The Georgetown Raiders celebrate their overtime-winning goal by Steve Midensky in game two last Friday night in a 2-1 decision over the host IceHawks. The Raiders led the best-of-7 first-round playoff series 2-0 heading into game three Wednesday in Georgetown. It's the first time since 2005 that the Raiders and their one-time fierce rivals from Milton have met in the post-season.

Raiders' monster 'Masch'

Fifteen-year-old Adam Mascherin is considered a top prospect for this spring's Ontario Hockey League Priority Selection and since his Vaughan minor midget AAA Kings were eliminated from the GTHL post-season, he's available to the Raiders for the moment.

The 5-foot-9, 195-pounder from Maple, Ont. is set to play for Vaughan at the OHL Cup during the March Break, but for now, Georgetown head coach & GM Greg Walters — along with several scouts — are anxious to see what Mascherin will do next.

"He's a special player and that shot of his... I haven't seen a player his age shoot the puck like he can besides (Steven) Stamkos," said Walters, who was an associate coach with the OHL's Sarnia Sting when current Tampa Bay Lightning star Stamkos played major junior there.

In game one, Mascherin had the only first-period marker before the teams traded blows in the middle stanza, heading to the intermission tied 3-3. Having compiled five goals and seven assists in his five regular-season appearances with the Raiders, Mascherin then supplied the clinching goal with less than four minutes remaining in regulation.
