that those who do not buy their tickets early may miss the greatest treat in years.

Must Register.

In view of the complaints he has received of the failure of the physicians to comply with section 14 of the Vital Statistics Act by promptly registering all births, Dr. J.W.S. McCullough, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health and Deputy Registrar General, has sent out circulars to all the division registrars in the province requiring that the names of parties who neglect to register the birth of a child be reported to the Department and instructions will thereupon be sent to the County Crown Attorney to institute a prosecution. The penalty under the Act for failure to register is $10.

Largest Elevator in World

Twelve million bushels will be the storage capacity of the Canadian Northern Railway grain elevator at Port Arthur when the additions now under contract are completed. This is, by far, the largest grain elevator in the world.

The elevator has just been enlarged from a capacity of 7,500,000 to 10,000,000 bushels. A new unit of 2,000,000 bushels is to be added shortly.

According to statistics prepared by the railway, there existed in 1911, 25,700,000 bushels of elevator storage capacity at the Canadian head of the Great Lakes. When present contracts are completed there will be 40,820,400 bushels.

Better Prices for Apples

Is there a man in the county of Grey who does not want to get better prices for his apples than he is getting at the present time or than he got last fall? We do not believe there is one. Then if there are none such we are all willing to work together for the good cause. To get these better prices we must look ahead a little. If we do not then we will secure only the same prices we secured last fall.

In the first place let us announce the fact that an apple exhibit from the County of Grey will be made at the Toronto Flower Fruit and Honey Show next fall and we all want to be in readiness for it. The county council have generously donated $200 to this end and it is up to us as fruit farmers to get busy and make the best use of the money possible.

In the first place have we our orchards properly pruned? If not then it is time we were getting busy with that job. Many of us cut out the limbs we can reach from the centre of the tree. This is not the proper method of pruning. We should leave all the centre wood possible as long as the sunshine gets into the tree and thin out the outer edges of the trees to let the air and sunshine in as far as we can. There are some men who make a practice of doing the pruning for others but we can all do our own if we set at it.

And what about the spraying? Have we never done any of it? We should give at least three applications of the spray. This will assist us in driving out the insects and the fungus diseases. The first application of lime sulphur should be given just before the buds open. Not too soon before or you may injure the young buds. When the wood is dormant is the proper time. This will kill off the Oyster Shell Bark Louse and other insects that harbour under the rough bark of the trees during the winter. The second application should be bordeaux mixture sprayed on the trees just after the buds are open and ere the blossoms show their petals. The last application should be given just after the blossoms fall. Do not spray while the blossoms are open because you will kill the bees and will not have the blossoms properly fertilized and your fruit crop will be small if this is the case. This last dose of spray is specially suited to meet the codling moth and get it out of the way.

Make the spray solutions as follows:—

Lime Sulphur—Slake 20 pounds of fresh lime in about 15 gallons of boiling water in a kettle or some other boiling apparatus. While slaking add 15 pounds of sulphur made into the form of a paste. Stir well and boil vigorously for one hour. Dilute to 40 gallons with either hot or cold water. Strain and apply at once. This should not be applied to anything but the dormant wood.

Bordeaux Mixture—Dissolve four pounds copper sulphate (bluestone) in a wooden or brass vessel with hot water, pour into a barrel and add cold water to make 20 gallons. Slake 4 pounds lime with hot water and pour into a second barrel, diluting to 20 gallons. Stir both barrels well and pour the lime into the sulphate barrel. To this mixture add 2 pounds of Arsenate of Lead.

Let us all get to work and make the fruit grow the best that is so that we will have the best exhibit possible in Toronto. This exhibit will show the world that we can and do grow the best apples in Ontario. Then the buyers will come here and we will get the bigger and better prices we are looking for.

For further information write to the Secretary, Grey County Board of Agriculture, Mr. H. C. Duff, Markdale.
